PROPOSE ANNEXATION OF $5 MILLION MOTEL

MAMMOTH $5 MILLION motel resort to be located on Northwest hwy. across from Arlington Park racetrack is pictured in architect's sketch. The recreational center is planned to serve Chicagoans within a 130-mile radius, according to the developer, Seay and Thomas, Inc., realtor and mortgage bankers. Seay noted that plans call for a private club on the premises for residents of the area, with full dining facilities and other club privileges.

by STUART R. PADDOCK

Next Wednesday is the 41st anniversary of the end of World War I.

History has shown that the result of the victory was only a dream. It can only be labeled "What Might Have Been." But the proclamation of President Woodrow Wilson tells the high hopes of the American people:

"To My Fellow Countrymen: The armistice was signed this morning. Everything for which America fought has been accomplished. It will now be our fortunate duty to assist by example, by sober, friendly council and by material aid in the establishment of just democracy throughout the world."

For what happened in Europe we turn to the files of three metropolitan papers, the headings of which were as follows:

War Is Over
Kaiser Flees Revolt
Arrives With Eldest Son In Holland
Republic Set Up In Berlin
Wrench Prussia From Autocrats

What happened in Chicago:

Many pages were devoted to the celebration of the good news. One heading reads: "Chicago Leaps From Bed For Peace Jubilee."

Chicago is on a spree!

Not the intoxication that comes from strong drink, but the kind that comes from joy, from delight, from victory.

For this time it is true, and there is no chance of misspent enthusiasm.

The lid came off at 2:30 in the morning. When it will be clamped on again nobody knows, and, what's more, nobody seems to care.

With the first tooting of the whistles shortly after 2 a.m. Chicago turned over and rubbed its eyes.

Chiefly the city was shouting with full lungs, and swelling throats. Chicago had a horn in one hand, a rattler in the other, a cowbell tied to its coat and a flag in its hat.

For what happened in Arlington Heights we turn to our microfilm files:

From the amount of carbide used Arlington Heights surely did her share in the celebration of Armistice Day. The cannonading was something terrific. Old Glory also did its share. Flags were very much in evidence thruout the village from the large liberty pole flag down to the smallest, carried by children on their way to school.

At 10:30 the children of the various schools were called out onto the school campus, forming in squads. The high school boys cannonaded at the south end of the grounds. At 5 minutes of eleven orders were given by Prof. J. C. Williams to prepare for a silent moment at precisely 11 o'clock, all scholars facing the east with bowed heads.

Following the "silence" the school formed in couples and marched to the "Triangle Park" where the [illegible] War monument has been placed (see [illegible] When). There short addresses were made by Mr. C. W. Farr and Mr. N. M. Banta, songs under the leadership of Mrs. Mayer being given between the addresses. Following the exercises, the school paraded thru the business district and back to the school building for dismissal.

From an editorial written by the late H. C. Paddock:

Many people are asking what we should do with the Kaiser if we had him in our power. Would we kill him? No! That would be too kind a punishment for his crime against all the people on earth.

I would doom him to live the rest of his life in a hovel built by himself in a field in the country he devastated; daily to look upon the wreckage for which he was responsible.

I would have an automatic repeat alarm clock wake him up at Midnight, 2 a.m., 3 a.m. and 4 a.m. to see moving pictures of the awful carnage on land and sea, accompanied by photos that would show the victims of his rapacious, unholy ambition to rule the world. I would keep this up until he thoroughly repented and pleaded to his Creator for mercy.

Prisoner Is Halted with Gun Shots

Six gun shots ripped the air of downtown Arlington Heights in the early morning hours Tuesday when a state police prisoner bolted from the village police station.

Richard E. Lee, 22, of 3839 N. Harlem, Chicago was brought to the station by state troopers and charged with forcing a coin box on a telephone at routes 62 and 53.

While in the station at 2:30 a.m., Lee knocked one of the troopers to one side and dashed from the station, running north on Vail st. He was pursued by a trooper whose shots, fired into the air, brought him to a quick halt.

ICC Gives Approval For Sewer

The Illinois Commerce Commission has approved plans of Arlington Vista Water and Sewer company to construct a gravity outfall sewer emptying into McDonald creek.

The commission authorized the utility to acquire a 25-foot wide easement for the 1,200 foot long sewer line, by condemnation action under right of eminent domain if necessary. The company told the commission it might have difficulty obtaining the easements from property owners.

THE UTILITY serves the 72-acre Arlington Vista subdivision in unincorporated Wheeling township. The tract is around Palatine and Buffalo Grove roads about 1½ miles north of Palatine.

It will install a 27-inch concrete sewer which will carry processed effluent from what the commission termed a treatment plant. The sewer line route is over tillable farm land.

Start Work On 33 Unit Apartments

Ground was broken last week for a 33-unit apartment building at the northwest corner of Miner and Salem streets, bringing to over 250 the number of new apartment units either completed or under construction in Arlington Heights thus far this year.

Another 120 units are slated for five acres between Euclid ave. and the Chicago and North Western railway tracks as soon as plan commission approval is given.

THE LATEST addition at Miner and Salem will be a two-story building housing 24 one-bedroom, five two-bedroom and four efficiency apartments.

The $240,000 project will feature a community recreation room, utility room, and outside balconies in front and rear, according to the builder, Ludwig Marcy Construction company of Barrington.

Go West, Horace

The illusion that times that were are better than those that are, has probably pervaded all ages. — Horace Greeley.

Pigeon Populations Pique Presbyterians

Lutheran or Presbyterian?

Arlington Heights' pigeon-plagued Presbyterians are prayerfully awaiting word this week from the Illinois Pigeon Exterminating company.

The parish's pigeon population and accompanying droppings have reached the point where someone has to go, and the congregation prefers to stay.

To add insult to injury, the pigeons aren't all Presbyterians. In fact, it was the demolition of St. Peter Lutheran church a few months ago that added noticeably to the First Presbyterian's fowl flock.

"WE'VE HAD pigeon problems ever since the new church was built. We're not certain our new ones came from St. Peter, but when they tore down their steeple we noticed a sizeable jump in our number," notes Harry Bierma, church trustee in charge of the pigeon exterminating committee.

No one has been able to determine why the Lutheran pigeons switched their affiliation when there are several other fine Lutheran churches in the area. In fact, it was hoped, by the Presbyterians at least, that last week's Reformation Week might see the departure of some of the pigeons back to a Lutheran church. But steeples being less numerous these days, the pigeons didn't budge from their Presbyterian spire.

So it's feared the exterminating company is the only answer. The company estimates there are about 100 pigeons which it must trap and then gas. The company was recommended to the church by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, says Bierma.

Indignant

A formal resolution protesting the state of disrepair of Chicago and North Western railway crossings in Arlington Heights was passed by the village board this week. The village attorney was instructed to deliver a copy of the resolution to the railway.

Minute's Silence For Veterans Day

"One minute of silence" will conclude a 20-minute observance of Veterans Day in which all veteran groups of Arlington Heights will participate.

Beginning at 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 11, participants will congregate at the Arlington Heights village hall.

From the village hall, they will march to the little park at Davis and Dunton, to meet under the flagpole.

At this point, the Rev. Adelbert Mayr, CSV, a teacher at the Viatorian Novitiate, 1212 E. Euclid, and a former U.S. Navy chaplain in the south Pacific during World War I, will offer the opening prayer.

SECOND LT. James Carr, 45th brigade, U.S. Army Nike base, Arlington Heights, will give the principal talk, and then a salute will be fired in honor of the war dead.

Taps will be played and at its conclusion, one minute of silence will be observed at 11 a.m. to conclude the program.

Carl Luettschwager, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 981, sponsors of the event, has invited all villagers to participate.

Village Asks For Rehearing

Arlington Heights trustees this week heard the village manager recommend annexation of a proposed $5 million resort motel into the village, and then passed a resolution seeking a hearing before the county zoning board of appeals or whether or not land should be rezoned for the project.

Announcement last week of plans for the ultra modern 200 room three-story motel to be located on the Northwest hwy. across from the Arlington Park race track caught village officials by surprise. They claimed they received no notice of the zoning board of appeals hearing on the project that was held October 21 in Palatine's village hall. Petitioners are seeking rezoning of the 40 acre site from farming to restricted business.

SEVERAL TRUSTEES indicated this week they were neither for or against the proposed project that would include a restaurant, shops, a health club, a 500 seat convention hall, tennis courts, year around swimming pool, 32 bowling alleys, a drive-in theatre, and a portable ski and toboggan slide plus many other recreation features.

"I'm not saying I'd protest rezoning of land for the project, but I want the opportunity to study the plans and express myself before the zoning board of appeals," said Trustee Eugene Schlickman.

Trustee Bob Bukowski raised the question of how the project would effect the village's water supply. Mayor Edward Carlisle noted additional traffic problems might be created by the resort.

THE OVERALL feeling of the trustees, however, was one of "let's find out more about the project."

Village Manager L. A. Hanson told board members that after talking with the secretary of the county zoning board of appeals, he felt the village should attempt to bring the project within its boundaries. He noted that not only the assessed valuation of the project but the sales tax revenue would bolster the village's economy.

The land is owned and would be developed by Thomas F. Seay, 10324 Longwood dr., Chicago, head of Seay and Thomas, Inc., realtors and mortgage bankers.

IN COMMENTING on the project Seay said, "We hope to make this project one that will be an asset to Arlington Heights, by bringing business to its merchants and giving that area additional recreational facilities.

"Our plans also include a private club on the premises for people in the community, with full dining facilities, in addition to a bar and other club complements."

Residents To Plead For 'Out'

Approximately 90 Arlington Heights residents have decided it's worth $5 a year for the next 18 years to get themselves out of the Mt. Prospect park district, provided that district cooperates.

This is the sum that the home owners would be obligated to pay the Mt. Prospect park district should that district approve their petition for disannexation, which would leave them in the Arlington Heights park district only.

It seems the doubly taxed property owners have two alternatives to free themselves of the Mt. Prospect park district. One is a petition for disannexation which would be submitted to the Mt. Prospect district. The other is a friendly suit for disannexation.

SHOULD THE Mt. Prospect district grant the petition the residents would still be obligated to pay contractual indebtedness to the district, namely a bond issue which is to run for 18 years, and would cost each home owner a total of $90.

Should a friendly suit be filed and won by the home owners, they would not have to pay any bonded indebtedness.

Hoping that the Mt. Prospect park district will cooperate, the home owners are going ahead with plans to file a disannexation petition, according to Russell Conklin, Greenview Estates Civic association president.

THE MAJORITY of those affected are members of the association, which is located in northeast Arlington Heights.

Should the Mt. Prospect district refuse the petition, a friendly suit could then be filed. Should the suit be lost then the last resort would be disannexation from the Arlington Heights park district.

The harrassed residents, however, would like to remain in the Arlington Heights park district because they live within the village.

Top Press Awards Go To Herald

The Arlington Heights Herald won five major press awards Friday in the 1959 Illinois newspaper contest sponsored by the Illinois Press Association.

The Herald was judged first place in general excellence, first place in best feature story, first place in classified advertising, third place in best typography and makeup, and honorable mention in advertising excellence.

OTHER PADDOCK Publications newspapers which won awards were the Wheeling Herald, Bensenville Register, and Addison Register. Altogether, the chain received nine awards.

A total of 125 Illinois newspapers were entered in this year's contest. Details on the editorial page this week.

Halloween Was Eggasperating

"Quiet," said Arlington Heights police of Halloween. And it was that, almost eggzactly.

The spooks had little to say about their activities on All Saints eve. But villagers complained here and there, with a trifle of eggzaggeration, about a flurry of activity.

Said one Scarsdale housewife: "A carload of boys descended upon my house at 10:11 p.m. and threw eggs at my house."

Replied three boys, when picked up by police: "We were attacked by eggs thrown at us by a group of girls. They also threw pumpkins. We went to a delicatessen, bought a dozen eggs and, coming back, we threw the eggs at the girl's house."

Who egged on whom? police wanted to know. It was an eggsingency they had not counted on.

ELSEWHERE, roughly about 10:13 p.m., two minutes after the first complaint found the ear of police, a second one arrived.

Alert bluecoats stopped a car in Scarsdale, armed with—yes, eggzactly that. Protesting boys argued that the dozen eggs in their car was the result of their having been egged. Not to be out-splattered, they had gone home in search of the gooey henfruit.

But more dirty work was afoot than appeared on the surface. In the car of the first group of culprits apprehended by police, a can of black enamel spray paint was found. It was obviously a weapon of some considerable potential.

AND, AFTER interrogation, one of the boys admitted his guilt. Yes, he confessed, he had painted the significant word "CARDS" on the basketball court at Miner junior high school.

The group of boys were condemned to clean up both the "egged" house and the painted court.

And so passed another "quiet" Halloween.

Sidelights Of Arlington Heights

Dorothy Meyer, CL 3-2298 Elsie Jedd, CL 3-5982

Kids being the masquerade-party lovers they are and Halloween being just made for masquerading there were kids of all ages in costumes of all descriptions at Halloween parties throughout Arlington Heights over the bewitchery weekend. Arlington Heighters of course did other things than dress up like someone else and all in all it was a busy goodbye-October hello-Novembrrrr time.

Nancy Hey celebrated her "firsteenth" birthday Halloween and had 13 girl guests to go with her newly acquired 13 years at an early afternoon cookout in the Hey backyard, 441 S. Highland. The girls worked off the luncheon with a trick-or-treat forage that worked up an appetite that was appeased by a return to Nancy's home and the refreshment table.

Brooks Bauske was six years old October 27 and waited until Halloween to celebrate with 15 neighborhood and school freinds at a costume party in the home of his parents, the Norman Bauskes, 102 E. Orchard. Although the party had a spookday atmosphere, Brooks requested a special non-Halloween birthday cake "like a rocket, please Mom?" Mom obliged with a ready-to-go confection poised on a launching pad, birthday candle burning brightly in the nose cone.

Brooks' guests started the count-down at six and blasted off with the Happy Birthday song at zero. Games and prizes were enjoyed as always although the real fun came when Mr. Bauske showed movies of Brooks' past birthday parties. Many of the guests Saturday saw themselves at age two or three and couldn't believe it.

As a finale Mr. Bauske ran the films backwards and the Bauske basement sounded like the local theater during a cartoon matinee. The only one present at 102 E. Orchard who remained aloof to the hilarity was a new little Bauske named Brice, 13 days old.

ANOTHER BOO party that celebrated a birthday, too, was Diane Thuerk's Friday night. Diane was ten years old October 27 and 10 girls in Halloween costumes had spooky, creepy fun with games and practiced black magic with the refreshments at the Thuerk home, 737 S. Walnut.

The Robert McAllister basement at 725 S. Walnut became a spook house for the dusk-into-dark hours Saturday afternoon when 10-year-old Joan celebrated her November 4 birthday a few days early. Sixteen costumed friends of the birthday girl were just a bit startled to be greeted by a Joan-sized Dalmatian until the spotted canine began giggling like Joan too. After the party Joan the Dalmatian and her friends began their trick or treat tour of the neighborhood.

Judy Molkup was nine years old Halloween and had an after-trick or treat time party at 7:30 Saturday night. The Molkup basement, appropriately decorated, held 11 guests also appropriately decorated and three of the girls left 1025 S. Vail with prizes for their costumes. Susan and Patty Hoffman as a beatnik and the Mad Hatter won the most-unique prize and Susan Mallon in her Hawaiian garb won a prize for the prettiest costume. Ghosty games and just-right refreshments made Halloween 1959 one of Judy's best birthdays.

CINDY VINBERG and Debbie Helmbold were co-hostesses Saturday night at a Halloween costume party for 11 girl friends in the Vinberg home, 825 S. Chestnut. Guests entered by way of the basement door where a skeleton dangled and danced, daring the girls to come in. Just past the bony apparition they were spun around three times and told to wait for the green light. When it flashed on it shone eerily on a horror mask. Nine-and-10 year old girls can squeal pretty good and no one knows yet if the poor old spooks scared the girls or the girls scared the poor old spooks.

Games designed for little witchlets ghostesses were enjoyed, then more squeals sounded in the middle of the refreshment hour when Little Red Riding Hood and a huge dog appeared in the shadows of the basement by courtesy of and pre-arrangement with Vinberg friends. To make the night completely perfect the going home hour wasn't until 10 o'clock!

Burton and Bonnie Boman, 739 S. Evergreen, had an afternoon costume party Saturday for 13 friends in the Boman basement where guests warmed up for trick-or-treat time with games and everything. "Everything" including good old-fashioned dunking for apples until a guest or two got carried away and dunked head and shoulders in pursuit of the fruit. Other games with less elusive prizes and traditional Halloween refreshments helped dry out the determined dunkers and everyone left happy for their individually planned loot bag course.

MARSHA MASNY'S Halloween party was Friday night so that her guests had Saturady free for neighborhood bell-ringing and candy-collecting. A dozen 9 and 10-year-old ghosts, black cats, witches and other assorted spirits materialized at the Masny household, 630 S. Evergreen, after dark to play games and make refreshments mysteriously disappear.

There's nothing worse than a cold and hungry haunt on Halloween so Luann Schmidt had a thawing-out party for 15 girl friends after they had all made the neighborhood rounds with their loot bags Saturday night. Hot chocolate at the Schmidt home, 724 S. Chestnut, began the warming process and games completed it.

Little spooks' parents like to have their "jollies" on Halloween too and Luann's parents were ghost and ghostess at a costume party for 35 neighborhood friends Friday night. If prizes had been planned for originality, 35 would have been needed, the hostess reported later, recounting how her guest list included beatniks, a French aritst, a Japanese dignitary and his wife, Charlie Weaver and Elsa Maxwell.

THE JOSEPH Vonckx basement was the destination Saturday night of 50 residents of the 1000 block of S. Dunton and other friends of Mr. and Mrs. Vonckx, all underwriters of a costume party for Halloween celebration purposes. A unique assortment of Indians, beatniks and space people met, danced and had happy hysterics; Little Red Riding Hood and her favorite wolf were there, too, and joined the rest in guessing which couple came as an organ grinder and his monkey. They were finally identified although it was not disclosed which half of the couple was the monkey. All the monkeyshines at 1029 S. Dunton ended with late refreshments.

The R. W. LeMeillieurs, 1009 W. Miner, were among 60 Arlington Heights and Palatine friends and relatives at a Halloween party in the Palatine home of Mrs. LeMeillieur's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Cunningham, Saturday night. Costumes were optional with about half the crowd picking up the option and the Halloween decor was in evidence upstairs, downstairs, indoors and outside where the party started.

In issuing invitations the host and hostess avoided reminding anyone that October 31 is also their wedding anniversary but everyone remembered the Cunningham wedding a year ago on Halloween. The multitude of paper anniversary gifts were all the just-for-laughs kind and added to the general hilarity of the doubly happy holiday. Mrs. LeMeillieur and daughter, Cherie, assisted the hostess with serving the Halloween-inspired buffet dinner.

The Carl Reitmeyers, 227 S. Mitchell, returned Sunday after a week in Ingalls, Mich. visiting the senior Mrs. Reitmeyer. Ingalls is in the Upper Peninsula where a fresh snowfall greeted the Reitmeyers with a foretaste of winter.

MR. AND MRS. Roy Hughes, 6 W. Grove, enjoyed the weekend Parents day activities at Milliken university in Decatur where Jim is in his sophomore year. A program outlining the extra-curricular as well as the curricular schedule followed a 9:45 breakfast Saturday and dinner at the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house with Jim preceded the afternoon football game. After watching Milliken beat Lake Forest, Mr. and Mrs. Hughes were supper guests of the parents of Jim's "little brother."

The previous weekend Mr. and Mrs. Hughes accompanied Mrs. Hughes' mother, Mrs. Edith Hill, to Omaha, Ill. where she will spend the winter with an old friend and former school mate.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stein, 1414 W. Oakton, spent the weekend in Decatur where Mr. Stein attended a council for exceptional children.

MRS. STANLEY Myers, 403 E. Eastman, weekended at the home of her parents, the W. J. Leeks in Amboy and attended the consistory in Freeport as the ladies day guest of her mother and her sister, Mrs. William Jacob Mendota.

Rev. O. C. Taege, 206 W. Wing, was the guest preacher Sunday at the centennial celebration of the Zion Lutheran church of Bonfield, Ill., where he served as minister from 1923 to 1934 just prior to his retirement from the ministry. Joining Rev. and Mrs. Taege in Bonfield for the occasion were their sons, Ralph of Arlington Heights and Richard of Evanston with their families, and a daughter Gertrude, who makes her home with them and another daughter and her family, the Walter C. Kehes of Arlington Heights. Accompanying the Taeges was a local friend, Mrs. Peggy Wilson.

Thursday, Nov. 5, 1959

The Louis Schomburg family, 305 S. Evergreen, attended the Ice Follies in Chicago Sunday, then lunched in the Indian room of the Blackhawk restaurant. Lynn particularly enjoyed talking with Chief White Eagle of the Iroquois tribe who gave her many valuable additions to her knowledge of Indian lore and craft.

WEEKEND guests at the David Gleckler home, 1212 N. Dunton, were Mr. Gleckler's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Gleckler of Sherman, Tex. Dr. Gleckler is this week attending a medical convention in Chicago while his wife, a student of Greek history and language, is visiting the University of Chicago. The junior Mrs. Gleckler joined her mother-in-law for a day of sightseeing in Chicago Tuesday.

The Paul Vanderhoevens, 402 N. Belmont, recently returned from a 2-week stay at Myrtle Beach, S. C., where evidences of the latest hurricane were still to be seen. The damage was not severe, however, in the estimation of Mrs. Vanderhoever, a east-coaster who reports, "You get used to hurricanes living on the Atlantic."

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leth, 503 S. Evergreen, spent the weekend in Urbana where they visited their daughter and family, the Ted Lisecs.

Overnight guests in the home of Mrs. Stella Standish, 503 N. Walnut, were her son-in-law's parents, the Robert Hillmans, en route from a visit with the junior Hillmans in Hopkins, Minn. to their home in Sparta, Mich.

MRS. WILLIAM Mees of Oshkosh, Wis., left for California a week ago Saturday after a 2-week visit here with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Youngberg, 500 S. Dunton. The 81-year-young Mrs. Mees went to the west coast by jet and has since notified her daughter that super-sonic speed has her firm stamp of approval. Mrs. Mees will winter in Los Altos with her son, D. H. Mees.

Barbara Ekberg was eight years old October 27 and had her out-door barbecue party plans reversed by the weather. Six classmates nevertheless enjoyed indoor feast and fun after school Tuesday in the Ekberg home, 2108 N. Chestnut.

Of Arlington Heights

Dorothy Meyer, CL 3-2298 Elsie Jedd, CL 3-5982

Kids being the masquerade-party lovers they are and Halloween being just made for masquerading there were kids of all ages in costumes of all descriptions at Halloween parties throughout Arlington Heights over the bewitchery weekend. Arlington Heighters of course did other things than dress up like someone else and all in all it was a busy goodbye-October hello-Novembrrrr time.

Nancy Hey celebrated her "firsteenth" birthday Halloween and had 13 girl guests to go with her newly acquired 13 years at an early afternoon cookout in the Hey backyard, 441 S. Highland. The girls worked off the luncheon with a trick-or-treat forage that worked up an appetite that was appeased by a return to Nancy's home and the refreshment table.

Brooks Bauske was six years old October 27 and waited until Halloween to celebrate with 15 neighborhood and school freinds at a costume party in the home of his parents, the Norman Bauskes, 102 E. Orchard. Although the party had a spookday atmosphere, Brooks requested a special non-Halloween birthday cake "like a rocket, please Mom?" Mom obliged with a ready-to-go confection poised on a launching pad, birthday candle burning brightly in the nose cone.

Brooks' guests started the count-down at six and blasted off with the Happy Birthday song at zero. Games and prizes were enjoyed as always although the real fun came when Mr. Bauske showed movies of Brooks' past birthday parties. Many of the guests Saturday saw themselves at age two or three and couldn't believe it.

As a finale Mr. Bauske ran the films backwards and the Bauske basement sounded like the local theater during a cartoon matinee. The only one present at 102 E. Orchard who remained aloof to the hilarity was a new little Bauske named Brice, 13 days old.

ANOTHER BOO party that celebrated a birthday, too, was Diane Thuerk's Friday night. Diane was ten years old October 27 and 10 girls in Halloween costumes had spooky, creepy fun with games and practiced black magic with the refreshments at the Thuerk home, 737 S. Walnut.

The Robert McAllister basement at 725 S. Walnut became a spook house for the dusk-into-dark hours Saturday afternoon when 10-year-old Joan celebrated her November 4 birthday a few days early. Sixteen costumed friends of the birthday girl were just a bit startled to be greeted by a Joan-sized Dalmatian until the spotted canine began giggling like Joan too. After the party Joan the Dalmatian and her friends began their trick or treat tour of the neighborhood.

Judy Molkup was nine years old Halloween and had an after-trick or treat time party at 7:30 Saturday night. The Molkup basement, appropriately decorated, held 11 guests also appropriately decorated and three of the girls left 1025 S. Vail with prizes for their costumes. Susan and Patty Hoffman as a beatnik and the Mad Hatter won the most-unique prize and Susan Mallon in her Hawaiian garb won a prize for the prettiest costume. Ghosty games and just-right refreshments made Halloween 1959 one of Judy's best birthdays.

YESTERDAY'S MEDICINE,
TODAY'S COW FEED

A short time ago, people thought blackstrap molasses was effective treatment for anemia and rheumatism. Today we know better. We wouldn't think of relying on "home remedies" when we have so many fast-acting, reliable modern medications available to us. But remember—most medicines should be taken only upon the advice of your physician. The next time you're not feeling up to par, see your doctor first. Then, if he orders medication, come to us for quality prescription service.

'Wings over Jordan' Choir to Sing Here

A Negro choir of nine voices, bearing the name of the world's most renowned Negro choir, "Wings over Jodan," will make a personal appearance in concert in the educational building of St. John United Church of Christ, Arlington Heights, at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 13.

Due to hardships of constant travel, the original members of the choir, founded in 1937, have retired. However, choirs of nine voices each, bearing the name of "Wings over Jordann" and singing the same programs are touring the United States.

THE CHOIR units are on good will tours of the country to foster friendlier relations between America's dominant races, and to combat the influence of Communism in America as it affects the American Negro.

In answer to requests for personal appearance, the choirs have appeared in all the states, averaging over 50,000 miles a year, giving concerts night after night to audiences which have called the choirs "Ambassadors of Good Will."

The sponsors have expressed confidence that with this group's fame going ahead of them, the auditorium will be filled to capacity for the concert. There is no admission charge, but a free will offering will be taken. (A

Elk Grove Forest Preserve Named in Honor of Banker

A 3,000 acre addition to a six square mile forest preserve in Elk Grove township has been named in honor of the late Edward Eagle (Ned) Brown, prominent Chicago banker.

Adjoining Busse forest, the tract was officially designated the Ned Brown preserve by the county board. The two preserves lie north and south of Higgins road between Rohlwing and Arlington Heights roads (see map).

The name of the original section will remain Busse forest in honor of the late William Busse of Mt. Prospect, long-time county commissioner who died in 1955 at the age of 91.

A RESOLUTION naming recently acquired holdings in honor of Mr. Brown was presented on a recommendation of the forest preserve citizens' advisory committee.

Mr. Brown, who died August 24 at the age of 74, had been a member of the committee since its inception in 1927, and its chairman since 1937. He was chairman of the First National Bank of Chicago.

In a letter to the county board, Gilbert H. Scribner, Jr., the new committee chairman, said:

"We propose that you join us in tribute to Edward Eagle Brown, the man, and particularly his place in the history of the Cook county forest preserve district. We certainly admire his success in the national and international fields of finance, but our interest now is in expressing our affection inspired by his fidelity, loyalty and devotion to warm friendships and worthy causes, particularly the forest preserves.

"He was a member of the advisory committee to the board of forest preserve commissioners from the day of its inception on January 4, 1927 He became chairman in 1937, succeeding General Abel Davis. Ned Brown had a full sense and appreciation of the aesthetic and sociological values of the preserves. He greatly enjoyed his duties as advisory chairman and satisfied his love of the outdoors by spending much of his available time inspecting in his automobile, areas to be proposed for acquisition, areas under use, forest plantings and new developments. No other layman has ever had such intimate knowledge of what was going on in all parts of the district and its day to day changes.

"Ned Brown had much to do with the sense of direction, development of policies and perseverance in continuing land acquisition in the forest preserves. When the advisory committee was created in 1927 there were 25,000 acres of holdings which were increased to more than 45,000 acres largely through his efforts and quidance.

"He had a keen awareness and appreciation of the problems and attitudes of the elected officials that compose the board of forest preserve commissioners. The mutual respect that has marked the relationship of the commissioners to their advisory body emanates from this recognition of the political aspects and difficulties by Ned Brown." (B8

Study Use of Gas Tax for Sidewalks

The county board is awaiting a state opinion on whether gas tax funds may be spent for sidewalks where there are none along highways.

Motor fuel tax money now can be used for sidewalk construction under at least two conditions: (1) as part of new highway construction and (2) as part of rebuilding or widening of roads.

This is the report from William J. Mortimer, county highway superintendent. He's told county commissioners he intends to write state officials and "learn if the law can be interpreted to give us authority to use such funds for construction of sidewalks where none exist now along highways."

MORTIMER said he preumes that if the county can use its share of the gas tax for such purposes, then villages likewise can do so along roads and streets under their jurisdiction.

The problem of roads without sidewalks was brought up by Commissioner Charles F. Chaplin, who said that recent traffic fatalities in Northfield township near Glenview might have been prevented had sidewalks been available. He referred to the five children who were killed by autos in a four week period on roads without sidewalks.

Commissioner John J. Duffy, chairman of the finance committee, said serious consideration must be given for it appears to him that the county could be "laying itself open to many personal injury suits that can arise when people injure themselves while using the sidewalks."

MORTIMER said he preumes that if the county can use its share of the gas tax for such purposes, then villages likewise can do so along roads and streets under their jurisdiction.

The problem of roads without sidewalks was brought up by Commissioner Charles F. Chaplin, who said that recent traffic fatalities in Northfield township near Glenview might have been prevented had sidewalks been available. He referred to the five children who were killed by autos in a four week period on roads without sidewalks.

Commissioner John J. Duffy, chairman of the finance committee, said serious consideration must be given for it appears to him that the county could be "laying itself open to many personal injury suits that can arise when people injure themselves while using the sidewalks."

Syrian Princess Seeks New Life, Career in Suburbia

by DICK HOFFMANN

The mailbox at 221 Winston dr. in Palatine's Winston Park subdivision probably confounded the United States post office department for awhile; it's inscription is one which would appear strange to Western eyes.

It bears the legend: "Hussman — El-Attrache." Some knowledge of the occupants' background, however, dispels any mystery: El-Attrache is the maiden name of Dr. Lothar H. Hussman's Syrian wife, who is also a medical practitioner.

It is also a name known for centuries to the Druses, the fierce mountain warriors of the middle east. For Dr. Julia Hussman's family are the dynastic rulers of this Arab religious sect which has 11th century origins.

The Syrian princess, who intends to open a pediatrics practice at the medical center in the Elk Grove shopping center within the next month or so, has resided with her German husband at their Winston Park home for about two-and-a-half months now.

NEWEST resident is Karl Ludwig Hussman, who was born October 18. Little Karl's anticipated arrival postponed Julia's Elk Grove medical debut when other physicians started their practice did in conjunction with the shopping center opening October 15.

The Hussmans made headlines across the country when they married in April, 1958.

Newspapers frontpaged the story that the marriage meant violation of the Druse's religious taboo against marrying outside the faith, and that such unions have always brought violent death in the past to the breakers of the tradition.

The princess brother, Dr. Selim El-Attrache, who also married outside the faith (to an American girl) labeled the reports "exaggerations."

"OF COURSE, men are allowed more freedom," Mrs. Hussman admits. Prince Selim, an orthopedic surgeon who took his residency in Salt Lake City, met his wife at Wesley Memorial hospital in Chicago where she was a nurse, his sister says.

"My father wanted a boy and a girl who would study medicine," the Syrian princess pointed out, "only it didn't work out quite that way."

There are four other heirs. One brother is studying law in Paris; another is majoring in engineering at a college in Damascus; a sister is doing postgraduate work in pharmacy, a second sister is still in grade school.

Mrs. Hussman's father, Fauzi El - Attrache, Emir (Prince) 63, is a Paris, educated lawyer who fought the French for Druse independence for 11 years.

Now a part of Syria, Djebel Druse (mountain of the Druse) is home from the tribesmen who call themselves "the sword of freedom and liberty.'

The ruling El-Attrache family is representative of a marriage of church and state. Great priest (sheik) of the Druse religion which numbers 200,000 faithful living in Syria, Lebanon and Israel is Mrs. Hussman's uncle, on her mother's side, while political control stems from her father's side of the family. Her great-uncle, Sultan Pasha El-Attrache, who fought French occupation after World War I, heads the Druse.

"From my side of the family comes the tradition of fighting while my husband's family has a tradition of curing," Mrs. Hussman said, explaining that Lothar's family founded Bayer aspirin.

THE DRUSES, who won their independence in 1945 and joined Syria, practice a puritanical sort of religion, according to the princess.

"It combines elements of the Old Testament with Indian mysticism," she observed. "It's similar to the Mormon religion in this country,' she added, in its abstinence from cigarettes and alcohol, although she noted that "it is strictly monogamous in marriage."

Eighty per cent of her mother's relatives are tall, blond, blue-eyed and generally Nordic in appearance, said the small, dark-eyed pediatrician. It has been theorized that these Druses are descendants of the Crusaders "although they would resent it if you suggested it," Mrs. Hussman said.

Druse women, however, have the right to vote and do not keep their face covered by a veil as in other parts of the middle east. Their costume includes a fez-appearing headdress embroidered with gold-studded settings and a cloth veil which flanks the sides of the face, the princess added.

Dr. Hussman and his wife met at Illinois Masonic hospital where he had to complete a second internship (he was a surgeon in Germany) and she had come for her residency after interning at St. Mary's hospital, Wausaw, Wis.

"I didn't speak English well, and he spoke French, so we started going out together; I'd never dated before," the Druse princess said.

DR. HUSSMAN, who had distinguished himself on the Russian front as a German officer during World War II and was hospitalized for wounds twice ('An officer had a better chance of getting decorated than the common soldier,' he says), came to this country in 1950, joining his uncle, Carl Hussman, an engineer.

He is a general practitioner, with offices in Palatine and Chicago. Dr. Hussman attended Heidelberg University while the princess graduated from the French Jesuit school of medicine, Beirut, Lebanon.

They feel that their profession offers them "so many things in common." Of the suburbs, Mrs. Hussman spoke of the "warmth" they've encountered compared to big city indifference.

While European treatment and technique are different from U. S. medical practices, most physicians look to the United States as a focal point for research and advancement, the couple feel, adding that American patients can see more of a need for preventive medicine and are more familiar with medical terminology than their European counterparts.

The Druse princess' marriage has postponed plans for opening of an 80-bed hospital in the Djebel Druse, which she had intended to operate with her brother. "I was going to take women and children - the infant mortality rate is very high - and I couldn't have just stuck to one speciality."

THE 28-YEAR old pediatrician has managed to visit her royal family on each of the four years she has spent in this country, and she and her husband write to the family regularly. But she and Lothar, 37, are reticent to speak at length on the subject of Druse religious taboos because of the political implications it poses. "We don't want to say anything which would offend anyone,' her husband explains.

Opposing Factions Ask Incorporation

The struggle for control of the destiny of unincorporated Barrington township now is in court as two opposing factions filed petitions Monday to set up their own village governments.

One group wants to incorporate as the village of South Barrington and has the blessing of Barrington Hills, a young village that has the strictest zoning regulations in Cook county.

The other faction would incorporate as the village of Barrington Countryside. In its territory are property owners favoring a minimum of one acre residential zoning rather than the minimum tract size of five acres found in Barrington Hills.

VALIDITY OF the petitions for incorporation has been raised and arguments on that question have been scheduled for 10 a. m. November 9 by County Judge Otto Kerner.

Areas involved in the two petitions include some sections that overlap in the southeast end of the township.

Attorneys representing the two factions filed the petitions at the same time—at 9:02 a.m. But the group seeking incorporation under the name of South Barrington was marked No. 2 on the court's motion book and the other as No. 4 on the same book.

New 'Friends'

Tremendous enthusiasm for contributing to the scholarship fund of the Chicago Junior school in Elgin was expressed by the group of Suburbanite Friends after a recent visit to the school campus which included a student-conducted tour of the grounds and buildings and a brief address by William Holford, superintendent of the school.

This newest of the many Friends groups in the Chicago area plans to raise money without staging ticket-selling benefits. Instead the members will work on such projects as the Rineglas transfer process to produce distinctive home decorating and Christmas gift items. A demonstration of this handiwork will be featured at the November 10 meeting of Suburbanite Friends in the home of Mrs. F. Raymond Bowen, 526 Elmore, Park Ridge.

A PREVIEW OF THE Arlingtone Chorus' Ninth Annual "Night of Harmony" shows Margie Kamin of Arlington Heights ogled by a quartet made up of Stan Myers, John Allen, Slater Stevens and Jack Musich. Appearing with them on the same program will be three popular barbershop quartets and the Arlingtone Chorus. The show will be held in the Arlington high school auditorium on November 7 at 8:15 p. m.

The calendar will be turned back 50 years this coming Saturday evening, when the Arlington Barbershop Singing Chorus brings to Arlington Heights its Ninth Annual "Night of Harmony."

On this evening the Arlington high school auditorium will be filled with the songs that were popular when Dad was courting Ma and are still popular today. The gas-lit streets of by-gone days, the guys standing on the corner and harmonizing a pretty tune about the girls they love, and the carefree days of the gay 90's will again be brought back to Arlington Heights for one night.

Q. Who goes first down the aisle of a motion picture theater, the man or the woman?

A. The woman precedes. And unless she is with her husband, fiance or someone she knows real well, she should turn to him and ask, "Is this all right?" This gives him a chance—should he be near or farsighted, to suggest a seat that is closer or father away.

Q. If a knife has not been used during a meal, should it be picked up at the end of the meal and placel with the fork across the plate so that it will be taken out when the plate is removed?

A. No; it should remain where it is on the table.

Railway Operates New Suburban Cars

New suburban cars delivered to date have resulted in 11 new "push-pull" commuter trains now operating each weekday on the Chicago and North Western railway, according to Charles F. Stewart, general passenger traffic manager of the railway.

Stewart explained that 14 of the new "push-pull" coaches delivered to the railway by Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company out of a total of 36 on order are now in regular service. They are being utilized in 11 rush-hour and mid-day trains to and from the suburbs each day. The 11 trains have a seating capacity for almost 10,000 persons.

STEWART SAID that the new coaches are being delivered to the railroad at the rate of about two a week with the last one scheduled to be received shortly after the first of the year. He explained that complete delivery will result in approximately 25 daily "push-pull" trains.

North Western's new suburban trains, the first of their kind in the country, feature operation in either direction without the usual switching of locomotives to the head end. On outbound runs from Chicago, locomotives pull the trains in the usual way. Inbound from the suburbs, the locomotives push the coaches of the trains which are controlled by enginemen in specially-designed cabs in the leading coach of each train. The high-capacity, air-conditioned coaches seat 161 passengers in two levels of seats.

The "push-pull" coaches have electric heat instead of the traditional steam heat. Alternating current rather than direct current is used for heat, lights and other car appliances. For these reasons conventional coaches, including the earlier models of double-deckers, will not be mixed with the new coaches on the bi-directional trains. As funds become available, the earlier models of double-deckers will be converted to "push-pull" coaches.

Stewart said "push-pull" trains will operate on all three suburban divisions of the railroad and are being assigned for maximum utility. The new 36-car fleet represents an investment by the railroad of almost $6,000,000. When all are in service, they will have replaced from 70 to 80 old conventional coaches.

Set Lecture On Science And Health

How to apply God's hearing power to solve problems of everyday living will be the topic of a public leacture to be given in Barrington Saturday evening, Nov. 7, at 8 p.m., by Paul Stark Seeley of Portland, Ore.

Seeley, a member of the Christian Science board of lectureship, will speak in Hough street school auditorium, 310 S. Hough st., under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Barrington. His subject will be "Christian Science: Christianity in Action." The lecture is free, and local members have invited the public to attend.

HE HAS been prominent in the Christian Science movement for many years. He has served as associate editor of the Christian Science religious periodicals, and as president of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. He has lectured to audiences throughout the world.

A member of the Bar in New York and Oregon, he is a graduate of Harvard Law School and Princeton university. Prior to devoting his full time to the practice of Christian Science, he was associated with an engineering firm in the northwest.

National Guard Seeks Young Men

National guard units training on local Nike missile sites of the north and northwest suburbs are looking for interested young men to fill job positions of the 1st Missile Battalion 202d Arty. Current plans are to interest young men in applying for these job vacancies and fulfill their reserve obligation through the Reserve Forces act six month training program and be employed upon completion.

The commanding officer of the First Missile battalion, Lt. Col. Julius Schwartz, states that this training will consist of a basic training phase conducted at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., and an advanced individual training phase conducted at Ft. Bliss, Texas, to qualify as missile crewman.

Some men in the unit are presently attending courses of instruction at the Guided Missile school at Ft. Bliss, the artillery school at Ft. Sill, Okla., the engineer school at Ft. Belvoir, Va. and the army medical school at Ft. Sam Houston, Texas.

All trainees will assume responsibilities at the missile sites. Other guardsmen are presently receiving training on weekends at these sites. At each site a small crew of national guardsmen will be employed as civilian technicians to maintain the equipment in an operational status and to train the national guardsmen who attend regular drills conducted on weekends. These civilian employees salaries start in excess of $300 per month with regular periodic increases.

Interested individuals were urged to contact national guard personnel for further information at the Libertyville site by calling NEwton 4-3382, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, or the battalion headquarters at 5917 N. Broadway, Chicago, Ill., LOngbeach 1-9182.

Railway Operates New Suburban Cars

New suburban cars delivered to date have resulted in 11 new "push-pull" commuter trains now operating each weekday on the Chicago and North Western railway, according to Charles F. Stewart, general passenger traffic manager of the railway.

Stewart explained that 14 of the new "push-pull" coaches delivered to the railway by Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company out of a total of 36 on order are now in regular service. They are being utilized in 11 rush-hour and mid-day trains to and from the suburbs each day. The 11 trains have a seating capacity for almost 10,000 persons.

Suburban Drivers Lose Licenses

Suspended were the licenses of Frank Harris, 157 E. Dennis, Wheeling, and Thomas D. Henry, 909 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, both for having incurred three violations each.

Retarded Children Tag Day Is Slated

Countryside association for Retarded Children is again cooperating with National Association for Retarded children in the annual drive for funds. The local tag day will be held this Friday, November 6.

This drive helps the National Association in their research projects as well as the local school building fund.

The Countryside association conducts the Countryside Farm School which serves all retarded children in the Northwest suburban area. Due to increasing enrollment and the fact that there are a number of teenagrs now attending the school, a remodeling and building program is in progress in which everyone may have a part by his contributions on this tag day.

A NEW WORKSHOP is being finished in which the teenage group will do weaving, basket work and other suitable crafts. A new mud room and office have been added to the main school building.

It is hoped that last year's record will be topped this year, as the need is even greater at this time. All ladies helping with this tag day have volunteered their services, and the association wishes to take this opportunity to thank them for this help, without which it would be impossible to conduct this annual event.

The annual Fun Fair at Wilson school will be held Saturday, Nov. 14, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the multi-purpose room. This is believed to be the best fair Wilson has ever staged. Among the attractions will be bakery, handi-craft, old toy and white elephant booths.

Refreshments will be available, portraits will be taken, children will have games to play, movies to see and Mr. Pockets will be present, in whose clown suit prizes will be found. Parents may do their Christmas shopping for toys.

MR. AND MRS. Owen Laughlin, 1513 N. Hickory, are spending the winter months in Arizona and in their home are three young career girls. Claire Sarff of Pekin, Judy Hvam of Milwaukee and Maureen Schumaker of Arlington Heights recently moved in and hope to weather Wilson's winter storms. Claire is beginning her second year of teaching physical education at the Central elementary school, Mt. Prospect, while Judy teaches fourth grade at Fairview school, also in Mt. Prospect. Marueen is a commercial artist for the General Telephone Co. in Des Plaines. A welcome is extended by Wilson residents.

Jack Fiorito, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Fiorito, Greenwood dr., celebrated his seventh birthday Halloween night. A buffet supper was served to relatives from Chicago.

Another Halloween birthday was celebrated a day late by Bruce Bauer, son of the Sheldon Bauers, 213 Ridge rd. Twenty-five relatives from Chicago and Forest Lake helped celebrate Bruce's third birthday with a special dinner.

Leaving their husbands at home to baby-sit, Mrs. Donna Stark and Mrs. Mary Baumer enjoyed an evening at the theater November 2. After the show and a hot cup of coffee, Mrs. Baumer was ready to go home and help her husband with his accounting homework, and Mrs. Stark, to listen to the day's news of the fire station.

Tad Daly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Daly, 200 Waverly rd., returned home from Evanston hospital October 23. He underwent eye surgery the previous week. Three-year-old Tad is almost fully recovered now.

William Lee, 210 N. Pine, celebrated his birthday last Saturday with his wife, Dorothy, and three children. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Lee of Wheeling gave a big birthday dinner for him in their home Sunday.

Bill Doering, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Doering, 202 N. Pine, spent Halloween weekend with his parents. Bill is attending the Michigan college of mining, Houghton, Mich., and returned Sunday afternoon to resume classes.

Herb Grams left Wednesday for San Diego, where he is stationed in the air force. Herb had a 20-day leave, which he spent with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Grams, 208 Ridge rd.

Mrs. Charles Toneman, 109 E. Palatine rd., returned home Sunday, after spending two weeks with her mother, Mrs. Sarah Dolan, who was seriously ill in Bos Cobel, Wis. Mrs. Toneman's sister, Mrs. Joseph Koehler of Chicago, was also there during her mother's illness.

Mrs. Dolan died October 25 and funeral services were held October 28 in Bos Cobel. Mr. Toneman, Mr. Koehler and James Koehler attended the funeral. Mrs. Dolan had spent her winters in Wilson Community for 35 years. Sympathy wishes are extended to the two families.

Suburban Drivers Lose Licenses

Two Northwest suburban motorists found their drivers' licenses suspended recently by Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier as one driver was given a probationary permit for violations.

Suspended were the licenses of Frank Harris, 157 E. Dennis, Wheeling, and Thomas D. Henry, 909 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, both for having incurred three violations each.

Elmer Zapletal, 419 Drury lane, Barrington, was given a probationary permit.

Retarded Children Tag Day Is Slated

Countryside association for Retarded Children is again cooperating with National Association for Retarded children in the annual drive for funds. The local tag day will be held this Friday, November 6.

This drive helps the National Association in their research projects as well as the local school building fund.

The Countryside association conducts the Countryside Farm School which serves all retarded children in the Northwest suburban area. Due to increasing enrollment and the fact that there are a number of teenagrs now attending the school, a remodeling and building program is in progress in which everyone may have a part by his contributions on this tag day.

A NEW WORKSHOP is being finished in which the teenage group will do weaving, basket work and other suitable crafts. A new mud room and office have been added to the main school building.

It is hoped that last year's record will be topped this year, as the need is even greater at this time. All ladies helping with this tag day have volunteered their services, and the association wishes to take this opportunity to thank them for this help, without which it would be impossible to conduct this annual event.

Mutt Show November 14

Arlington Heights children will get a chance to exhibit their dogs at the park district Mutt Show to be held November 14 at Recreation park. The show will be similar to the Pet Parade held last spring, and dogs of all shapes, sizes and appearances can be entered.

Several prizes will be awarded in unannounced catagories of appearance. The secret contests will give each child's pet a chance to be a winner regardless of breed. An announced prize will be given to the dog which does the best trick.

The Mutt Show is not a purebred dog show. It is a recreation activity in which children may enjoy showing their pet regardless of breed, size, or variety of ancestry. The dogs will be exhibited on the tennis courts with each animal tied to the fence. In case of rain, the show will be held on November 21.

ALL DOGS entered must be on a leash led by a child large enough to handle the dog. The dog must wear a collar or harness with a current village rabies innoculation tag. The park district will not admit dogs which appear vicious or unduly excited by the other dogs. Dogs not entered in the show will not be permitted in the park.

The park district does not assume responsibility for any injury or property damage caused by the dogs and owners are cautioned that they are responsible for their pets at the Mutt Show. However, arrangements will be handled to reduce the possibility of any bites or dog fights to a minimum. (A

Faith Ladies Society To Hear Librarian

CHILDREN'S READING is the subject Miss Edith Lindsey of Arlington Heights Memorial library has chosen for her topic when she will address members of Faith Ladies society November 11. Miss Lindsey, who taught English at Arlington high school for many years, is shown here with Stanley Schinke, 1½, and one of the children's books that has recently been released. (A

The Ladies society of Faith Lutheran church will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday, Nov. 11, at 8 p.m. instead of the regular date because of the forthcoming Christmas sale sponsored by the society.

''Children's Reading' is the subject chosen by Miss Edith Lindsey, children's and young people's librarian at Arlington Heights Memorial library, when she addresses members and guests of the society, At that time she will display children's books recently released and offer suggestions on books to choose for Christmas giving.

Miss Lindsey, who has been librarian for the past three years, is as well known to parents as the children, who seek her advice on books, since she taught junior English at Arlington high school for many years and has taught many of the parents. Miss Lindsey received her bachelor of science degree at Ohio Wesleyan and did graduate work at the University of Mexico, Harvard university, and the University of Illinois.

HER HOBBIES of doll collecting and stamp collecting are often in evidence in the exhibits, which are changed monthly. The present exhibit has as its theme, National Book week.

Miss Lindsey says she has been building up a collection of the classics at the library. She receives about 100 new books per month. She is justifiably proud that about 900 books per month were read during the summer by the children and that now there is an increase of 2000 more books per month being read than was read last year at this time.

Refreshments will be served by the November committee following the meeting.

"HE IS BEST OF ALL MEN WHO FOLLOWS HIS ADVICE"*

It is amazing how many people are quick to offer health advice. Without any study or knowledge, they tell you what you should do or take when you are sick. Thoughtless friends are sincere but unfortunately there are many opportunists. Some door-to-door peddlers and sharp mail order promoters consider profits more important than the good their products will do.

Wise men know the only person capable of giving good advice about how to treat sickness is a physician. They also realize when they obtain medicines and health-aids from a pharmacist pledged to consider health more important than immediate great profits, they are always safer.

"HE IS BEST OF ALL MEN WHO FOLLOWS HIS ADVICE"*

It is amazing how many people are quick to offer health advice. Without any study or knowledge, they tell you what you should do or take when you are sick. Thoughtless friends are sincere but unfortunately there are many opportunists. Some door-to-door peddlers and sharp mail order promoters consider profits more important than the good their products will do.

Wise men know the only person capable of giving good advice about how to treat sickness is a physician. They also realize when they obtain medicines and health-aids from a pharmacist pledged to consider health more important than immediate great profits, they are always safer.

Comedy-Satire Billed

Comedy-satire, spiced with comments on modern man, forms the core of "The Madwoman of Chaillot," Arlington high school's fall play selection. The comedy-fantasy will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre, November 5, 6, and 7.

Jean Giraudoux, one of contemporary France's leading playwrights, wrote this play during the war, only a few months before his death.

Playing on the theme that the mad speak true, Giraudoux tells the story of a Parisienne who discovers that the world through which she dreams is being ravished by the greedy. Her solution to the problem is to rid the world of evil people by sending them down a great flight of steps leading nowhere. She succeeds in the course of a single afternoon.

PRESENTED ON Broadway a decade ago, "The Madwoman of Chaillot" surprised theatre people by becoming successful at the box office after being accused of being "caviar" to the general public. New York's Drama Critics' Circle recognized the "caviar" by pronouncing it the best foreign play of 1948-1949.

Appearing in the leading role of Countess Aurelia is Rosemary Barry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Barry, 409 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights. Rosemary appeared last season in "The Crucible." She also has had roles in "The Matchmaker," "A Tale of Chelm," and "The Yellow Jacket."

Wanda Wheaton plays an accomplice in the benevolent purge. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wheaton, 832 N. Chestnut, Arlington Heights.

THE PARTS of the other two madwomen are shared on alternate nights by four senior girls. Cast as Gabrielle, an innocent even in her later years, are Diane Waterman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Waterman, 225 Windsor dr., and Janet Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Wagner, 350 S. Newbury, both of Arlington Heights. As legal consultant in the trial of the villains are Judy Fruehling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Fruehling, 411 N. Lincoln ln., Arlington Heights; and Merigail Moreland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Moreland, 2207 Eastman, Rolling Meadows.

Jeff Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Clark, 921 Princeton, Arlington Heights, plays a ragpicker who expounds the author's love for man and his faith in mankind's ultimate goodness.

As the men who represent the source of infection are Wayne Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meyer, 226 S. Walnut, Arlington Heights, and Mark MacDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McDonald, 604 N. Wilshire, Arlington Heights.

OTHER PRINCIPAL parts are played by Karen Best, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Best, 1909 N. Chestnut, Arlington Heights; Jerry Greer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. O'Connor, 2102 Wren ln., Rolling Meadows; James Brunberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Brunberg, 404 N. Main, Mt. Prospect; Donald A. Parrillo, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Brace, 2601 Grouse ln., Rolling Meadows; Walter Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack S. Brown, 1017 N. Beverly ln., Arlington Heights; Ron Franzen, son of Mr. John M. Franzen, 311 N. # Virginia Terrace News

Kenny, son of Jackie and Joe Koenig, 1255 N. Chicago, celebrated his second birthday October 30, at a family dinner party. Singing happy birthday to him were his brothers, Bobby and Tommy, and sister, Pamela.

Major William Brown and his wife, Carolyn, 1211 N. Race, enjoyed a short, but pleasant visit from army acquaintances, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. B. H. Oehmke, from Albuquerque, N. M. An element of surprise was present, in that Mrs. Oehmke flew in from Rochester, N. Y., where she had been visiting friends, and was surprised to see her husband, who had decided to drive up and join in the visit with the Browns. The Oehmkes also enjoyed becoming reacquainted with Carolyn and Bill's son, Doug.

Joan and Harry Stevens and their son, John, 1618 Oakton, enjoyed a pleasant weekend at the Wagon Wheel lodge, Rockton, where they indulged in various activities, among them swimming, ice-skating and bowling. Naturally, they also enjoyed dining out and taking in a view of the shops and candy kitchen.

A Saturday afternoon theatre party was enjoyed by friends of Sue Anne, daughter of Polly and George Herbert, 1227 N. Chicago, who, after viewing the matinee feature at the Arlington theatre, returned to the Herbert home for the birthday celebration. On hand, too, was Myrtle's sister, Mrs. Al Grenier, Lily Lake, who assisted in keeping the party moving at a fast pace.

That evening a family dinner party was held in honor of Fran, who was celebrating his sixth birthday, and helping him to blow out the candles on his cake were Mrs. Grenier, his godmother, and brothers and sisters, George, John Rosemary and Susan.

November 3 another family dinner birthday party was held in the Lilly home, this time for son, John, who is now 5. Beside his brothers and sisters, his aunt and uncle, who are also his godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Sheber, and cousin, Timmy, from Chicago were on hand to help him celebrate.

Carol and Ronald Reed, 1216 N. Race, entertained several couples Saturday evening at a Halloween party, which included dunking for apples and other games. The couples, made up of Ronald's old school friends and business acquaintances, were appropriately costumed and all agreed it was a fun-filled night, reminding all of days past.

A dinner party was held Sunday at the Reeds, with guests of honor being their son, Bobby, who was 4 November 2. Prospect Camp Fire Girls and Blue Birds will conduct their sale within the village of Mt. Prospect on Wednesday, while Palatine district will set aside Saturday, Nov. 7 as Donut Day, when the girls will be seen about the village selling the familiar packages of glazed donuts.

Collier, Mrs. James Crane and Mrs. George Schneidler, provided transportation for the group.

Arlington Heights

Recent activities of the Okiciyapi Camp Fire Girls have enabled the fifth grade group to complete all the requirements of the Trail Seeker rank. The October 7 meeting was spent in making sequin studded pumpkin invitations, leaf name tags and table decorations for their October 14 mother-sponsor party. Sponsors honored were Mrs. Edward J. Lorenz and Mrs. George E. Owen.

Baking sessions held the day of the party in the home of Mrs. R. E. Chlupsa, Mrs. Felix Genevich, Mrs. George Lynch, and Mrs. E. Elliott Ormsbee provided the cookies, rolls and punch, prepared and served by the 20 members.

The girls introduced their mothers to Camp Fire life by singing two songs they had learned in recent meetings, and seven of the girls who attended Camp Tiyalaka in Westfield, Wis., sang a medley of camp songs. A Halloween skit and games completed the planned program. A pleasant note added to the friendship circle was the long awaited pinning ceremony when the new Okiciyapis received their Camp Fire pins from their moms.

FROM SHERWOOD

Mary Kit and John Rankin, 1106 N. Harvard, are back from a few days' visit in Kansas City, which was home to them before moving here.

Last Monday Doris Cornelius, 1108 Watling rd., had a luncheon for the ticket committee of the Lake Bluff Children's home service league. During the afternoon the ladies made further plans for the Roger Williams benefit concert to be held in the Evanston high school auditorium November 28. Anyone interested in tickets may call Doris at CL 3-9370.

There were two beatnik parties in Sherwood Saturday. Debbie Cornelius invited Mary Lou Jakubiec, Jean de Wilde and four other friends from school, who went out tricks and treating then returned to play games, dance, and partake in refreshments. The other party was at the Carl V. Palmers, 1023 W. Burgoyne, with Susie Cornelius and Karen Palmer acting as hostesses to 30 girls from the sophomore class. One girl outdid the others, dressed as a beatnik and some of the costumes more than provided entertainment for the evening.

When Jim Colvin, 1319 Watling, flew up to Fairibault, Minn. recently, to visit Steve at Shattuck school, he became very popular when he took Steve and a few of his friends out to dinner. This is Steve's last year at Shattuck.

The John A. Robertsons, 1110 W. Clarendon, went south for their vacation this year. They were gone two weeks. stopping off at such famous places as New Orleans, where they stopped at the many popular eating places, Point Clear, Ala., and Grand Isle in the Gulf of Mexico, where they got in a little fishing.

FROM RIDGE PARK

A note of sympathy is extended to the Tom McGough family, 906 N. Illinois, on the recent death of their infant daughter, Ann Terese.

Ralph Hostler won second prize for his costume at a Halloween party which he and Lu attended Saturday night in the home of friends in Elmhurst. One of the rules of the party was that everyone was to come in a costume of their own concoction, and Lu says some of them showed real imagination. There was dancing, games and refreshments during the evening.

Marybeth Myslo, daughter of the Eugene G. Myslos, 721 N. Kaspar, was 7 October 29, but the celebration began on the 24th, when 25 of her relatives came out for a buffet supper in her honor. The following Monday, Diane Erd, Sheri Wolf, Debbie Vogel, Jeannie Bulinski and Debbie's sisters helped celebrate again with another party. There were prizes to make the games more interesting and the ice cream and birthday cake needed nothing else to make it attractive.

On Sunday, Mrs. Myslo was godmother at the christening of her brother's baby, Steven Joseph Rurka, in Itasca, after which the family spent the balance of the day with the Rurkas.

Charlotte and Jim Ronayne took Noreen with them on their recent trip to Miami. They enjoyed the beaches from Silver Springs to St. Petersburg, where they visited Charlotte's aunt and uncle who are spending the winter there.

On Sunday afternoon they attended a benefit dress rehearsal of "Genufa" given by the American Opera Society of Chicago at the Opera house. A relatively new opera to the lyric, it was performed with all the criticisms, the mechanics and the repeat arias that went into making the public performance a success. The rehearsal was followed by a buffet and reception of the cast in the foyer of the building.

Get well wishes are sent to Jeannette Egli, daughter of the Charlie Eglis, 814 N. Patton, who is recuperating from a tonsillectomy. A first grader at Ridge School, Jeannette is trying to recuperate quickly for her return to school.

Prospect. The boys went on a scavenger hunt first and later bobbed for apples and played games before sitting down to doughnuts and cider.

Ridge Park was well represented at the two parties over the weekend at the Whitson's house. Teddy's was a surprise party Saturday night and the following day Debbie had 30 of her friends for another party.

The Lawrence Geislers, 816 N. Ridge, always enjoy going back to Northbrook to the George Benjamin legion post and Saturday night was no exception, when a Halloween costume party was held. Mrs. Geisler says some of the costumes took a lot of preparation and judges had difficulty in awarding prizes.

The Ridge school parade Friday afternoon was the beginning of an exciting Halloween for many of the youngsters in our area. All in costume, the children paraded down Salem, up Elm to Fernandez, and back to the school where classroom parties awaited them. Also present were crowds of mothers and pre-schoolers, watching the activities.

It took two days for Mrs. Robert Buechner, 1012 N. Fernandez and Mrs. Betty Andrewson of Des Moines, to catch up on four years of news when the latter visited here recently.

Square dancing for the adults and movies for the children completed the evenings' activities.

Over the weekend, Larry Fisher, who is attending graduate school at the University of Illinois, went to Champaign to visit his brother, Bill, a sophomore at UI this year. They are the sons of the Lawrence Fischers, 1021 N. Race.

The Fernandez ave. folks had another one of their famous parties Saturday night, this one in the decorated basement of Al Schmidt and his mother, Mrs. Marie Schmidt, 827 N. Fernandez. Arriving in costumes were Tommy and Guy Scalzitti with Doris and Jim Kelly, Dorothy and Sam Ungaro, Lynn and Len Sundquist, Dottie and Bob Chaplin, Sonja and Sig Splittsberger, Fran and Gil Stebbins and Jeannette and Bob Helfers.

The welcome mat is out to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nissen who have moved to 820 N. Fernandez from Prospect Heights. The parents were also taken to the Ice Capades and it was all the young folks idea.

It's a boy for the John Walshes, 1012 N. Salem. Scott Brian was born October 25 in Resurrection hospital and weighed 8 pounds 2 ounces. His brother, John Kevin, is finding first grade at Ridge school rather trying these days as he would much rather stay home with his new brother. Scott's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison and Mrs. Nora Walsh, of Chicago.

Halloween wasn't just for the youngsters at the Norman Walls house, 936 N. Ridge. Rita and Norman went to a costume party and treasure hunt at the Regulas.

Presbyterian Circles Study Church in School Curriculum

Emphasis of the November circle programs of the Presbyterian Women's association will be on the importance of an intensive study of the church itself in the church school curriculum. "The Church in Christian Faith and Life," a booklet published by the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, will be used as a guide for the programs.

Mrs. M. E. Baughman, secretary of Christian education for the association, under whose direction this study will be presented, will allow considerable flexibility in the choice of subject matter taking the abundant material available in the booklet. There is presented a comprehensive, meaningful definition of the church.

Church history is then outlined from its conception, through its difficult infancy, through the Middle Ages, the Reformation and on up to the present time. Attention is then directed to the particular problems of educating various age groups, from nursery through adulthood.

This process of molding an individual into an intelligent and enthusiastic member of the church, one whose foundation will be sufficiently strong to withstand the possible undermining influences of teenage and early adult associations, is of vital concern to all women.

THE FOLLOWING women, each chairman of Christian education in her own circle, will present the program: Mrs. L. W. Gleason Jr., Mrs. A. C. Law, Mrs. K. E. Dougan, Mrs. Bruce Spink, Mrs. E. M. Mommsen, Mrs. Oliver Davenport, Mrs. R. W. Seng, Mrs. N. E. Rees, Mrs. R. C. Hansen, Mrs. R. R. Johnson, Mrs. C. Kenyon, Mrs. Norman Johnson, Mrs. Lee Canfield and Mrs. George Rohde.

Because of Thanksgiving, the association luncheon will be held one week early, November 18, and many circles have changed their regular meeting time. Members are asked to check Chimes for particulars.

All members and guests are also invited to attend the fall Presbyterial meeting at Roseland November 13. A special bus has been chartered at an individual cost of $1.30 round trip, and will depart from the church at 8:30 a.m., returning around 4 p.m. Mrs. A. James Moore, CL. 3-2822, may be called for reservations. (A

Why GOP Aims Barbs At Daley

YOU MAY LOOK for more efforts by Republicans interested in the 1960 statewide campaign to goad Mayor Daley into answering their charges in public. One of the first of these efforts was the statement made by Gov. Stratton last week at an "Ike" birthday party in which the governor attacked Daley's "one-man" control of the Municipal Court. This attack drew an angry reply from Daley, which gratified the GOP plotters.

DALEY

This Republican program of goading, it is expected, will continue and take up a wide variety of issues.

Stratton and his party associates hope they can egg Cook County's Democratic chieftain into running for governor himself instead of assigning that chore to some organizational "straw man."

Perhaps it could be said that Stratton's vetoing of the Chicago Tuberculosis Sanitarium's $1,275,000 bill for patient care might be classed with those "irritants" which, when put together, might spur Daley to run as his own candidate and to carry the battle personally.

IT WOULD SEEM APPARENT that the Republicans hope to get one big issue—which would enable them to fight the Democratic machine colossus and fight it directly, head-on, with the proprietor of that machine.

Current reports are that Stratton's Downstate support may be faltering or is, at least, splitting off because of the phony third-term issue. But if Daley himself were to run for governor, Downstate Republicans undoubtedly would forget their differences to fight the common foe.

An "antimachine" fight was instrumental in helping the late Gov. Henry Horner win renomination. Downstate is always seething with dislike for "the organization" of Democrats in Cook County.

If Daley is goaded into running for governor, then some Republicans feel the ever-turbulent Downstate antagonism could be properly dramatized and exploited to meet Republican ends. Thus, the state administration is eager to keep Mayor Daley afire over completion of the expressways and the toll road program. The GOP figures it has the answers anyway and that maybe Daley can be aroused to the point where he'll toss his hat in.

WHILE SOME STORM CLOUDS GATHER in GOP ranks because of Gov. Stratton's indicated plan to run for a third term, at least one break appears to be opening in the political overcast.

For instance, it is reliably reported that U.S. Rep. Elmer J. Hoffman (R-Ill.), has definitely decided not to run against Stratton should the latter become, as is expected, a candidate for renomination next April 12.

HOFFMAN

Hoffman recently issued an optimistic report indicating he was more than pleased with the result of a personal, Downstate survey tour. A publicity release put out by his Wheaton "campaign headquarters" identified him as a "rumored" candidate for governor in the Republican primary in 1960.

Actually, Hoffman's supporters confide that he will not oppose the governor in the primary. This is because the Downstate GOP organization people were virtually unanimous in saying they would have no choice but to back Stratton in the primary. However, many said they thought Stratton would be beaten in the Nov. 8 elections.

In checking on this, we discover that, apparently, Hoffman has found out what the governor already knew about his (Stratton's) support in the primary.

When asked his opinion of the Charles Percy report suggesting the future approach of the Republican party platform, Rockefeller, cagily and noncommittally, said, "No doubt about it, the report was a substantial contribution." Period.

In refusing to comment further, Rockefeller showed he is an essentially sound politician. Had he expressed an opinion on the Percy report, he would have made some party people happy, but would have trod on the toes of others.

Bell Laughed When Told He Was 'Bum'

NEW YORK—As the train for the Jersey Shore pulled out of Philadelphia that Saturday evening, a passenger turned to the young stranger sharing his seat. "See the game today?" he asked. The young man nodded. "Isn't that Bell the lousiest thing you ever saw?" the other said, and launched into a diatribe against the University of Pennsylvania, its faculty, its athletic policies, football team and above all its 155-pound quarterback.

"That Bell," he said, "a safety man that can't catch a punt. A punter that kicks backward over his own head. You know why he's on the team, don't you? His old man's got all that dough and he's a trustee of the university and head of the athletic committee.

"If it wasn't for pull, that little bum couldn't buy his way into the park."

He was still talking when the train reached his station.

"Enjoyed talking to you," he said, rising. "My name's so-and-so; what's yours?"

"Bert Bell," the young man said.

The Genuine Article

IT WAS CHARACTERISTIC of DeBenneville Bell that he told that story on himself, with laughter raucous in his ripsaw voice. He had a tough and ready wit whose target was almost always himself.

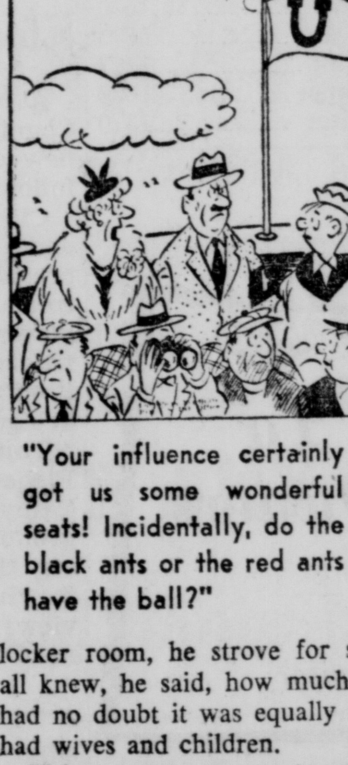
Bert is recalled for his roistering youth as a player at Penn, as a coach at Penn and Temple, as owner, president, coach, press agent, ticket seller, gateman and janitor with the starveling Eagles before and during World War II.

There must be alumni of those old Eagles who wanted to cry when they heard the news of his death, yet found themselves chuckling fondly as they recalled tales of the sort Bert enjoyed so much. Like the one about his heart-rending eloquence in Brooklyn.

In those days, Brooklyn may have been the only town where it was possible to find a pro team as bad as the Eagles. Bert was confident of victory and desperate when the first half ended with the Eagles trailing.

Addressing the players in the locker room, he strove for sweetly reasonable restraint. They all knew, he said, how much this game meant to him, and he had no doubt it was equally important to them. Many of them had wives and children.

"I just want you men to ask yourselves how you would feel," he said, and now the husky organ tones were swelling, "how you would feel tonight if you went home and leaned over the crib. and that little fella lying there looked up and said: 'Daddy, did you lay down in Brooklyn?' "



"Your influence certainly got us some wonderful seats! Incidentally, do the black ants or the red ants have the ball?"

The Time And Place

THE EAGLES were big, strong men, but they collapsed. Weak with laughter, they tottered out for the second half and were slaughtered. It was a while before Bert could laugh about that one.

Chances are he was laughing and enjoying himself Sunday afternoon. He was watching the Eagles, the team he created, playing his other team, the Steelers, whom he operated with Art Rooney during the war.

FROM SHERWOOD

Mary Kit and John Rankin, 1106 N. Harvard, are back from a few days' visit in Kansas City, which was home to them before moving here.

Last Monday Doris Cornelius, 1108 Watling rd., had a luncheon for the ticket committee of the Lake Bluff Children's home service league. During the afternoon the ladies made further plans for the Roger Williams benefit concert to be held in the Evanston high school auditorium November 28. Anyone interested in tickets may call Doris at CL 3-9370.

There were two beatnik parties in Sherwood Saturday. Debbie Cornelius invited Mary Lou Jakubiec, Jean de Wilde and four other friends from school, who went out tricks and treating then returned to play games, dance, and partake in refreshments. The other party was at the Carl V. Palmers, 1023 W. Burgoyne, with Susie Cornelius and Karen Palmer acting as hostesses to 30 girls from the sophomore class. One girl outdid the others, dressed as a beatnik and some of the costumes more than provided entertainment for the evening.

When Jim Colvin, 1319 Watling, flew up to Fairibault, Minn. recently, to visit Steve at Shattuck school, he became very popular when he took Steve and a few of his friends out to dinner. This is Steve's last year at Shattuck.

The John A. Robertsons, 1110 W. Clarendon, went south for their vacation this year. They were gone two weeks. stopping off at such famous places as New Orleans, where they stopped at the many popular eating places, Point Clear, Ala., and Grand Isle in the Gulf of Mexico, where they got in a little fishing.

FROM RIDGE PARK

Donna Siemro and her mother, Mrs. Fred Siemro, 929 N. Yale, entertained three of the girls who sang with Donna in the Concordia junior choir in St. Peter church last Sunday. The girls sang at all three services.

A note of sympathy is extended to the Tom McGough family, 906 N. Illinois, on the recent death of their infant daughter, Ann Terese.

Ralph Hostler won second prize for his costume at a Halloween party which he and Lu attended Saturday night in the home of friends in Elmhurst. One of the rules of the party was that everyone was to come in a costume of their own concoction, and Lu says some of them showed real imagination. There was dancing, games and refreshments during the evening.

Marybeth Myslo, daughter of the Eugene G. Myslos, 721 N. Kaspar, was 7 October 29, but the celebration began on the 24th, when 25 of her relatives came out for a buffet supper in her honor. The following Monday, Diane Erd, Sheri Wolf, Debbie Vogel, Jeannie Bulinski and Debbie's sisters helped celebrate again with another party. There were prizes to make the games more interesting and the ice cream and birthday cake needed nothing else to make it attractive.

On Sunday, Mrs. Myslo was godmother at the christening of her brother's baby, Steven Joseph Rurka, in Itasca, after which the family spent the balance of the day with the Rurkas.

Charlotte and Jim Ronayne took Noreen with them on their recent trip to Miami. They enjoyed the beaches from Silver Springs to St. Petersburg, where they visited Charlotte's aunt and uncle who are spending the winter there.

The Dwight Chapmans, 735 N. Harvard, report they enjoyed having Lynn Hamerley of Evanston and daughter, Jean, who lives in Chicago, spend the weekend with them.

The William Rudys and the Frank Psotas enjoyed dinner Friday evening at the Cafe de Paris, before going to the opera house to see the performance of "Turnadot." On Sunday afternoon they attended a benefit dress rehearsal of "Genufa" given by the American Opera Society of Chicago at the Opera house. A relatively new opera to the lyric, it was performed with all the criticisms, the mechanics and the repeat arias that went into making the public performance a success. The rehearsal was followed by a buffet and reception of the cast in the foyer of the building.

Get well wishes are sent to Jeannette Egli, daughter of the Charlie Eglis, 814 N. Patton, who is recuperating from a tonsillectomy. A first grader at Ridge School, Jeannette is trying to recuperate quickly for her return to school.

Halloween started early at the Dick Platts, 806 N. Kennicott, with a party Jeff gave for his friends. Paul Cryer was there, as well as Bobby Abbott, Dale Kluesing, Bill Rudy and Ray Roths of Mt. Prospect. The boys went on a scavenger hunt first and later bobbed for apples and played games before sitting down to doughnuts and cider.

Ridge Park was well represented at the two parties over the weekend at the Whitson's house. Teddy's was a surprise party Saturday night and the following day Debbie had 30 of her friends for another party.

The Lawrence Geislers, 816 N. Ridge, always enjoy going back to Northbrook to the George Benjamin legion post and Saturday night was no exception, when a Halloween costume party was held. Mrs. Geisler says some of the costumes took a lot of preparation and judges had difficulty in awarding prizes.

The Ridge school parade Friday afternoon was the beginning of an exciting Halloween for many of the youngsters in our area. All in costume, the children paraded down Salem, up Elm to Fernandez, and back to the school where classroom parties awaited them. Also present were crowds of mothers and pre-schoolers, watching the activities.

It took two days for Mrs. Robert Buechner, 1012 N. Fernandez and Mrs. Betty Andrewson of Des Moines, to catch up on four years of news when the latter visited here recently.

Kathy Bulinski, daughter of the Dick Bulinskis, 725 N. Kaspar, attended a Halloween party in Palatine.

Ann and Joe Pecoraro, 727 N. Kennicott, took Mickey and Jeannie Bulinski to the Forester's Halloween party at Rand park Saturday night. The Jim Patersons were their guests for the evening and enjoyed watching the children parade in costumes. Square dancing for the adults and movies for the children completed the evenings' activities.

Over the weekend, Larry Fisher, who is attending graduate school at the University of Illinois, went to Champaign to visit his brother, Bill, a sophomore at UI this year. They are the sons of the Lawrence Fischers, 1021 N. Race.

The Fernandez ave. folks had another one of their famous parties Saturday night, this one in the decorated basement of Al Schmidt and his mother, Mrs. Marie Schmidt, 827 N. Fernandez. Arriving in costumes were Tommy and Guy Scalzitti with Doris and Jim Kelly, Dorothy and Sam Ungaro, Lynn and Len Sundquist, Dottie and Bob Chaplin, Sonja and Sig Splittsberger, Fran and Gil Stebbins and Jeannette and Bob Helfers.

The John A. Millers, 915 N. Fernandez, announce the birth of Richard Frederick, born October 17 in St. Joseph hospital weighing 10 pounds 2 ounces. His sisters and brothers are, Peggy, Jackie, Jack and Artie. Grandparents are Mrs. Mae B. Miller of California and David Murry of Florida.

The Jim Lauers, 1020 N. Kennicott, recently were visited by her parents, the Gene Mestons of Indianapolis and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Menard of Des Moines.

The welcome mat is out to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nissen who have moved to 820 N. Fernandez from Prospect Heights. They came from Prospect Heights to Ridge Park in Arlington Heights only a short time before Mr. Nissen was taken to the hospital for surgery. He is home now recuperating and it is hoped he will have a speedy a daughter, Mrs. Donald Sherwood.

Peg and Ted Schoen, 818 N. Kennicott, are back from Upper Iowa university where they attended Parents' Day over the weekend, and visited with their son Tom, who is a freshman.

There was a birthday party Sunday honoring Stan Menschings, 804 N. Kaspar. Present at the Menschings were his mother, from Meadowdale, his brother and sister and his aunt, uncle and cousin from Janesville, Wis. A buffet supper was served in the evening.

The Ed Ojas, 921 N. Patton, and three other parents, the Galandeks, the Von Boeckmanns and the Stanley Myers were guests of Carol Oja, Warren Myers, Doren Galandek and Tom Von Boeckmann recently, for an evening that began with a steak dinner and ended with coffee at the Von Boeckmanns. The parents were also taken to the Ice Capades and it was all the young folks idea.

It's a boy for the John Walshes, 1012 N. Salem. Scott Brian was born October 25 in Resurrection hospital and weighed 8 pounds 2 ounces. His brother, John Kevin, is finding first grade at Ridge school rather trying these days as he would much rather stay home with his new brother. Scott's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison and Mrs. Nora Walsh, of Chicago.

Halloween wasn't just for the youngsters at the Norman Walls house, 936 N. Ridge. Rita and Norman went to a costume party and treasure hunt at the Regulas.

Bill and Carol Hey, 1015 N. Kaspar, moved Monday to 2132 Lowell ave., Springfield, where Bill will be co-ordinator of major research for the legislative council.

In the recent snowstorm, Mrs. Frank Kieca, 821 N. Salem slipped on a patch of ice, and broke her leg. She is now at home, recuperating in a wheelchair. (A

Study Group To Hear Rev. Parker

Rev. Darrell Parker, who has taught in the Presbyterian Mission school at Bagota, capital of Columbia, South America, will speak to the international relations study group of the Arlington Heights Womans club Monday, Nov. 9, when members meet in the home of the chairman, Mrs. Carl Bowen, 115 W. Central, Arlington Heights. Rev. Darrell, assistant minister to the First Presbyterian Church of Gary, attended the University of Illinois.

Co-hostesses for the 1:30 p.m. meeting will be Mrs. A. T. Meyer and Mrs. J. B Pohlenz.

ALL ARLINGTON Heights Woman's club members are invited to an open house and tea ovember 12, at the Park Ridge School for Girls, from 12:30 to 3 p.m. It is suggested that club members donate the price of a glass of jelly to help establish a "Fresh Fruit in the Winter" fund.

The newly-formed art study group of the club will meet every first and third Tuesday at Pioneer Park field house at 9:30 a.m. Further details may be obtained by calling Mrs. Chester Moore, chairman, at CL. 3-1968. (A

Emphasis of the November circle programs of the Presbyterian Women's association will be on the importance of an intensive study of the church itself in the church school curriculum. "The Church in Christian Faith and Life," a booklet published by the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, will be used as a guide for the programs.

Mrs. M. E. Baughman, secretary of Christian education for the association, under whose direction this study will be presented, will allow considerable flexibility in the choice of subject matter taking the abundant material available in the booklet. There is presented a comprehensive, meaningful definition of the church.

Church history is then outlined from its conception, through its difficult infancy, through the Middle Ages, the Reformation and on up to the present time. Attention is then directed to the particular problems of educating various age groups, from nursery through adulthood.

This process of molding an individual into an intelligent and enthusiastic member of the church, one whose foundation will be sufficiently strong to withstand the possible undermining influences of teenage and early adult associations, is of vital concern to all women.

THE FOLLOWING women, each chairman of Christian education in her own circle, will present the program: Mrs. L. W. Gleason Jr., Mrs. A. C. Law, Mrs. K. E. Dougan, Mrs. Bruce Spink, Mrs. E. M. Mommsen, Mrs. Oliver Davenport, Mrs. R. W. Seng, Mrs. N. E. Rees, Mrs. R. C. Hansen, Mrs. R. R. Johnson, Mrs. C. Kenyon, Mrs. Norman Johnson, Mrs. Lee Canfield and Mrs. George Rohde.

Because of Thanksgiving, the association luncheon will be held one week early, November 18, and many circles have changed their regular meeting time. Members are asked to check Chimes for particulars.

All members and guests are also invited to attend the fall Presbyterial meeting at Roseland November 13. A special bus has been chartered at an individual cost of $1.30 round trip, and will depart from the church at 8:30 a.m., returning around 4 p.m. Mrs. A. James Moore, CL. 3-2822, may be called for reservations. (A

Why GOP Aims Barbs At Daley

YOU MAY LOOK for more efforts by Republicans interested in the 1960 statewide campaign to goad Mayor Daley into answering their charges in public. One of the first of these efforts was the statement made by Gov. Stratton last week at an "Ike" birthday party in which the governor attacked Daley's "one-man" control of the Municipal Court. This attack drew an angry reply from Daley, which gratified the GOP plotters.

DALEY

This Republican program of goading, it is expected, will continue and take up a wide variety of issues.

Stratton and his party associates hope they can egg Cook County's Democratic chieftain into running for governor himself instead of assigning that chore to some organizational "straw man."

Perhaps it could be said that Stratton's vetoing of the Chicago Tuberculosis Sanitarium's $1,275,000 bill for patient care might be classed with those "irritants" which, when put together, might spur Daley to run as his own candidate and to carry the battle personally.

TWO-LANE HIGHWAYS are becoming six-lane, and new roads are being built in the vicinity of Golf-Mill shopping center, which will open next year in Niles. Parkways are being added, new highway lights installed and many other improvements created at a cost of more than $1,050,000 on all highways adjacent to the new center. Milwaukee ave. and Golf road will be widened to 110 feet. The present pavement is 40 feet in width. There will be three lanes on each side of a 24 foot median strip. Greenwood ave., with existing pavement width of 20 feet, is being increased to 100 feet. Improvements on Milwaukee ave. will extend beyond the intersection of Greenwood ave., while Greenwood will reach beyond the Milwaukee intersection. Church street is being extended from Greenwood to Milwaukee ave., where there is no street at present. The new extension will be 80 feet wide. Albert A. Yort, managr of the Golf-Mill Development corp., states that all highways adjacent to the plaza will offer the protection of special shopping center turn lanes and safety barriers as they lead into the commodious parking lots of the 88 acre tract with its 75 sales and service establishments, radio station, television studio, outdoor ice skating rink and children's supervised play area. Rapid progress is being made on construction. Stores include National Foods, Lytton's, Walgreen's, Hillman's, Heineman's Bakeries, Woolworth's, Father & Son and Kinney Shoes and others. The largest will be Sears with over 200,000 square feet of floor space, incorporating many of the features of their new shopping center store in Honolulu, Hawaii. The National Food Store will surpass anything previously built by the chain, according to H. V. McNamara, president of National Tea, Chicago.

Elk Grove, Wheeling Units Combine Meet

Elk Grove Home Bureau unit held a combined monthly meeting with the Wheeling unit in the Farm Bureau Building meeting room October 28. Hostesses from both units served dessert and coffee, after which, Mrs. Claradehl Upham, County home adviser, led a discussion on "Civil Defense at Home."

The discussion was "food for thought" in regards to the imminent danger of an atom attack and its after effects. Mrs. Upham suggested a few good sources of reading on current events with which members could well acquaint themselves. Several booklets on civil defense were also passed to each unit member, stressing perparedness for emergencies, problem of emergency sanitation and women in unit defense.

Following Mrs. Upham's discussion, the Elk Grove unit held a brief business meeting. Mrs. Alexander Shelow and Mrs. Sam Paul were our guests for the afternoon.

IT WAS announced that the 4-H Recognition night will be Thursday, Nov. 12, in Arlington high school. At this time awards will be given to both individual members and clubs for outstanding and enterprising accomplishments. Parents are invited.

Members voted and agreed upon November 18 as the day to combine the meeting and craft day for the month. Mrs. Harry Wille, Des Plaines, offered her home for this one-day affair. ## Palatine 4-H Has Halloween Party October 29

The Highland Grove school on Ela rd. was the scene of a Halloween party for the Palatine township 4-H club, October 29. Various games were played with Georgia Bergman winning the concentration game and "Who's Who," with Jim Kagel as runner-up. The contest of bobbing for apples was won by Sherry Past, Donald Thurnau won the paper game and Bill Engler, captain of the team that won the treasure hunt, was voted as having the best costume, a clown suit.

Enrollment and fair cards and prize money were given out following the serving of refreshments. (FM

Light Vote For Judges

Wheeling township voters straggled to the polls Tuesday in balloting characterized by disinterest to voice their opinions on who should sit on 30 county judicial benches, and to express their displeasure of the County hospital's request for building funds.

Although township Republicans carried the day, Democratic gains continued a trend of recent years in going down to defeat 8-5. In what may be a record low turnout, 3,706 ballots were cast.

Twenty-four candidates ran unopposed, endorsed by both parties. The Circuit court bench race, closest of the six contested seats, saw Republican Joseph Fisher getting the township nod over his Democratic rival, Joseph J. Drucker, 1,897 to 1,640. The run-off, in which Drucker swept the county, was to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Harry M. Fisher.

THE COUNTY request of $9.5 million for hospital improvements, while it also carried throughout the county, was turned down by township voters, 1,444 to 1,215, despite the fact that it would increase taxes by no more than a 1.1 cent margin per $100 evaluation.

County-wide, it was a clear sweep for the Democrats.

The villages of Wheeling and Buffalo Grove were the only incorporated areas of the township to go Democratic, attributed by most observers to the strong organization of that party concentrated in the two areas.

| Pct. | Dem. | GOP | Votes Cast |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | 65 | 43 | 112 |

Professional Men Can Breathe Easy

Most Arlington Heights professional men with offices in their homes can breathe easier this week in the knowledge that they won't be forced to move.

Village trustees droned their way through nearly two-thirds of the required public reading of the new 111-page zoning ordinance Monday night before going to other business. They managed, however, to read a change in the ordinance that will allow physicians, dentists, lawyers, clergymen, or "other licensed professional persons" already practicing in their homes to continue to do so under certain conditions.

THE CONDITIONS are that the office's frontage must be located on a major or secondary highway so designated on the village's master plan or within 200 feet of a commercial or manufacturing district.

The office must also have received former authorization from the village's building commissioner to be located in a home. Future home offices of all types will be prohibited in residential sections.

Prior to the change in the ordinance by the zoning commission, several village dentists and doctors would have been forced to move from their existing home offices.

The reading of the ordinance will be completed at the next board meeting, scheduled for November 16.

Request Funds to Decorate Downtown

A request by Arlington Heights' chamber of commerce for village funds to decorate downtown business streets for Christmas was received by village board members with mixed emotions this week.

Wilbert Hartmann, secretary of the chamber, appealed to the board to finance the decorating of 140 light posts at nearly $20 a post or $2,800. He noted, however, that if lights weren't used the posts could be decorated for half the amount.

While some trustees questioned the legality of using village funds for such a purpose, others felt it would be discriminating against the shopping center businessmen.

"I DOUBT our right to aid a particular segment of the business community. Even if the people stood still for it, I wouldn't vote for it," said Trustee Robert Bukowski.

"I think the businessmen should stand on their own feet and not come running to the village everytime they need help," seconded Trustee Samuel Wit.

In a more conciliatory mood, Trustee Eugene Schlickman told the board he felt the downtown area was the village's "living room," and should be decorated at Christmas time. He also reasoned that all village businessmen would indirectly benefit from the decorations.

He moved that the question be referred to the attorney for a ruling on the legality of the request. The motion passed with Trustee Wit and Melvin Kurtz voting against it. (AF

Hints To Home Owners

Assistant Farm Advisor

The ability of a rose plant to withstand winter weather depends on the condition of the plant, and the manner in which low temperature occurs.

Plants that have had proper care throughout the growing season are more likely to withstand severe winters than unhealthy plants because healthy plants are able to manufacture the maximum amount of sugars and to mature properly.

Fluctuating winter temperatures are much harder on roses than consistently low temperatures.

IN OUR climate, these fluctuating temperatures predominate, making it essential to afford the plants some protection which will serve, not to keep them warm, but to avoid sudden changes in temperature.

With small hybrid teas and floribundas, the best method is to mound up soil around the base of the plant. The pile of soil should be 8 to 10 inches high. This should be done after the first killing frost, while the ground can still be worked. Be sure when gathering the soil around the plant not to expose any roots. It is probably better to bring in soil from another part of the yard for this than to risk damage to roots while scraping around among the roses.

Tree roses are quite susceptible to winter injury. In protected locations, the top can be wrapped with straw and covered with burlap.

IN EXPOSED locations, the plant should be pulled over to one side and covered with soil or straw.

This is done by digging under the roots on one side until the plant can be pulled over without completely breaking all connections with the soil, and tying the end securely so that it is not tossed about by winter winds.

Prosper attention to preparing your roses for winter will insure that they will come through even the most severe winter in the best possible condition.

POWDER mildew a fungus disease of bluegrass lawns, is very prevalent in the suburban Chicago area this fall. This disease can be recognized by a white powdery growth on the leaves of the grass plants. The disease becomes most severe in shaded areas of the lawn, and if control measures are not carried out, much of the bluegrass in these shaded areas may be killed. Merion bluegrass is especially susceptible to this disease.

Powdery mildew can be controlled with fungicides containing karathone or actidione as the active ingredient. Follow the directions for use given on the package. Finely ground dusting sulfur will prevent the spread of this disease. Sulphur must be re-applied if rains or watering remove the sulphur from the leaves. Control measure should be applied as long as temperatures remain high enough for active growth of bluegrass lawns.

TWO-LANE HIGHWAYS are becoming six-lane, and new roads are being built in the vicinity of Golf-Mill shopping center, which will open next year in Niles. Parkways are being added, new highway lights installed and many other improvements created at a cost of more than $1,050,000 on all highways adjacent to the new center. Milwaukee ave. and Golf road will be widened to 110 feet. The present pavement is 40 feet in width. There will be three lanes on each side of a 24 foot median strip. Greenwood ave., with existing pavement width of 20 feet, is being increased to 100 feet. Improvements on Milwaukee ave. will extend beyond the intersection of Greenwood ave., while Greenwood will reach beyond the Milwaukee intersection. Church street is being extended from Greenwood to Milwaukee ave., where there is no street at present. The new extension will be 80 feet wide. Albert A. Yort, managr of the Golf-Mill Development corp., states that all highways adjacent to the plaza will offer the protection of special shopping center turn lanes and safety barriers as they lead into the commodious parking lots of the 88 acre tract with its 75 sales and service establishments, radio station, television studio, outdoor ice skating rink and children's supervised play area. Rapid progress is being made on construction. Stores include National Foods, Lytton's, Walgreen's, Hillman's, Heineman's Bakeries, Woolworth's, Father & Son and Kinney Shoes and others. The largest will be Sears with over 200,000 square feet of floor space, incorporating many of the features of their new shopping center store in Honolulu, Hawaii. The National Food Store will surpass anything previously built by the chain, according to H. V. McNamara, president of National Tea, Chicago.

Light Vote For Judges

Wheeling township voters straggled to the polls Tuesday in balloting characterized by disinterest to voice their opinions on who should sit on 30 county judicial benches, and to express their displeasure of the County hospital's request for building funds.

Although township Republicans carried the day, Democratic gains continued a trend of recent years in going down to defeat 8-5. In what may be a record low turnout, 3,706 ballots were cast.

Twenty-four candidates ran unopposed, endorsed by both parties. The Circuit court bench race, closest of the six contested seats, saw Republican Joseph Fisher getting the township nod over his Democratic rival, Joseph J. Drucker, 1,897 to 1,640. The run-off, in which Drucker swept the county, was to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Harry M. Fisher.

THE COUNTY request of $9.5 million for hospital improvements, while it also carried throughout the county, was turned down by township voters, 1,444 to 1,215, despite the fact that it would increase taxes by no more than a 1.1 cent margin per $100 evaluation.

County-wide, it was a clear sweep for the Democrats.

The villages of Wheeling and Buffalo Grove were the only incorporated areas of the township to go Democratic, attributed by most observers to the strong organization of that party concentrated in the two areas.

| Pct. | Dem. | GOP | Votes Cast |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | 65 | 43 | 112 |
| 27 | 143 | 61 | 205 |
| 33 | 96 | 70 | 156 |
| 37 | 142 | 40 | 178 |

In Buffalo Grove it was the same story. The front-running Democrat led his opponent in Precinct 38 by a vote of 59-38 of a total 93 ballots cast.

IN THE COUNTY hospital bond issue balloting, two Wheeling precincts carried the measure while it lost in one and tied in another. Buffalo Grove turned down the county request by one vote, 44 yes to 45 no.

Recreation Is Important To Good Health, Welfare

by JOEL CARTER

Every citizen has or should have the same concern for good recreation that he has for good health, good education and the general welfare. Healthy play and relaxing diversions are as essential to a man's physical, mental, and especially emotional well-being as a balanced diet or a satisfying job.

Modern Americans realize this. We have been slow to put aside our Puritanical background which taught that idleness was evil and games a waste of God's gift of talents, but it has happened.

Recreation's acceptance has been slow, but it is now at its peak. Not until the nineteenth century did organized sports really begin. Church picnics, county fairs, minstrel shows and the unique lyceum lecture evolved. Social visiting, dancing, card play, and singing became common in spite of a 60-hour work week.

RECREATION'S popularity grew steadily until the end of World War II and then it — like the suburbs — erupted. Americans became patrons of the theater via TV, do-it-yourself became a permanent fad, the waters were littered with boats overnight.

Modern technology — the electronic and machine age— has given Uncle Sam's children the shortest work week in history and we are using the leisure time for useful hobbies, sports and self improvements. The evidence is amazing: there are 34-million amateur photographers, 18 million fishermen and a like number of home gardners. Twenty million Americans bowl and 17 million roller skate.

THERE ARE over 2,000 amateur theater groups which produce 10,000 plays each year. Music is produced by 703 home-grown opera groups, 1,000 amateur symphony orchestras, 30,000 high school orchestras and 20,000 bands. Twice as many persons play musical instruments today as did 20 years ago.

Golf, once played by only the well-to-do now attracts four million people of all income levels. Thirty million boaters ply the waters with half million pleasure craft. Even the long established hobby of coin collecting has doubled its followers recently.

The figures for other recreations are just as impressive. Americans, and the young suburban families in particular, are truly using their leisure time to become healthier, happier, more productive citizens.

Eerie Halloween Brings Tragedy

by PHILIP NELSON

Most eerie Halloween experience is claimed by an Arlington Heights housewife while aboard the cabin cruiser "Lady Luck" last Saturday night in the Fox river, near McHenry, McHenry county.

Never again will the husband of Mrs. Norma Parr, 410 N. Caryle, doubt the woman's instinct of his wife.

But Albert Parr did doubt it when, after five minutes out of the bay off the Oak Hill beach, his wife proclaimed an orange object bobbing on the water like a giant ghoulish pumpkin was the body of a man.

MINUTES earlier, Stanley Strama, owner of the cruiser, had spotted the orange object with his spotlight. Handing a large flashlight to Mrs. Paar, he asked her to pass the light on to her husband while he circled the bobbing orange package.

Paar and his friend, John Erl were on the deck, but when Mrs. Paar told them of her fears, they merely scoffed at her and told her it was a childish Halloween prank.

The frightened house wife maintained both her hold on the flashlight and her belief that it was a body even after coming closer and distinguishing that the orange object was a lifejacket standing upright in the water, the collar of above which was a pair of spectacles, and above that a man's hat.

Well, said Paar, now one could see that it was obviously a prank and some youngsters would have the laugh on them after seeing the effect their dressed-up store dummy had on a group of adults.

MINUTES LATER, lacking an hour to midnight, the men had reached out, and after lifting the arm of the "dummy" and seeing lifelike hair on the body's head, verified Mrs. Paar's worst fears.

A rope was tied around the body, floating in two feet of water. The body was later identified as John Russell McConnell, 60, a farmer, and it was towed to shore, where the sheriff was notified.

The boat in which the farmer had been fishing with his son-in-law was found and towed in by the Lady Luck, and on the following afternoon the body of Claude F. Rieck, of Dwight, the son-in-law was discovered.

Mrs. Rieck, his wife, had recently lost her husband, and now after this double tragedy, was quite overcome.

"I never saw such a tragic look on anyone's face before," said Mrs. Paar. "This was quite a Halloween experience, one I never want to go through again." (A

Variation To Allow Septic Tank

A variation allowing a septic tank on a 17,600 sq. ft. lot was granted by Arlington Heights' board of trustees this week.

The lot, on S. Vail near Magnolia is owned by Ronald Henrickson, 108 N. Salem. Normal village requirement for a septic tank is a minimum of 20,000 sq. ft.

Village Manager L. A. Hanson noted, however, that Henrickson had agreed to pay the assessment for a sewer when it was installed in the area. Such installation, he said, was scheduled for next spring. (A

Parent Group Plans Survey Of Area Handicapped Needs

SIMPLE GAMES and skills are part of the training program offered mentally retarded children who attend Clearbrook school in Rolling Meadows. As their teacher, Mrs. Theo Fredrickson, gives individual attention, these youngsters learn muscle coordination. Seated from left around the table are Bobby Weed, Sherry Krause, Billy Bombach, Amy Lervela, Trey Johnson, Mary Ellen Dunlavy and Cindy Dunsmore. The Parent Group is looking forward to a school building in the area where the children can receive a fuller education.

Parent Group of Clearbrook school for mentally retarded children is making a survey to determine the number of children in the northwest suburban area who need this type of special schooling.

Parents of retarded children are requested to write to P.O. Box 213, Arlington Heights, or phone Robert Weed, CL 5-1670.

Looking to the future, a building fund has been established with a view to constructing a school to accommodate the retarded children in the area with a larger educational and recreational program.

THE CLEARBROOK school was established in May, 1956. There are 15 pupils enrolled in the school, which now holds classes in the Community church of Rolling Meadows daily Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The education program consists of fundamental reading, writing and muscle coordination.

Mrs. Theo Fredrickson instructs the group, assisted by Mrs. Mae Bombach. Volunteer workers help with the school program.

The school is supported by a nominal tuition fee, and the generosity of individuals and civic groups, as well as fund raising projects of the 25-member Parent Group.

The Mailman's Corner

Peace of Mind Is Found with Deeds

By
LELAND ELLIS TRUXELL

A good way to judge a man's character and personality is to find out what his neighbors think of him. That is why some firms today, before they hire a man for a responsible position, talk him over with his neighbors.

The neighborhood you live in is a proving ground that brings out the good and bad qualities that are in you; and it is the place to learn best how to win friends and influence people. The chances are that if you can get along with the folks in your neighborhood, you can get along anywhere else in the world; for people are pretty much the same everywhere, regardless of race or creed.

OF COURSE, this is assuming that your neighborhood is "normal". If you can get along with Jones, a windjammer; with Perkins, an eccentric; with Pete, who is an outdoor man; and with Jenson, who is deeply religious, you will find peace and friendship in your neighborhood. If you can find time for helping with the boy scouts, YMCA, red cross, and civic and religious activities, you will always be in demand, and experience the joy that comes of giving of yourself for others. If you can love people in spite of their differences, and give them the benefit of an honest doubt; if you can cooperate with others and keep their friendship without surrendering your good principles of living: the chances are you have a good character and personality.

If you can not love your neighbor because of the things he does, love him because he is a brother human being, trying to get along in the world, and perhaps having a hard time because he has some twisted ideas on the way to live; or you might do a little soul searching and see whether it is not you who are the offender, and if you are, then go to him and square things up. Don't let a wall of coldness of your own doing ruin what might otherwise be a wonderful friendship.

IF YOU ARE a Christian, you can, by your conduct, your principles, your humility, kindness and love, show your neighbor the way to Christ and peace of mind in a world that is seething with fear and misunderstanding.

Parent Group Plans Survey Of Area Handicapped Needs

SIMPLE GAMES and skills are part of the training program offered mentally retarded children who attend Clearbrook school in Rolling Meadows. As their teacher, Mrs. Theo Fredrickson, gives individual attention, these youngsters learn muscle coordination. Seated from left around the table are Bobby Weed, Sherry Krause, Billy Bombach, Amy Lervela, Trey Johnson, Mary Ellen Dunlavy and Cindy Dunsmore. The Parent Group is looking forward to a school building in the area where the children can receive a fuller education.

Parent Group of Clearbrook school for mentally retarded children is making a survey to determine the number of children in the northwest suburban area who need this type of special schooling.

Parents of retarded children are requested to write to P.O. Box 213, Arlington Heights, or phone Robert Weed, CL 5-1670.

Looking to the future, a building fund has been established with a view to constructing a school to accommodate the retarded children in the area with a larger educational and recreational program.

THE CLEARBROOK school was established in May, 1956. There are 15 pupils enrolled in the school, which now holds classes in the Community church of Rolling Meadows daily Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The education program consists of fundamental reading, writing and muscle coordination.

Mrs. Theo Fredrickson instructs the group, assisted by Mrs. Mae Bombach. Volunteer workers help with the school program.

The school is supported by a nominal tuition fee, and the generosity of individuals and civic groups, as well as fund raising projects of the 25-member Parent Group.

The Mailman's Corner

Peace of Mind Is Found with Deeds

By
LELAND ELLIS TRUXELL

A good way to judge a man's character and personality is to find out what his neighbors think of him. That is why some firms today, before they hire a man for a responsible position, talk him over with his neighbors.

The neighborhood you live in is a proving ground that brings out the good and bad qualities that are in you; and it is the place to learn best how to win friends and influence people. The chances are that if you can get along with the folks in your neighborhood, you can get along anywhere else in the world; for people are pretty much the same everywhere, regardless of race or creed.

OF COURSE, this is assuming that your neighborhood is "normal". If you can get along with Jones, a windjammer; with Perkins, an eccentric; with Pete, who is an outdoor man; and with Jenson, who is deeply religious, you will find peace and friendship in your neighborhood. If you can find time for helping with the boy scouts, YMCA, red cross, and civic and religious activities, you will always be in demand, and experience the joy that comes of giving of yourself for others. If you can love people in spite of their differences, and give them the benefit of an honest doubt; if you can cooperate with others and keep their friendship without surrendering your good principles of living: the chances are you have a good character and personality.

If you can not love your neighbor because of the things he does, love him because he is a brother human being, trying to get along in the world, and perhaps having a hard time because he has some twisted ideas on the way to live; or you might do a little soul searching and see whether it is not you who are the offender, and if you are, then go to him and square things up. Don't let a wall of coldness of your own doing ruin what might otherwise be a wonderful friendship.

IF YOU ARE a Christian, you can, by your conduct, your principles, your humility, kindness and love, show your neighbor the way to Christ and peace of mind in a world that is seething with fear and misunderstanding.

Reviewer Gives Top Rating to 'Howie'

by JO PARNELL

As in any play, the first few moments of the audience's attention is given over to the examination of the set. Too often the set is in itself so spectacular or disturbing in its deficiencies that the audience can never then completely lose itself in the action of the play.

Happily, the set designed by Maurice Geye for the recent Village Theatre production of "Howie," suffered none of these handicaps; it was imaginatively designed and beautifully executed.

Only at one point when an actor had to mount a raised platform in order to pass to the other side of the stage, did the set seem to intrude upon the action of the play. The color and line of the furniture was tasteful and blended well with the setting. The irregular lines of the set gave a feeling of spaciousness which was illusory and the sense of looking into a real home where doors led to other rooms instead of just off-stage.

THE SPLIT SET used in the second act was especially interesting. No attempt was made to visually separate the two scenes—such as erecting a barrier between the two scenes of the living room and the TV studio, but the audience never became confused because of this. The design lent to the interplay of the two scenes which gave great life to the scene as a whole. The manner in which the two groups were separated and then merged at moments to unify the scene must be credited to the excellent directing of John Pesick.

Particularly noteworthy was the end of this scene when pandemonium broke out in both groups upon Howie's refusal to accept his winnings. The turmoil was general and vociferous and completely confused on stage, but never confused the audience. This too, is to the credit of the director who beautifully handled the difficult scene ending Act II on the note of tension which carried very naturally into the final act.

EVERY character, from the superb Howie, to the cigar chewing Joe, and Wendy, the young lady who was determined to be seen to best advantage to the TV audience, stood out distinctly as an individual, and yet merged harmoniously with every other character on stage.

Both Kay Hawley (Edith Simms) and Carol McCann (Barbara Dickerson), played their roles with a skill and ease that was essential to the smooth flow of the play.

W. R. Pownell (Walter Simms), was so convincing in his role that one would think that he really was a tired, middle-aged lawyer longing only to rid his home of the disturbing Howie in order to achieve some peace. Especially effective was his handling of the scene in which he has a "man to man" chat with his erratic son-in-law.

Mary Jayne (Sally Simms), handled her role effectively, but seemed at times to be ill at ease and became somewhat stiff in reacting to others in certain tense moments of the play.

BOB HAWLEY (Mr. McNish) and John Lobenhofer (Jimmie Keefe), exploited their rather zany roles to the full, and yet never were so carried away as to overdo the idiosyncrasies of their characters.

None of the characters had great depth of character, but this was not due to any deficiency of any actor, but rather to the fact that the author gave them very little to work with. Only in the character of Howie, was their any hint that there was any other facet to his personality other than that of flippancy toward the conventions of society.

If Pat O'Dea did not completely convince his audience that Howie was the most serious person in the play, it could only be because the author never probed too deeply into this man whose problems posed some elements of tragedy. These elements were ignored by the author and thus led her to a rather pat and contrived ending.

I say it could not be any lack on the part of the actor which caused the characterization of Howie to be one dimensional, because Mr. O'Dea, gave an outstanding performance in which every gesture and facial expression served to definitely express the character of Howie. Although he was on stage throughout most of the play, which is in itself quite demanding, Mr. O'Dea never for a moment lost his character.

The high quality of all aspects of this production - technical, acting, design and directing - gave the play the polish of a professional performance. In fact, Village Theatre achieved a quality which could be rated far higher than some professional productions which this reviewer has seen. (B8

Traffic Problems To Worsen: Klamm

As serious as our traffic problem is today, the worst is still to come, according to traffic safety authority Edward R. Klamm, accident prevention director of the Allstate Insurance companies and chairman of Arlington Area Safety council.

Klamm, speaking at the citizens leadership session of the National Safety Congress in Chicago, said the coming decade will usher in the biggest boom ever in automotive travel and, unless something is done to prevent it, the biggest harvest of traffic casualties.

AS THE FIRST step in anticipating increased traffic in the "Sixties," Klamm called for immediate activation of the six-point action program of the Safety Council's Traffic Conference executive committee. Placing the major responsibility for traffic accident reduction on state and city officials, the immediate action program calls for:

1. Every city and state enforcement agency should evaluate its enforcement index and improve it where records show it is low.

2. Every highway department should immediately investigate high accident locations, remove obstructions to the driver's view and make other necessary physical improvements.

3. Every driver licensing authority should immediately act to restrict, suspend or revoke the licenses of all accident prone drivers and habitual violators.

4. Every court should take immediate steps to analyze its schedule of penalties to determine whether they are having the desired deterrent and educational effect on traffic violators.

5. Every state and community should increase its public education activities to improve public awareness of safe driving and walking practices. High school driver education should be encouraged and expanded.

6. Every state and community should crack down on the drinking driver through chemical tests, stricter enforcement and public education.

KLAMM SAID implementation of this program will give us a head start in meeting the traffic problems of the "Sixties." But this must be followed by long-range planning for research, legislation and financing of adequate accident prevention and traffic control measures, he added.

The traffic safety expert said our only hope of meeting the coming traffic accident problem is through united action of public officials supported by articulate public opinion. He said driver education plus improved driver licensing will provide us with a base from which to attack the traffic situation.

Suburbanite Hopes to Be Next President

Bartlett Man Throws His Hat in Political Ring

by DICK HOFFMANN

Everywhere Worthington Dawkins Genck goes these days, those he knows greet him with a cheery, if somewhat sardonic, "Good morning, Mr. President."

"I don't blame them," Mr. Genck mused one day last week. "The thought was as shocking to me as it is to these people."

The thought is that W. D. Genck, who lives on six acres near the somnolent little suburb of Bartlett, southwest of Hoffman Estates, intends to run for president in 1960.

"I've been given the answer," Genck says with the conviction of a zealous messiah. "I found it two years ago; I don't know why; it's public property."

GENCK'S ANSWER to the nation's ills is a curious blend of the ultra-conservative and the almost-revolutionary. Although a registered Republican, he plans to run in the Democratic primary April 5 in Wisconsin.

The Genck discovery, as included in his prepared platform, is that there is more than one way to cut taxes. "The only recognized way is to cut spending," he observes. But he proposes a further step in eliminating the corporate tax. "We're only kidding ourselves when we say 'Tax the rich,' " the retired insurance salesman says, since the consumer pays the increase in higher costs and taxes.

His more immediate "ticket to the White House," as he calls it, however, is the result of an investigation he conducted while doing research on a book he was planning on life insurance selling.

"I gave up on the book when I found out what I did," Genck related. What he found, he says, is that the 12 leading mutual life insurance companies lost "more than $100 million of policy holders' money through manipulations in the bond market from 1956 to 1958, in order to create a market."

"The figures are on file in each state with insurance commissions set up to protect the public," the presidential candidate reported.

"I debated: should I tell Eisenhower about it? Should I hold it back and give it to Nixon to save for ammunition in 1960? I said to myself, 'Here's someone's ticket to the White House,' " Genck continued.

"It should cause any thinking person to react in some sort of way as soon as he recognized it. Right then and there I forgot about my book."

AND GENCK'S answer to the reaction which he thinks such knowledge will prompt is that "the government take over the life insurance industry lock, stock and barrel."

This and other proposals in Genck's platform are those which could be considered the more liberal in content. Other planks in the platform of this timber include:

—a national lottery conducted by the post office department to "get it out of the red and to put hope in the hearts of the people";

—prepaid hospital, medical, surgical and dental care for the whole of "our population."

The ultra-conservative platform planks, however, are as numerous as varieties of wood. They include:

—that strikes for mass wage increases be outlawed and labor leaders secure wage increases on an individual basis "according to merit, thus providing some incentive for workmen to improve their individual performance";

—removing from "politics" all forms of aid and relief and place this responsibility in the hands of the churches. ("The poor should not have to be thankful to politicians for their bread");

—a stable dollar by returning to the Gold standard, and deflating the dollar to the 1940 level by cutting "everything in half";

—return of the functions of the Department of Agriculture to the various state universities and farm organizations;

—elimination of foreign aid, federal housing and slum clearance;

—giving back to the farmers — without cost — the surplus now "held in storage at great expense" in exchange for not planting crops of "any kind until the surplus is consumed";

—reducing aid to veterans by $3 billion, and elimination of both the corporate and personal income tax.

GENCK, a widower who lives alone in an 11-room Southern Colonial home on Illinois 59 about three miles south of Bartlett, considers essential to his program dismissal of many forms of taxation.

"The fact is that the corporation tax turns out to be the most expensive consumer tax of all," he asserts, categorizing three reasons for this: 1) the 52 per cent corporate tax encourages needless if not reckless spending because with it a dollar only costs the corporation 48 cents; 2) expensive departments are maintained (by corporations) in order to keep up with the paper work in connection with taxes and to study ways and means of avoiding them; 3) taxes are a part of the cost of doing business.

Genck thinks elimination of the corporate tax would mean less production and retailing costs, which in turn would be passed on in savings to the consumer.

What would prevent the manufacturer from maintaining high prices for his product through price-fixing or other techniques? "Competition," Genck answers, "would take care of bringing prices down."

THE SUBSEQUENT increase in consumer purchasing power and sale of more items to a foreign market which could then afford American price tags would produce "fantastic results" in consumer consumption, the White House aspirant feels.

In fact, taxes are as odious to Genck as dragons were to the knight-errant; they are to be expeditiously done away with in all possible haste.

"Taxes alone are responsible for inflation," he declares unequivocally. They force labor into "endless strikes," and have sent 15,000,000 mothers "out of their homes . . . to increase the family income so they can pay these high taxes . . ."

Genck further proposes elimination of the personal income tax by eliminating that much expense from the budget. He would also carve from $5 to $6 billion of "waste" off the defense budget without endangering national security."

All these economic measures, he is convinced, would allow paying off of the national debt, whose interest and servicing charges run to $10 billion a year, he added.

ASIDE FROM this panacea for the economy, the Bartlett campaigner suggests this further legislation:

—removal of mothers of children under 18 from the labor market ("Better to have men work 44 to 46 or 48 hours and employ children over 14 than to have mothers away from home."), which he thinks is one step toward solving juvenile delinquency.

—integration to begin "honestly with the first grade of school and proceed naturally from there."

Genck, who has held only one elective office in his life when he was president of the Bartlett Lions club "about 10 years ago," has three children (by a previous marriage) and nine grandchildren.

His wife, Beatrice, died five years ago when the 55-year-old insurance salesman retired. Included on his six-acre home site is a lake of almost an acre in area.

"I always thought I wanted to be a farmer, and we did have a barn and tool shed and animals when we first moved here," Genck explained. "We had a colored couple whom we hired who lived on the place with us. The fellow taught the chickens to dance," he remembered with a laugh.

"You know," he considered, moving his pipe to a corner of his mouth with a big hand, "it was all right for that colored couple to be living with us since they were hired hands, but if we had just rented rooms to them, people around here would have raised a fuss."

So far, the candidate's campaign has consisted of a trip to New York where he tried to appear on some television interview programs. ("I didn't get to first base.") and some journeys to Wisconsin where he will begin his quest for the Democratic nomination.

"I'll concentrate in Madison and then move on to smaller towns or maybe Milwaukee. I'm going to kind of feel my way along," he noted. One of his first maneuvers will be to buy radio and television time in the Wisconsin capital.

"I think the reaction to this will start getting me public appearances," he ventured.

ANSWERING some of his more controversial proposals, Genck admitted that deflation of the dollar to the 1940 level would "do nothing as such but this: if the goods are priced right the world will buy them," meaning an expanded foreign market.

Could the churches assume responsibility for all forms of relief and assistance? "The Mormon church didn't have any of their people on the relief roles in 1933, and the churches were the center of relief before 1930," he notes.

Wouldn't the outlawing of strikes eliminate organized labor's only effective weapon in the collective bargaining field? "The method of mass pay increases is too inflationary. Some workers are deserving and the rest ride along. Mass pay increases destroy individual initiative which is what made America great."

Genck says a national lottery is "a little against my principles," but he adds that 50 million Americans like to gamble and that since the federal government owns 87 per cent of Nevada it "tolerates gambling already, to say the least."

Genck feels that credit buying has created a cardboard economy. "I have 19 rental units and I know how hard it is for people to pay the rent. There are four families now that pay the rent by the week because that's the way they're paid, and if they lose their jobs they have nothing to fall back on."

And everywhere he looks, there is a tax. ("There's a 50 per cent sales tax on gas but people only see the 3½ per cent grocery tax; state license plates which should last the life of the car represent another form of taxation.")

AS A registered Republican whose program seems to embody many "Old Guard" Republican beliefs, how is it that Genck decided to run as a Democrat?

The Republicans seem to be set and think that Nixon and Rocky can work something out, while I feel the Democratic party is more open to suggestion. Then, there's the general feeling that the Democratic party is a party of the people, and I have to be on the side of the people."

Has he lined up any support among Democratic party or precinct leaders? "Well, I talked to the leader of the Milwaukee Young Democrats recently, and he told me he was already pledged to Humphrey (Minnesota senator)."

But Presidential Candidate Worthington Dawkins Genck (whom neighbors know as "Bill") expresses this further confidence: "If the message I have has the popular appeal I think it has I don't have to worry about the Democrats being interested."

WORTHINGTON DAWKINS GENCK, 55, studies figures in connection with economic program which he hopes will take him to the White House in 1960.

GENCK, STOKING FIRE, sees tax structure as basic threat to healthy economic life in this country.

CONFIDENT THAT HIS "discovery" will sway votes, retired insurance man will run as a Democrat in Wisconsin primaries April 5.

To Enforce Fence Rules

To how much privacy is a homeowner entitled?

Not over six feet and in some instances four, if it's measured in terms of fence heights, according to Arlington Heights' proposed new zoning ordinance.

That the village intends to enforce the portion of the code that limits the height of solid fences to four feet and that of open mesh construction to six feet was made clear recently when the village attorney ruled that four homeowners on Kennicott between Sigwalt and Grove streets are in violation of the code.

The homeowners erected solid fences approximately six feet in height between their backyards and the lots fronting on Patton st.

A HOMEOWNER on Patton complained to the village building and zoning commissioner that the fence was unsightly and lowered his property value.

Commissioner Fred Hammer took the matter up with Village Attorney Stephen Jurco who had a legal opinion delivered to each of the homeowners that their fence violated the ordinance and should be made to conform.

It's here that the matter becomes complicated. The existing zoning ordinance doesn't regulate fence heights, and the new village ordinance has yet to be adopted by the village board. Furthermore, the fence was erected before the zoning ordinance was recommended for adoption by the zoning commission.

JURCO EXPLAINED his reasoning to be that while the ordinance was not retroactive and had not been officially adopted, it had been approved by the zoning commission, and that that was enough to enforce it.

When reminded that the fence was erected before the zoning commission approved the new code, he said it was his understanding that the fence had been blown down by the wind and reconstructed after the zoning ordinance had been approved by the commission.

As of this week, the fence was still in place.

Square Dance Club News

Swingin' Squares

Don Finfrock and Bing Bengson's ad-libbed calls to swing the corner "dwarf" instead of the usual "lady" were right in order and readily followed October 16 at the annual Halloween costume party dance where Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs stole the show. Eleven other squares joined Snow White and her dwarfs at one of the most fun dances ever to be held at the Recreation Park field house and a mystery panel of judges had a rough time selecting the prize-winning costumes.

The group prize was won by the dwarfs and their girl friend. Harry and Ruth Ryan, Ray and Bette Howes and Alice Scheske of Arlington Heights and Jack and Loretta Drazba of Palatine were revealed to be the dwarfs and the tall, slender Snow White bedazzling in a shining gown turned out to be Carl Scheske.

MERLE AND BEA Hosimer of Palatine, dressed as twin clowns, looked funny enough to win the first couples prize and barely bubble-nosed out the flaming "Satan and his Bride" who at the unveiling were Joe and Grace Crittenden of Arlington Heights.

The officers acted as hosts for this unusual fun party and were complimented throughout the evening on their success. The decorations were good, the unlimited supply of assorted doughnuts that were served all evening were even better and sweet cider and coffee flowed freely.

The next regular dance of the Swingin' Squares will be tomorrow night at the Recreation Park field house. Guests are always welcome.

Swinging Pairs

All square dancers in the area are invited to join the Barrington Swinging Pairs at their next dance November 11 at the Grove Avenue school in Barrington. Dancing is from 8 o'clock until 11 to the calls of Bill Shymkus of Chicago, the club's regular caller. This is an open club, guests are always welcome and dances are held every second and fourth Wednesday nights of each month.

The Swinging Pairs and the Ingleside Woodshed Whirlers are sponsoring a new square dancers' class and urge enrollment for everyone interested in learning to dance. Classes will be held the first and third Monday of every month starting in November and totalling eight sessions with Bill Shymkus instructing. Further information may be had by contacting Swinging Pairs' co-secretaries, Mr. and Mrs. John Weber, 411 Washington, Barrington; phone, Du 1-0684.

Bucks and Does

The Elk Grove Bucks and Does are having a Thanksgiving party dance Saturday, Nov. 14, at the Higgins school in Elk Grove and everybody's invited. Special plans are being made to make this a fun occasion and some lucky dancer will be taking home a Thanksgiving turkey when the dance is over.

The Bucks and Does is an open club and meets at 8:30 the second and fourth Saturday nights of each month at the Higgins school, Higgins and Touhy, in Elk Grove. Bob Kim calls at the second Saturday dances and Frank Walker calls every fourth Saturday night. Coffee and cake are served after each dance.

Beginners' Class

Bob and Rose Kim announce the opening session at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 12, of their new beginners' classes in square dance instruction. Classes will be held in the Herzog school in the Waycindin Park subdivision, Des Plaines. Additional information may be had by contacting the Kims, Rt 1, Box 289, Roselle; phone, La 9-5181.

Suburbanite Hopes to Be Next President

Bartlett Man Throws His Hat in Political Ring

by DICK HOFFMANN

WORTHINGTON DAWKINS GENCK, 55, studies figures in connection with economic program which he hopes will take him to the White House in 1960.

GENCK, STOKING FIRE, sees tax structure as basic threat to healthy economic life in this country.

(B-8

CONFIDENT THAT HIS "discovery" will sway votes, retired insurance man will run as a Democrat in Wisconsin primaries April 5.

Everywhere Worthington Dawkins Genck goes these days, those he knows greet him with a cheery, if somewhat sardonic, "Good morning, Mr. President."

"I don't blame them," Mr. Genck mused one day last week. "The thought was as shocking to me as it is to these people."

The thought is that W. D. Genck, who lives on six acres near the somnolent little suburb of Bartlett, southwest of Hoffman Estates, intends to run for president in 1960.

"I've been given the answer," Genck says with the conviction of a zealous messiah. "I found it two years ago; I don't know why; it's public property."

GENCK'S ANSWER to the nation's ills is a curious blend of the ultra-conservative and the almost-revolutionary. Although a registered Republican, he plans to run in the Democratic primary April 5 in Wisconsin.

The Genck discovery, as included in his prepared platform, is that there is more than one way to cut taxes. "The only recognized way is to cut spending," he observes. But he proposes a further step in eliminating the corporate tax. "We're only kidding ourselves when we say 'Tax the rich,'" the retired insurance salesman says, since the consumer pays the increase in higher costs and taxes.

His more immediate "ticket to the White House," as he calls it, however, is the result of an investigation he conducted while doing research on a book he was planning on life insurance selling.

"I gave up on the book when I found out what I did," Genck related. What he found, he says, is that the 12 leading mutual life insurance companies lost "more than $100 million of policy holders' money through manipulations in the bond market from 1956 to 1958, in order to create a market."

"The figures are on file in each state with insurance commissions set up to protect the public," the presidential candidate reported.

"I debated: should I tell Eisenhower about it? Should I hold it back and give it to Nixon to save for ammunition in 1960? I said to myself, 'Here's someone's ticket to the White House,'" Genck continued.

"It should cause any thinking person to react in some sort of way as soon as he recognized it. Right then and there I forgot about my book."

AND GENCK'S answer to the reaction which he thinks such knowledge will prompt is that "the government take over the life insurance industry lock, stock and barrel."

This and other proposals in Genck's platform are those which could be considered the more liberal in content. Other planks in the platform of this timber include:

—a national lottery conducted by the post office department to "get it out of the red and to put hope in the hearts of the people";

—prepaid hospital, medical, surgical and dental care for the whole of "our population."

The ultra-conservative platform planks, however, are as numerous as varieties of wood. They include:

—that strikes for mass wage increases be outlawed and labor leaders secure wage increases on an individual basis "according to merit, thus providing some incentive for workmen to improve their individual performance";

—removing from "politics" all forms of aid and relief and place this responsibility in the hands of the churches. ("The poor should not have to be thankful to politicians for their bread");

—a stable dollar by returning to the Gold standard, and deflating the dollar to the 1940 level by cutting "everything in half";

—return of the functions of the Department of Agriculture to the various state universities and farm organizations;

—elimination of foreign aid, federal housing and slum clearance;

—giving back to the farmers — without cost — the surplus now "held in storage at great expense" in exchange for not planting crops of "any kind until the surplus is consumed";

—reducing aid to veterans by $3 billion, and elimination of both the corporate and personal income tax.

GENCK, a widower who lives alone in an 11-room Southern Colonial home on Illinois 59 about three miles south of Bartlett, considers essential to his program dismissal of many forms of taxation.

"The fact is that the corporation tax turns out to be the most expensive consumer tax of all," he asserts, categorizing three reasons for this: 1) the 52 per cent corporate tax encourages needless if not reckless spending because with it a dollar only costs the corporation 48 cents; 2) expensive departments are maintained (by corporations) in order to keep up with the paper work in connection with taxes and to study ways and means of avoiding them; 3) taxes are a part of the cost of doing business.

Genck thinks elimination of the corporate tax would mean less production and retailing costs, which in turn would be passed on in savings to the consumer.

What would prevent the manufacturer from maintaining high prices for his product through price-fixing or other techniques? "Competition," Genck answers, "would take care of bringing prices down."

THE SUBSEQUENT increase in consumer purchasing power and sale of more items to a foreign market which could then afford American price tags would produce "fantastic results" in consumer consumption, the White House aspirant feels.

In fact, taxes are as odious to Genck as dragons were to the knight-errant; they are to be expeditiously done away with in all possible haste.

"Taxes alone are responsible for inflation," he declares unequivocally. They force labor into "endless strikes," and have sent 15,000,000 mothers "out of their homes . . . to increase the family income so they can pay these high taxes . . ."

Genck further proposes elimination of the personal income tax by eliminating that much expense from the budget. He would also carve from $5 to $6 billion of "waste" off the defense budget without endangering national security."

All these economic measures, he is convinced, would allow paying off of the national debt, whose interest and servicing charges run to $10 billion a year, he added.

ASIDE FROM this panacea for the economy, the Bartlett campaigner suggests this further legislation:

—removal of mothers of children under 18 from the labor market ("Better to have men work 44 to 46 or 48 hours and employ children over 14 than to have mothers away from home."), which he thinks is one step toward solving juvenile delinquency.

—integration to begin "honestly with the first grade of school and proceed naturally from there."

Genck, who has held only one elective office in his life when he was president of the Bartlett Lions club "about 10 years ago," has three children (by a previous marriage) and nine grandchildren.

His wife, Beatrice, died five years ago when the 55-year-old insurance salesman retired. Included on his six-acre home site is a lake of almost an acre in area.

"I always thought I wanted to be a farmer, and we did have a barn and tool shed and animals when we first moved here," Genck explained. "We had a colored couple whom we hired who lived on the place with us. The fellow taught the chickens to dance," he remembered with a laugh.

"You know," he considered, moving his pipe to a corner of his mouth with a big hand, "it was all right for that colored couple to be living with us since they were hired hands, but if we had just rented rooms to them, people around here would have raised a fuss."

So far, the candidate's campaign has consisted of a trip to New York where he tried to appear on some television interview programs. ("I didn't get to first base.") and some journeys to Wisconsin where he will begin his quest for the Democratic nomination.

"I'll concentrate in Madison and then move on to smaller towns or maybe Milwaukee. I'm going to kind of feel my way along," he noted. One of his first maneuvers will be to buy radio and television time in the Wisconsin capital.

"I think the reaction to this will start getting me public appearances," he ventured.

ANSWERING some of his more controversial proposals, Genck admitted that deflation of the dollar to the 1940 level would "do nothing as such but this: if the goods are priced right the world will buy them," meaning an expanded foreign market.

Could the churches assume responsibility for all forms of relief and assistance? "The Mormon church didn't have any of their people on the relief roles in 1933, and the churches were the center of relief before 1930," he notes.

Wouldn't the outlawing of strikes eliminate organized labor's only effective weapon in the collective bargaining field? "The method of mass pay increases is too inflationary. Some workers are deserving and the rest ride along. Mass pay increases destroy individual initiative which is what made America great."

Genck says a national lottery is "a little against my principles," but he adds that 50 million Americans like to gamble and that since the federal government owns 87 per cent of Nevada it "tolerates gambling already, to say the least."

Genck feels that credit buying has created a cardboard economy. "I have 19 rental units and I know how hard it is for people to pay the rent. There are four families now that pay the rent by the week because that's the way they're paid, and if they lose their jobs they have nothing to fall back on."

And everywhere he looks, there is a tax. ("There's a 50 per cent sales tax on gas but people only see the 3½ per cent grocery tax; state license plates which should last the life of the car represent another form of taxation.")

AS A registered Republican whose program seems to embody many "Old Guard" Republican beliefs, how is it that Genck decided to run as a Democrat?

The Republicans seem to be set and think that Nixon and Rocky can work something out, while I feel the Democratic party is more open to suggestion. Then, there's the general feeling that the Democratic party is a party of the people, and I have to be on the side of the people."

Has he lined up any support among Democratic party or precinct leaders? "Well, I talked to the leader of the Milwaukee Young Democrats recently, and he told me he was already pledged to Humphrey (Minnesota senator)."

But Presidential Candidate Worthington Dawkins Genck (whom neighbors know as "Bill") expresses this further confidence: "If the message I have has the popular appeal I think it has I don't have to worry about the Democrats being interested."

To Enforce Fence Rules

To how much privacy is a homeowner entitled?

Not over six feet and in some instances four, if it's measured in terms of fence heights, according to Arlington Heights' proposed new zoning ordinance.

That the village intends to enforce the portion of the code that limits the height of solid fences to four feet and that of open mesh construction to six feet was made clear recently when the village attorney ruled that four homeowners on Kennicott between Sigwalt and Grove streets are in violation of the code.

The homeowners erected solid fences approximately six feet in height between their backyards and the lots fronting on Patton st.

A HOMEOWNER on Patton complained to the village building and zoning commissioner that the fence was unsightly and lowered his property value.

Commissioner Fred Hammer took the matter up with Village Attorney Stephen Jurco who had a legal opinion delivered to each of the homeowners that their fence violated the ordinance and should be made to conform.

It's here that the matter becomes complicated. The existing zoning ordinance doesn't regulate fence heights, and the new village ordinance has yet to be adopted by the village board. Furthermore, the fence was erected before the zoning ordinance was recommended for adoption by the zoning commission.

JURCO EXPLAINED his reasoning to be that while the ordinance was not retroactive and had not been officially adopted, it had been approved by the zoning commission, and that that was enough to enforce it.

When reminded that the fence was erected before the zoning commission approved the new code, he said it was his understanding that the fence had been blown down by the wind and reconstructed after the zoning ordinance had been approved by the commission.

As of this week, the fence was still in place.

Swingin' Squares

Don Finfrock and Bing Bengson's ad-libbed calls to swing the corner "dwarf" instead of the usual "lady" were right in order and readily followed October 16 at the annual Halloween costume party dance where Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs stole the show. Eleven other squares joined Snow White and her dwarfs at one of the most fun dances ever to be held at the Recreation Park field house and a mystery panel of judges had a rough time selecting the prize-winning costumes.

The group prize was won by the dwarfs and their girl friend. Harry and Ruth Ryan, Ray and Bette Howes and Alice Scheske of Arlington Heights and Jack and Loretta Drazba of Palatine were revealed to be the dwarfs and the tall, slender Snow White bedazzling in a shining gown turned out to be Carl Scheske.

MERLE AND BEA Hosimer of Palatine, dressed as twin clowns, looked funny enough to win the first couples prize and barely bubble-nosed out the flaming "Satan and his Bride" who at the unveiling were Joe and Grace Crittenden of Arlington Heights.

The officers acted as hosts for this unusual fun party and were complimented throughout the evening on their success. The decorations were good, the unlimited supply of assorted doughnuts that were served all evening were even better and sweet cider and coffee flowed freely.

The next regular dance of the Swingin' Squares will be tomorrow night at the Recreation Park field house. Guests are always welcome.

Swinging Pairs

All square dancers in the area are invited to join the Barrington Swinging Pairs at their next dance November 11 at the Grove Avenue school in Barrington. Dancing is from 8 o'clock until 11 to the calls of Bill Shymkus of Chicago, the club's regular caller. This is an open club, guests are always welcome and dances are held every second and fourth Wednesday nights of each month.

The Swinging Pairs and the Ingleside Woodshed Whirlers are sponsoring a new square dancers' class and urge enrollment for everyone interested in learning to dance. Classes will be held the first and third Monday of every month starting in November and totalling eight sessions with Bill Shymkus instructing. Further information may be had by contacting Swinging Pairs' co-secretaries, Mr. and Mrs. John Weber, 411 Washington, Barrington; phone, Du 1-0634.

Bucks and Does

The Elk Grove Bucks and Does are having a Thanksgiving party dance Saturday, Nov. 14, at the Higgins school in Elk Grove and everybody's invited. Special plans are being made to make this a fun occasion and some lucky dancer will be taking home a Thanksgiving turkey when the dance is over.

The Bucks and Does is an open club and meets at 8:30 the second and fourth Saturday nights of each month at the Higgins school, Higgins and Touhy, in Elk Grove. Bob Kim calls at the second Saturday dances and Frank Walker calls every fourth Saturday night. Coffee and cake are served after each dance.

Beginners' Class

Bob and Rose Kim announce the opening session at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 12, of their new beginners' classes in square dance instruction. Classes will be held in the Herzog school in the Waycindin Park subdivision, Des Plaines. Additional information may be had by contacting the Kims, Rt 1, Box 289, Roselle; phone, La 9-5181.

Builder Urges Suburban Help in Cutting Costs

An Arlington Heights builder this week called on suburban governments to help fight rising housing costs by approving new building materials and techniques and by closer cooperation with the builder in construction approvals, inspections and the issuance of permits.

Albert E. Riley, president of Hasbrook Construction co., noted a 10 per cent increase in building costs over the past two years which has priced houses "out of the reach of many people." He added that costs must be kept in line to allow a builder to make contributions to a village for parks and schools.

SPEAKING BEFORE more than 100 county and village officials Tuesday night at the Rolling Green Country club, Riley reported that since 1957 his company has constructed 300 houses in a 532-unit development in north Arlington Heights.

He said the sub-division is nearly completed and that his company "has other plans" which he did not disclose.

The dinner marked the second Hasbrook-sponsored progress report meeting. Mayor Edward Carlisle, Jack Wood, president of Hasbrook Civic assn., mortgage bankers and housing officials were among the guests.

Riley said the minimum annual income to own a Hasbrook house has jumped from $6,000 in 1957 to $8,000 while the median family unit income in Arlington Heights is $8,100. He added:

"This means that half the families now living in the suburb couldn't afford to buy a new home in their own town." He said Hasbrook houses are the lowest priced in the village.

DESPITE RISING costs, the builder said his company has contributed $93,100 to the Wilson School district and $125,000 to the park board for development of a 14-acre park on land donated by Hasbrook.

At the Tuesday night dinner Riley presented a $5,200 check to George E. Herbert, president of the Wilson school board, as part payment and a $2,733 check to Tom Thornton, director of the park board.

The Hasbrook president also announced that the company would provide a house without cost for a year for use by the Arlington Heights Art Center.

Riley called attention to the $1,600,000 additional buying power of Hasbrook residents to the village's economy. He said the company itself has a $700,000 yearly payroll to workers, who live within a 5-mile radius of Arlington Heights. The company, he added, paid some $25,000 to the village in building fees during the past year.

THE BUILDER cited weather, strikes, both in and out of the building industry, as well as "tight mortgage money" among a variety of factors that can either make or break a builder.

With all these factors affecting profits, the builder must maintain good community relations in expectation of cooperation by village officials, he added.

"The benefits of this cooperation apply to the village as well as the builder," Riley noted. "A strong, healthy builder is in a position to help the village." (ACM

WILLIAM H. RENTSCHLER

The public is invited to a special open meeting of the newly formed Mt. Prospect Young Republicans club, at 8 p.m., Monday, November 9, in the Lion's Park auditorium.

Renschler, at 34, is already one of the state's leading business and political figures.

IN 1957, he and two associates with little capital, a promissory note and a lot of ideas bought Stevens Candy Kitchens, Inc. In the three years since, Rentschler, as president, has doubled the company's sales, completely altering its sales and distribution patterns.

Last year, he helped form CandyGrams, Inc., also assuming its presidency. Rentschler is the youngest member of President Eisenhower's 44-member Republican Committee on Program and Progress. He is president of the Young Republican Organization of Illinois and a director and member of many other civic and charitable organizations.

Monday night, he will speak on, "Needed: New Vision for the '60's."

The Mt. Prospect Young Republicans club was formed last month as a means to promote good government and to help its members take an active part in community, state and national affairs.

Revenue Article Work Is Outlined

W. RUSSELL ARRINGTON
State Senator,
4th Senatorial District

Many of you have inquired just what did occur in the last legislative session with respect to the Revenue Article of the Constitution.

Following the 1957 session, a Joint Committee was formed, consisting of representatives from various business, civic and taxpayer groups, to construct a proposed Revenue Article Amendment. After much work, an amendment was agreed upon by eight of the 11 organizations having representation on that Committee. I worked with this Committee and on May 5, 1959, along with 27 other Senators, introduced the measure which had been agreed upon.

Its principal features provided for a classification of real estate and tangible personal property into two separate classes, to be taxed solely by valuation. It further provided that intangible personal property could be classified into one or more classifications,each to be uniform within its class. It also included a specific prohibition against the levy of a graduated income tax.

MEANWHILE a number of other suggested amendments had been introduced. These had a wide range of concept. One, for instance, gave the Legislature full authority to levy any kind of tax without limitation. Some of the measures provided for the imposition of an income tax, whether graduated or nongraduated. Another measure prohibited the imposition of any sort of an income tax, graduated or nongraduated. One proposed the abolition of the personal property tax altogether.

I would say that the principal issue developed between those who wanted the Legislature to have the power to levy an income tax and those who wished to prohibit such a tax altogether.

THE MEASURE which I introduced took an in-between position on these two issues in that it prohibited only a graduated income tax. It further provided, however, that the Legislature could impose a nongraduated income tax only if it were approved at a public referendum.

After many Committee hearings, a Joint Legislative Committee was appointed to consider all measures which had been introduced. After a number of hearings, it became apparent that no measure pending in either House would be able to obtain the two-thirds vote necessary to permit its passage and submission to the people.

It is interesting to note that the two measures which came closest to passage would have enabled the Legislature to impose an income tax either of nongraduated or graduated character.

The whole problem, therefore, remains unresolved and there will be no opportunity for the voters of this State to take a position in this field until at least 1962. Even this cannot occur unless the Legislature can produce a two-thirds vote of each House in support of such a proposed amendment. At the present time I am discouragedly doubtful that this can occur.

Sign Ordinance Is 'Surprise'

That the village's recently adopted sign ordinance prohibits flashing neon signs came as a surprise to at least one village board member this week.

The question arose over William Electric Supply company's attempt to secure a permit for a flashing sign of 125 sq. ft. for its new building on E. Northwest hwy.

The permit request was denied by the board on the village manager's recommendation. The manager also noted that the sign ordinance limits the size of vertical projecting signs to 40 sq. ft. for each side.

Missionary To Address WSCS Meet

A former missionary to Japan will be guest speaker at the November Women's Missionary Society at the Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church, Tuesday, Nov. 10, at 8:00 p.m.

Mrs. Dwight Fuller will not be a stranger to her audience, as the Fuller family lived in Arlington Heights for a year on their return from Japan, and attended the local Evangelical Free Church. They now reside in Cary, Ill.

Mrs. Fuller, a registered nurse, received her training at Swedish hospital in Minneapolis, Minn. She and her husband left for Japan in 1951 with their two children, and served there as missionaries for the Free Church until 1955, when critical illness forced them to return to this country.

FOR TWO YEARS after their return, Dwight Fuller was deputation secretary at the Foreign Missions headquarters of the Evangelical Free Church in Minneapolis. He is now filling the chair of missions at Trinity seminary and Bible college in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuller have travelled extensively during the past three years taking part in missionary conferences in local Evangelical Free Churches throughout the country.

A social hour and refreshments will follow the business meeting and program.

A baby shower was given for Mrs. Harold Burton Tuesday evening by Mrs. Ken Reed and Mrs. William Taft. Helping to make the evening an enjoyable affair were Mrs. Joe Heckenback, Mrs. Louis Sylvester, Mrs. George Lauterer, Mrs. James Deal, Mrs. James Salisbury, Mrs. John Czerechowicz, Mrs. Ed Boniakowski, Mrs. Frank Bedo and Mrs. Clyde House.

Mr. and Mrs. John Czerechowicz attended an anniversary party Saturday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Chereck of Chicago.

The children of Wedgewood enjoyed a Halloween party Saturday afternoon sponsored by the Triangle club. A parade was held, followed by games and a scavenger hunt. Prizes and taffy apples were received by all.

A hard time party was given Saturday night by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Heckenback. Nine couples from the subdivision spent a gay evening playing games and dancing.

A COSTUME party was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Melvin and attended by 32 people. A dummy had been placed in a make shift coffin, and at the height of the party the group took the coffin to the Elks club in Des Plaines and held mock funeral services. Leaving everyone at the club in a gay state, the group returned to the Melvins, for refreshments and more fun.

Albert Marchetti celebrated his seventh birthday Sunday with a family party of 26 guests.

The November meeting of the Triangle club will be held Tuesday, Nov. 10, in the home of Mrs. Tom Merritt. Mrs. James Sailer was cohostess. (AM

Pianist Wins High Praise in Concert

by DOLORES HRUBY

A near capacity crowd which heard pianist, Richard Cass, in the second concert of the Community Concert Association series last Sunday evening was justifiably enthusiastic about this young man.

Cass played with an excellent but unobtrusive technique, fine polish and occasional flashes of fire. His program was a well chosen selection from standard piano repertory. Especially delightful were the good-humored romp through the third movement of the Beethoven Sonata, the exquisite delicacy of the Chopin Berceuse, the brilliance of the Prokofieff Toccata and the excitement of the Chopin F mihor Ballade.

The only disappointment was the Keeney Sonatina, which was rather like a modern variation on Turkey In The Straw with the usual cliches of misplaced accents and a few unexpected notes and chords. At best it was cute and Cass played it accordingly, but it was hardly able to hold its own with the otherwise solid program.

BEFORE playing the Beethoven Sonata Cass talked to the audience about this work and made it even more interesting for many of us. There are those who feel that it is beneath the dignity of an artist to talk to his audience. But if Leonard Bernstein, conductor of the august New York Philharmonic, can sit on the stage and talk to his supposedly sophisticated New York audience, a performer in the Arlington High School girls' gym should feel free to follow suit. At any rate we like it and we like the bond it helps to establish between artist and audience.

One of the rewards of being a member of Community Concerts is the opportunity to hear young artists at the beginning of their successful careers, and Richard Cass certainly is one of these. We shall watch with interest as he progresses and matures.

Builder Urges Suburban Help in Cutting Costs

An Arlington Heights builder this week called on suburban governments to help fight rising housing costs by approving new building materials and techniques and by closer cooperation with the builder in construction approvals, inspections and the issuance of permits.

Albert E. Riley, president of Hasbrook Construction co., noted a 10 per cent increase in building costs over the past two years which has priced houses "out of the reach of many people." He added that costs must be kept in line to allow a builder to make contributions to a village for parks and schools.

SPEAKING BEFORE more than 100 county and village officials Tuesday night at the Rolling Green Country club, Riley reported that since 1957 his company has constructed 300 houses in a 532-unit development in north Arlington Heights.

He said the sub-division is nearly completed and that his company "has other plans" which he did not disclose.

The dinner marked the second Hasbrook-sponsored progress report meeting. Mayor Edward Carlisle, Jack Wood, president of Hasbrook Civic assn., mortgage bankers and housing officials were among the guests.

Riley said the minimum annual income to own a Hasbrook house has jumped from $6,000 in 1957 to $8,000 while the median family unit income in Arlington Heights is $8,100. He added:

"This means that half the families now living in the suburb couldn't afford to buy a new home in their own town." He said Hasbrook houses are the lowest priced in the village.

DESPITE RISING costs, the builder said his company has contributed $93,100 to the Wilson School district and $125,000 to the park board for development of a 14-acre park on land donated by Hasbrook.

At the Tuesday night dinner Riley presented a $5,200 check to George E. Herbert, president of the Wilson school board, as part payment and a $2,733 check to Tom Thornton, director of the park board.

The Hasbrook president also announced that the company would provide a house without cost for a year for use by the Arlington Heights Art Center.

Riley called attention to the $1,600,000 additional buying power of Hasbrook residents to the village's economy. He said the company itself has a $700,000 yearly payroll to workers, who live within a 5-mile radius of Arlington Heights. The company, he added, paid some $25,000 to the village in building fees during the past year.

THE BUILDER cited weather, strikes, both in and out of the building industry, as well as "tight mortgage money" among a variety of factors that can either make or break a builder.

With all these factors affecting profits, the builder must maintain good community relations in expectation of cooperation by village officials, he added.

"The benefits of this cooperation apply to the village as well as the builder," Riley noted. "A strong, healthy builder is in a position to help the village."

Helping to make the evening an enjoyable affair were Mrs. Joe Heckenback, Mrs. Louis Sylvester, Mrs. George Lauterer, Mrs. James Deal, Mrs. James Salisbury, Mrs. John Czerechowicz, Mrs. Ed Boniakowski, Mrs. Frank Bedo and Mrs. Clyde House.

Mr. and Mrs. John Czerechowicz attended an anniversary party Saturday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Chereck of Chicago.

The children of Wedgewood enjoyed a Halloween party Saturday afternoon sponsored by the Triangle club. A parade was held, followed by games and a scavenger hunt. Prizes and taffy apples were received by all.

A hard time party was given Saturday night by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Heckenback. Nine couples from the subdivision spent a gay evening playing games and dancing.

A COSTUME party was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Melvin and attended by 32 people. A dummy had been placed in a make shift coffin, and at the height of the party the group took the coffin to the Elks club in Des Plaines and held mock funeral services. Leaving everyone at the club in a gay state, the group returned to the Melvins, for refreshments and more fun.

Albert Marchetti celebrated his seventh birthday Sunday with a family party of 26 guests.

The November meeting of the Triangle club will be held Tuesday, Nov. 10, in the home of Mrs. Tom Merritt. Mrs. James Sailer was cohostess.

Pianist Wins High Praise in Concert

by DOLORES HRUBY

A near capacity crowd which heard pianist, Richard Cass, in the second concert of the Community Concert Association series last Sunday evening was justifiably enthusiastic about this young man.

Cass played with an excellent but unobtrusive technique, fine polish and occasional flashes of fire. His program was a well chosen selection from standard piano repertory. Especially delightful were the good-humored romp through the third movement of the Beethoven Sonata, the exquisite delicacy of the Chopin Berceuse, the brilliance of the Prokofieff Toccata and the excitement of the Chopin F minor Ballade.

The only disappointment was the Keeney Sonatina, which was rather like a modern variation on Turkey In The Straw with the usual cliches of misplaced accents and a few unexpected notes and chords. At best it was cute and Cass played it accordingly, but it was hardly able to hold its own with the otherwise solid program.

BEFORE playing the Beethoven Sonata Cass talked to the audience about this work and made it even more interesting for many of us. There are those who feel that it is beneath the dignity of an artist to talk to his audience. But if Leonard Bernstein, conductor of the august New York Philharmonic, can sit on the stage and talk to his supposedly sophisticated New York audience, a performer in the Arlington High School girls' gym should feel free to follow suit. At any rate we like it and we like the bond it helps to establish between artist and audience.

One of the rewards of being a member of Community Concerts is the opportunity to hear young artists at the beginning of their successful careers, and Richard Cass certainly is one of these. We shall watch with interest as he progresses and matures.

Touring Swedes Turn Tables on Reporter

TOURING SWEDISH architects and engineers pause during their tour of Rolling Meadows' one-family dwellings. The men spent half a day touring different housing and shopping projects in the northwest suburbs.

Nothing like being sent on an assignment and having the tables turned.

That's what happened, Thursday, when 16 Swedish architects and building engineers toured Rolling Meadows as one stop on their trip through typical Chicago buildings.

In Rolling Meadows they investigated one - family dwelling. Carefully the men knocked at flooring, pushed beams, squinted at pipes, and tapped heating systems.

The houses were a group of unfinished model homes shown by Kimball Hill & associates, developers of the booming city south of the Arlington Race track.

BARELY COULD the reporter get out questions on how these structures compared with those in Sweden when she was giving information on the circulation, number of editors, size of editions, and number of towns served by her papers.

The interviewee turned interviewer was Erik Lindstrom, enthusiastic editor of a monthly magazine circulated to 250,000 builders throughout Sweden.

He and others nearby nodded approvingly when told that Paddock put out 13 weekly papers.

The question that interested them most was, "How many pictures do you print?"

NEVER HAVING counted the number of pictures in a single issue, the reporter was at a loss, but explained that a good newspaper tried to put one on every page with sports, society, and front pages usually carrying far more.

When the questioning turned back to the men's tour, they said they thought the homes in Rolling Meadows probably sold for less than comparable homes in Sweden, but that it was difficult to transform currencies equally.

"Swedish labor costs are probably about the same," one said. "But too many other factors have to be considered to give a fair answer." He noted that Swedish builders probably pay more attention to heating facilities in their homes than do builders here, because of climatic differences.

Representing all phases of the building industry, the men were especially interested in seeing housing cooperatives, highly popular now in Sweden.

FROM NEW York, October 15, they have visited Philadelphia, Washington, D. C., Columbus, Ohio, Indianapolis and Lafayette, Ind., Urbana and Chicago, Ill., Detroit, Mich., Buffalo and Niagra Falls, N.Y. They leave for home, November 4.

They included a tour of project in Arlington Heights, Deerfield, Lincoln village and Old Orchard shopping centers, luxury high-rise apartments in the city, and old and new indutrial plants.

From here, the group, sponsored bw Homebuilders association, went to Detroit to view one of America's largest shopping centers.

Their great interest in shopping centers comes from the fact that the number of cars now in Sweden is about the same as here, explained one. More and more persons are interested in the shopping center plan for the outskirts of town.

Mrs. Martha B. Loss, R.N.

Mrs. Loss is a resident of Palatine, and is presently employed in an administrative nursing capacity. She received her B. A. Degree from Grinnell College in Grinnell, Iowa, and a Master of Nursing Degree from Western Reserve university in Cleveland. He received his training in the U.S. Navy and at De Forest Engineering school in Chicago. Previous employers include International Harvester and Automatic Electric co.

Lawrence Steinman

Steinman is exceptionally well qualified for this appointment. He received his BS Degree in Pharmacy at the Illinois College of Pharmacy. He comes to us from the Presbyterian-St. Luke's hospital where he has been employed since 1953, more recently as assistant chief pharmacist. Steinman's extensive experience will greatly assist us in establishing this important department.

Mrs. Mantine Harbstreit

In addition to her hotel managerial experience covering several years' duration, Mrs. Harbstreit has held previous administrative positions in Chicago as executive housekeeper of the Franklin Boulevard Community hospital, the Edgewater hospital and for the last six years as executive housekeeper of Illinois Central hospital, Chicago.

Russell D. Brown

Brown received a BS Degree in Physical Education at the University of Illinois and a Certification and Registry in Physical Therapy from the University of Wisconsin. He was Chief Physical Therapist of the Community hospital in Elk City, Okla., where he quadrupled the volume of patients treated by the end of two years' service. Recent experience includes staff physical therapist of Sherman hospital, Elgin.

Mrs. Ruth Shub

Mrs. Shub obtained a bachelor of science degree in foods and nutrition from the University of Iowa and was further trained in dietics at Western Pennsylvania hospital in Pittsburgh. She was previously food service manager of the University of Illinois Union building, and food service manager of the Veterans Administration hospital, Chicago. She has more recently served as chief dietitian of the Catherine Booth hospital, Chicago, which is scheduled to close at the end of October, 1959.

Q. If the bride has no one to give her away or walk down the aisle with her, would it be all right for the bride and the bridegroom to walk down the aisle together?

A. This would be all right for a home wedding. But in a church wedding it is not done. It would be much better for the bride to walk alone and the bridegroom to wait for her at the head of the aisle.

Spiraling Health Costs Alarm Suburbanites

Patient Wonders: Can I Afford to Be Sick?

(This is the first in a series of four articles on the fast-rising costs of medical care in the United States. The series will sift and present representative opinion and examples from medical and governmental sources, and will attempt to present an interpretation of what these mean and will mean. It will explore cause and effect of high medical costs.)

by TED SMART

Long hidden in the national inflationary spiral, the run-away cost of staying alive is coming into sharper focus under scrutiny of an alarmed public.

At a rate greater than any other commodity or service, excepting only are hikes in public transportation, medical costs are mushrooming. Across the nation in the past 10 years, the bureau of labor statistics reports, doctors' fees are up 45 per cent, hospital costs have soared 110 per cent, and pharmacies have upped their prescription rates 35 per cent.

In Illinois the figures are even more startling. Here the patient pays 300 per cent more for hospitalization than he did in 1945.

The rumble of discontent is mounting. Twenty pharmaceutical houses are now under investigation by a congressional committee for alleged price-fixing, and talk of fee-splitting, kick-backs, and profiteering is commonplace among those caught in the price squeeze.

Recent national polls indicate a growing disrepute among the public for members of the medical profession. Elmo Roper two years ago found that 32 per cent of the population think doctors are overpaid. "The poor," he reported, "tend to think they are gouged most by doctors, with landlords a close second."

A 1956 survey by the American Medical association found that 60 per cent of the public thought doctors gave patients less time than the patients would like; 54 per cent thought doctors try to hide each other's mistakes; 43 per cent thought physicians charge too much; 39 per cent thought doctors do not take enough interest in a patient; and 31 per cent thought physicians were too eager for surgery. On several of these points, nurses' opinions of doctors were even lower, the AMA found.

This decline in physicians' prestige, said one doctor, is "natural — but regrettable." He explained that the profession is the scapegoat, the target at which the barbs of wrath are aimed by a cost-conscious public.

But the doctor is not the only scapegoat. Today hospitals, and indeed every phase of medical service, is coming more and more under fire as costs continue to soar.

POWERFUL institutions speak for the three major recipients of the medical dollar: the AMA for physicians, the American Hospital association for its group, and the Health Information foundation for the drug houses. Millions of dollars are spent annually by these organizations on national and local levels to explain and justify costs through all information media.

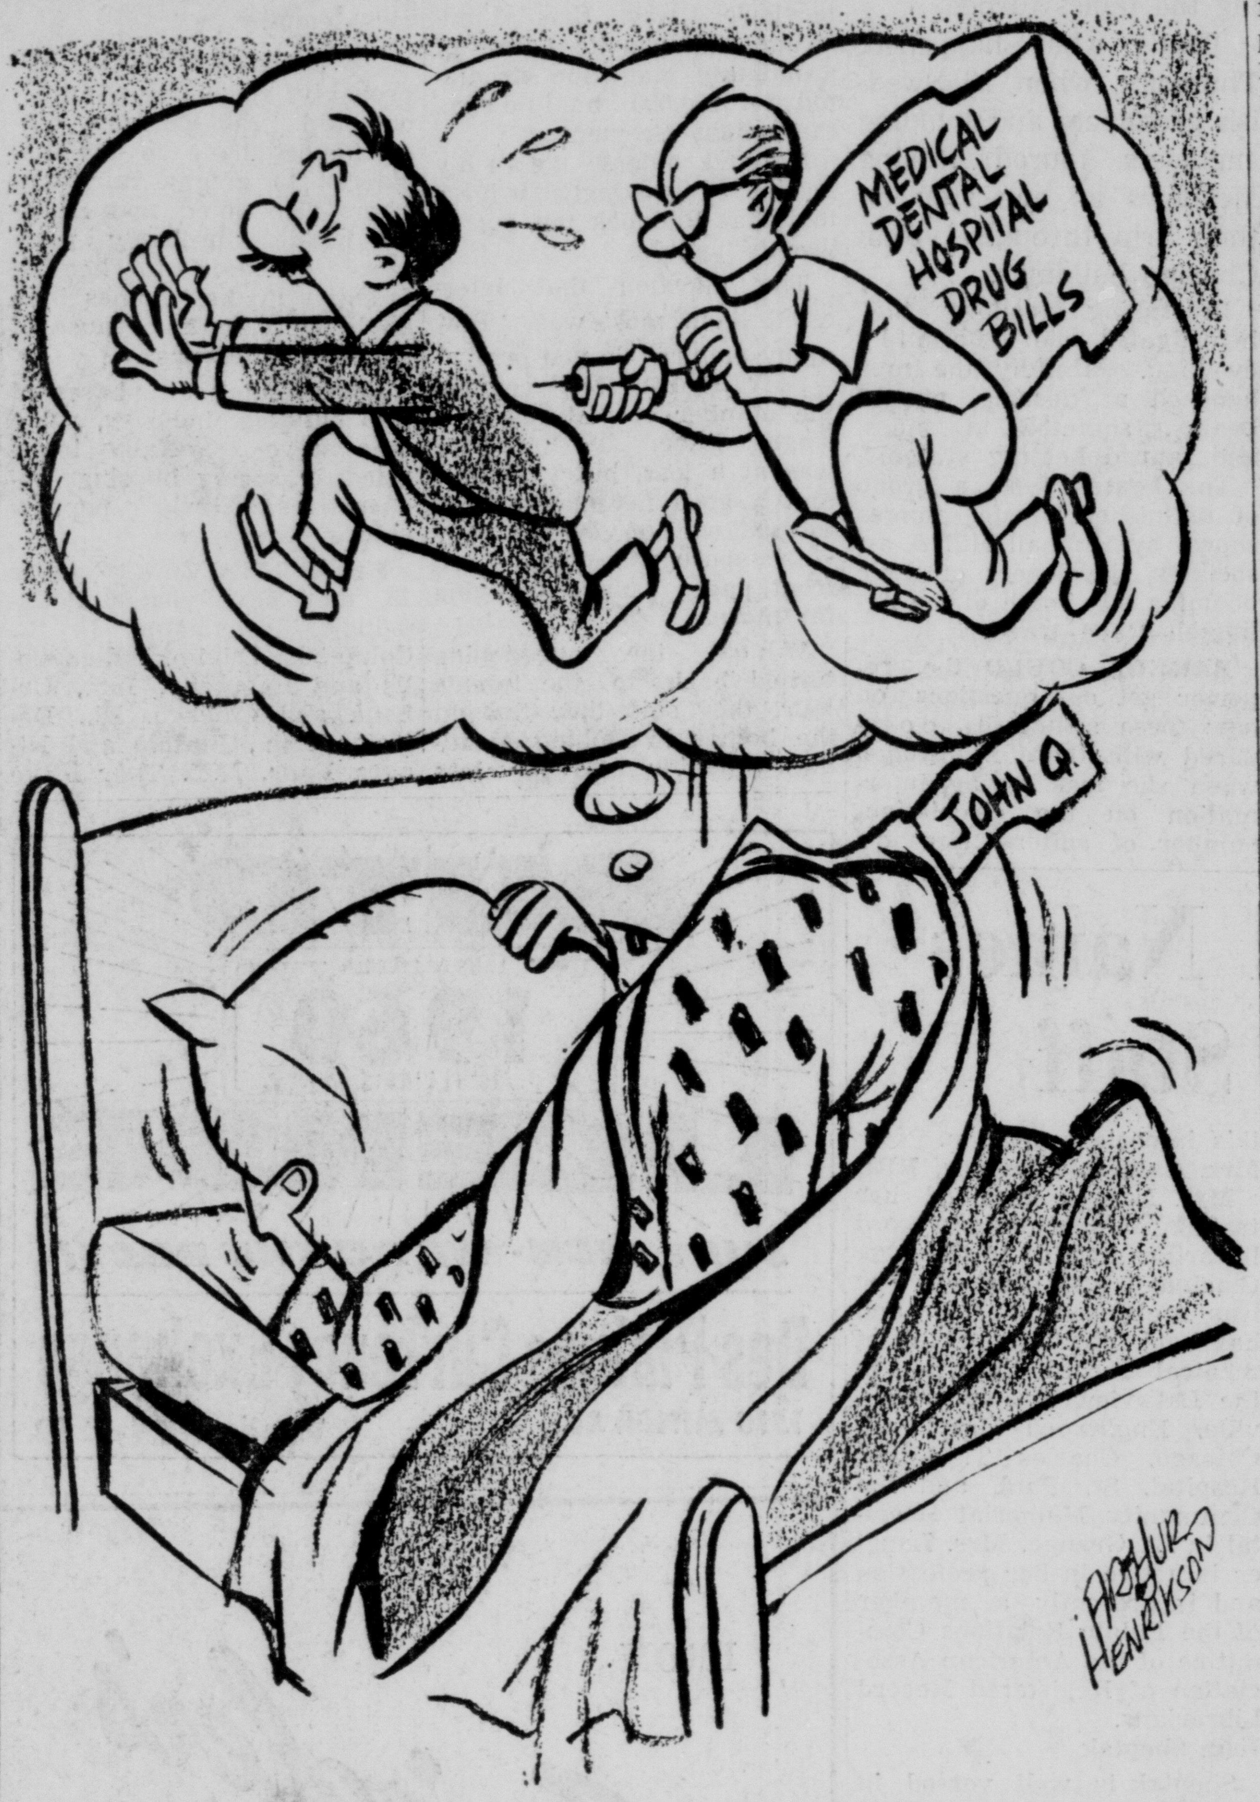
Explaining medical economics to the man on the street, however, often leaves him angry and confused. He is not satisfied with the explanation that the hospital's recent purchase of a linear accelerator for $500,000 is the reason for his being billed 50 cents for an aspirin tablet under the column "medication." He is angered by the bill, and for years he will remember the 50-cent aspirin. He wants to know one thing: when will costs level off?

"As long as hospitals respond to the pressure of public needs, costs will rise," is the opinion of David M. Kinzer, executive director of the Illinois Hospital association.

"We've been told, 'It's too expensive; cut out the frills.'' Yet these are the same people who want air conditioning, plenty of available nurses, and the best of available equipment and services when they are hospitalized," he said last week.

THE NATIONAL organization is just as pessimistic about a leveling-off. A director of public information for the American Hospital association, Richard Johnson, told Paddock Publications last week that costs "will rise indefinitely."

Mrs. Marjorie Lawson, another AHA official, stated that comparing hospital costs today with those of 1945 is like comparing the cost of a glass of milk then to a seven-course dinner now. Her analogy pointed up the remarkable strides in methods of fighting disease in the past 14 years.



MEDICAL DENTAL HOSPITAL DRUG BILLS
JOHN Q.
ARTHUR HENRIKSON

This, then, is the reason that medical costs will not decrease or even level off. Specialization of hospital services, requiring new equipment, more and more highly skilled technicians, and new techniques in surgery and care, are advancing the quality of medicine — and the cost — in an inevitable upward climb.

While Americans are paying the highest per capita premium for medical care, are they getting the most value for their medical dollar? How are the health needs of the nation being met?

To answer these questions, President Harry S. Truman almost 12 years ago directed the federal security agency to make a study of the nation's health. The now-famous Ewing report was the result. A continuing study was authorized by President Eisenhower after assuming office in 1953.

Few can have escaped reading or hearing that Americans enjoy the highest standards of health in the world. These studies show this not to be so.

THE EWING report states the chief barriers to adequate care and service are:

—"The increased cost of modern scientific medical care;

—"The irregular and unpredictable occurrence of sickness and of the costs of medical care, when bills are paid out of pocket by the individual on a fee-for-service basis; and

—"The low incomes of many individuals and low income levels of many communities."

Ewing found a direct proportion between illness and death and income level. In Connecticut in 1946, maternal deaths per 1,000 live births were less than one (.9), while in Mississippi they were just over three (3.1). In Connecticut per capita income stood at $1,465, and in Mississippi it was $555. A 3-to-1 ratio of cost and death.

Infant mortality was in similar proportion: deaths per 1,000 live births in Connecticut were 27.8, while in Mississippi they stood at 37.5. In New Mexico infant deaths were at a horrifying 72.8 ratio.

In South Carolina the mortality rate for white mothers was 1.3 per 1,000 live births; for Negro mothers it was 3.6 per 1,000 live births — or a 170 per cent higher mortality rate.

EWING'S study found that medical services "are available for the most part only to those who can buy them, and to the extent that they can buy them. Doctors do attend many people who cannot pay; hospitals conduct clinics and provide care financed by taxes or public subscription. Nevertheless, it is generally true that people who cannot pay for services go without them partly or entirely."

As advances in the science of medicine continue, the rate of infant mortality has shown a steady decline. American medicine has done much to reduce infant deaths, but is far from making the United States "the healthiest nation in the world" even in this area.

The World Health Organization report for 1953 showed the death rate among U. S. babies was 28 per 1,000. In Sweden the figure was 19; Norway and the Netherlands, 22; Denmark and the United Kingdom, 27. The following year the United States overtook Denmark at 27, but Britain was now down to 25, Sweden to 18, and the Netherlands to 21.

In 1955 the figures given for deaths of infants under one year of age were 27 per 1,000 in this country, as compared with 17 for Sweden, 20 for the Netherlands, and 25 for Denmark.

AMERICAN deaths from whooping cough are today twice as high as those of Sweden, and this is an illness that can be controlled. Another disease easily controlled by antibiotics, penumonia, claimed 33.2 lives per 100,000 American males from 1951 to 1953. Denmark's rate was 23.3 for the same period.

Latest available figures from the statistical office of the United Nations say the U. S. death rate is 9.4 per 1,000 population. This may be compared with Canada's rate of 8.2, Finland's rate of 9, the Netherlands' 7.8, and Norway's 8.5.

Each of the above countries has a program of national health services, which has made medical facilities and care available to all, regardless of ability to pay. The United States, while footing one-half the annual medical bill of $18 billion, pays for treatment of Indians, veterans, servicemen, and the indigent primarily on the local level.

Attempts to provide direct federal medical-cost relief have been met with such resistance from organized medicine that they have failed utterly. That failure is due partly to the AMA, "Washington's most affluent lobby," which has spent more than $1.5 million a year to maintain the status quo, says Author Richard Carter ("The Doctor Business," Doubleday and Company, 1958).

IN 1949, with relief legislapers, and the President advocating a program of national health insurance, medical opposition reached fever pitch. On August 15 of that year, the New York State Journal of Medicine intemperately editorialized:

"Any experienced general practitioner will agree that what keeps the great majority of people well is the fact that they can't afford to be ill. This is a harsh, stern dictum and we readily admit that under it a certain number of cases of early tuberculosis and cancer, for example, may go undetected. Is it no better that a few such should perish rather than that the majority of the population should be encouraged on every occasion to run sniveling to the doctor?"

One month later this official journal of the nation's largest state medical society again editorialized:

"What does 'illness' mean? Cowardice, malingering, laziness, maladaptation, cussedness, pure worthlessness . . . It is time that someone — everyone — should hoist Mr. Charles Darwin from his grave and blow life into his ashes so that they could proclaim again to the world his tough but practical doctrine of the survival of the fittest."

ADMITTEDLY, these are extreme examples of the lengths to which organized medicine will sometimes go when the fee system is threatened.

So effective has been the propaganda of organized medicine, however, that many, if not most, Americans have been conditioned to shudder at terms like "socialized" medicine and national health insurance, much as their fathers and grandfathers did at social security.

Oddly enough, one critic of the present private fee system observed, people would never think to question the desirability of government-supported public education.

Suburban Horse Fans Await International

by JON PETERSON

Once again suburbanites are anticipating the opening of the International Live Stock exposition November 27. Each year thousands of people interested in live stock have swarmed into the exhibitions, while most of us have reserved our enthusiasm for the horse show.

This year the horse show should prove to be particularly exciting with the outstanding horses that have been entered.

Last year, Windsor Castle walked off with the jumping championship. This year, to challenge his position, are at least four horses of merit.

RALPH FLEMING of Park Ridge, should have a good chance to whip Windsor Castle with Jacksorbetter, his Canadian-bred gelding who beat the "wonder horse" at Columbus this year. Ralph is also bringing along Our Flirt a Canadian 16½ hand chestnut mare. Flirt has only been shown four times as an open horse and has already won the stake classes at the Wisconsin state fair and South Shore country club this season.

Both horses have been trained by Ralph and ridden by Barbara Beitzel since he bought them last year. Ralph admits that they could use a little more experience but the double threat team should give Windsor Castle a run for his money.

George Jayne of Park Ridge will be bringing along his fine chestnut gelding Wicklow. A well-muscled horse, Wicklow at 16½ hands looks like he's powerful enough to provide some fancy thrills for the spectators.

Petite Alison Rogers of Barrington will ride her horse Hushpuppy in the open classes against Windsor Castle. Hushpuppy is considered to be the foremost challenger to the "Wonder Horse's" crown. Powerfully built, Alison's 16 hand Buckskin jumper can be described only as "haughty." His carriage and actions at every show he's entered have labeled him a snob. Haughty as he may be, few can question his right to respect.

ONE OF Alison's main problems with Hushpuppy is his lack of respect for low fences. This quality has caused him to lose a few classes due to minor faults. This year he has won several classes at the Wisconsin state fair, championship at Milwaukee, and reserve championship at the Stanley Lukes show among his other conquests. Last season he was reserve champion at Dayton and won the high jump at over 6'3'' in the mud.

Hushpuppy has been worked conscientiously for the past several months to get him in top shape for the International. When asked if she thought her horse could beat Windsor Castle Alison replied, "we've never yet found a limit to his ability." The 6-year-old buckskin has never been tested for his limit in a jumping event. Miss Rogers has no intention of trying for any world's record but if she jumps off against Windsor Castle and Jacksorbetter there is bound to be some sort of record set.

I'm sorry to say that Mrs. Joe Bricker (Maggie Bricker) will not be entering any horses in this years' show since her husband is officiating. Mrs. Bricker has long been known for her good sportsmanship at all shows and her lovely hunter, Star Double, who's come a long way since she bought him. We'll also miss seeing Amigo, her open horse, who held a championship in California.

ASIDE FROM the open horses there will be many superb hunters from this area at the show. Two horses we've heard a lot about are Sea Tramp and Happy Landing, a chestnut gelding that toured the country with Windsor Castle.

Fans of gaited horses should keep their eye on Joy Atkinson's "King Prophet," a gaited gelding that won the five-gaited stake at the Wisconsin State Fair. Another horse to watch closely will be "Easter Creation" an up and coming walk-trot mare.

Swimming Pool for Preserve Studied

A meeting has been tentatively arranged to be held in two weeks between members of the Young Democrats of Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect and County Commissioner Dan Ryan to investigate the possibility of establishing a swimming pool in Elk Grove's forest preserves.

The meeting was being arranged by Otto C. Maleske, Elk Grove township committeeman.

Richard I. Africk, chairman of the Elk Grove Village Young Democrats, reported "a good response from the township committeemen of Schaumburg and Palatine townships" on the proposal.

THE PLAN TO circulate petitions for the swimming pool was first announced October 1.

Africk said he and Frank Krebs of Arlington Heights, chairman of the Mount Prospect Young Democrats, would meet with Commissioner Ryan on the matter.

The pool would probably be erected somewhere directly west of Elk Grove Village, Africk thought.

It would be made available, he added, for residents from Rolling Meadows, Hoffman Estates, Addison, Palatine and East Dundee as well as persons from Mount Prospect and Elk Grove.

There is now one such forest preserve pool in use in the vicinity of Milwaukee and Touhy aves., Africk said he understood.

Edens Corn 'Guessing' Contest On

Edens Plaza's fall fiesta continues on through this week with old fashioned corn guessing contests. In each store there is a different container of corn and a different contest, and there will be 20 different winners of turkeys.

All you have to do is to guess the number of kernels of corn in the containers. Go try your luck; your guess may be the lucky one that will win you a plump turkey. The contest ends Saturday, Nov. 7. Winners will be notified by mail.

As part of the fall fiesta, Davo, a caricature artist, set up shop where hundreds of children waited to have their favorite character painted on the pumpkins they had chosen from the huge pile. Jo Jo, the scare crow man enchanted the youngsters as he played with them.

Spiraling Health Costs Alarm Suburbanites

Patient Wonders: Can I Afford to Be Sick?

(This is the first in a series of four articles on the fast-rising costs of medical care in the United States. The series will sift and present representative opinion and examples from medical and governmental sources, and will attempt to present an interpretation of what these mean and will mean. It will explore cause and effect of high medical costs.)

by TED SMART

Long hidden in the national inflationary spiral, the run-away cost of staying alive is coming into sharper focus under scrutiny of an alarmed public.

At a rate greater than any other commodity or service, excepting only are hikes in public transportation, medical costs are mushrooming. Across the nation in the past 10 years, the bureau of labor statistics reports, doctors' fees are up 45 per cent, hospital costs have soared 110 per cent, and pharmacies have upped their prescription rates 35 per cent.

In Illinois the figures are even more startling. Here the patient pays 300 per cent more for hospitalization than he did in 1945.

The rumble of discontent is mounting. Twenty pharmaceutical houses are now under investigation by a congressional committee for alleged price-fixing, and talk of fee-splitting, kick-backs, and profiteering is commonplace among those caught in the price squeeze.

Recent national polls indicate a growing disrepute among the public for members of the medical profession. Elmo Roper two years ago found that 32 per cent of the population think doctors are overpaid. "The poor," he reported, "tend to think they are gouged most by doctors, with landlords a close second."

A 1956 survey by the American Medical association found that 60 per cent of the public thought doctors gave patients less time than the patients would like; 54 per cent thought doctors try to hide each other's mistakes; 43 per cent thought physicians charge too much; 39 per cent thought doctors do not take enough interest in a patient; and 31 per cent thought physicians were too eager for surgery. On several of these points, nurses' opinions of doctors were even lower, the AMA found.

This decline in physicians' prestige, said one doctor, is "natural — but regrettable." He explained that the profession is the scapegoat, the target at which the barbs of wrath are aimed by a cost-conscious public.

But the doctor is not the only scapegoat. Today hospitals, and indeed every phase of medical service, is coming more and more under fire as costs continue to soar.

POWERFUL institutions speak for the three major recipients of the medical dollar: the AMA for physicians, the American Hospital association for its group, and the Health Information foundation for the drug houses. Millions of dollars are spent annually by these organizations on national and local levels to explain and justify costs through all information media.

Explaining medical economics to the man on the street, however, often leaves him angry and confused. He is not satisfied with the explanation that the hospital's recent purchase of a linear accelerator for $500,000 is the reason for his being billed 50 cents for an aspirin tablet under the column "medication." He is angered by the bill, and for years he will remember the 50-cent aspirin. He wants to know one thing: when will costs level off?

"As long as hospitals respond to the pressure of public needs, costs will rise," is the opinion of David M. Kinzer, executive director of the Illinois Hospital association.

"We've been told, 'It's too expensive; cut out the frills.' Yet these are the same people who want air conditioning, plenty of available nurses, and the best of available equipment and services when they are hospitalized," he said last week.

THE NATIONAL organization is just as pessimistic about a leveling-off. A director of public information for the American Hospital association, Richard Johnson, told Paddock Publications last week that costs "will rise indefinitely."

Mrs. Marjorie Lawson, another AHA official, stated that comparing hospital costs today with those of 1945 is like comparing the cost of a glass of milk then to a seven-course dinner now. Her analogy pointed up the remarkable strides in methods of fighting disease in the past 14 years.

This, then, is the reason that medical costs will not decrease or even level off. Specialization of hospital services, requiring new equipment, more and more highly skilled technicians, and new techniques in surgery and care, are advancing the quality of medicine — and the cost — in an inevitable upward climb.

While Americans are paying the highest per capita premium for medical care, are they getting the most value for their medical dollar? How are the health needs of the nation being met?

To answer these questions, President Harry S. Truman almost 12 years ago directed the federal security agency to make a study of the nation's health. The now-famous Ewing report was the result. A continuing study was authorized by President Eisenhower after assuming office in 1953.

Few can have escaped reading or hearing that Americans enjoy the highest standards of health in the world. These studies show this not to be so.

THE EWING report states the chief barriers to adequate care and service are:

—"The increased cost of modern scientific medical care;

—"The irregular and unpredictable occurrence of sickness and of the costs of medical care, when bills are paid out of pocket by the individual on a fee-for-service basis; and

—"The low incomes of many individuals and low income levels of many communities."

Ewing found a direct proportion between illness and death and income level. In Connecticut in 1946, maternal deaths per 1,000 live births were less than one (.9), while in Mississippi they were just over three (3.1). In Connecticut per capita income stood at $1,465, and in Mississippi it was $555. A 3-to-1 ratio of cost and death.

Infant mortality was in similar proportion: deaths per 1,000 live births in Connecticut were 27.8, while in Mississippi they stood at 37.5. In New Mexico infant deaths were at a horrifying 72.8 ratio.

In South Carolina the mortality rate for white mothers was 1.3 per 1,000 live births; for Negro mothers it was 3.6 per 1,000 live births — or a 170 per cent higher mortality rate.

EWING'S study found that medical services "are available for the most part only to those who can buy them, and to the extent that they can buy them. Doctors do attend many people who cannot pay; hospitals conduct clinics and provide care financed by taxes or public subscription. Nevertheless, it is generally true that people who cannot pay for services go without them partly or entirely."

As advances in the science of medicine continue, the rate of infant mortality has shown a steady decline. American medicine has done much to reduce infant deaths, but is far from making the United States "the healthiest nation in the world" even in this area.

The World Health Organization report for 1953 showed the death rate among U. S. babies was 28 per 1,000. In Sweden the figure was 19; Norway and the Netherlands, 22; Denmark and the United Kingdom, 27. The following year the United States overtook Denmark at 27, but Britain was now down to 25, Sweden to 18, and the Netherlands to 21.

In 1955 the figures given for deaths of infants under one year of age were 27 per 1,000 in this country, as compared with 17 for Sweden, 20 for the Netherlands, and 25 for Denmark.

AMERICAN deaths from whooping cough are today twice as high as those of Sweden, and this is an illness that can be controlled. Another disease easily controlled by antibiotics, penumonia, claimed 33.2 lives per 100,000 American males from 1951 to 1953. Denmark's rate was 23.3 for the same period.

Latest available figures from the statistical office of the United Nations say the U. S. death rate is 9.4 per 1,000 population. This may be compared with Canada's rate of 8.2, Finland's rate of 9, the Netherlands' 7.8, and Norway's 8.5.

Each of the above countries has a program of national health services, which has made medical facilities and care available to all, regardless of ability to pay. The United States, while footing one-half the annual medical bill of $18 billion, pays for treatment of Indians, veterans, servicemen, and the indigent primarily on the local level.

Attempts to provide direct federal medical-cost relief have been met with such resistance from organized medicine that they have failed utterly. That failure is due partly to the AMA, "Washington's most affluent lobby," which has spent more than $1.5 million a year to maintain the status quo, says Author Richard Carter ("The Doctor Business," Doubleday and Company, 1958).

IN 1949, with relief legislapers, and the President advocating a program of national health insurance, medical opposition reached fever pitch. On August 15 of that year, the New York State Journal of Medicine intemperately editorialized:

Swimming Pool for Preserve Studied

A meeting has been tentatively arranged to be held in two weeks between members of the Young Democrats of Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect and County Commissioner Dan Ryan to investigate the possibility of establishing a swimming pool in Elk Grove's forest preserves.

The meeting was being arranged by Otto C. Maleske, Elk Grove township committeeman.

Richard I. Africk, chairman of the Elk Grove Village Young Democrats, reported "a good response from the township committeemen of Schaumburg and Palatine townships" on the proposal.

THE PLAN TO circulate petitions for the swimming pool was first announced October 1.

Africk said he and Frank Krebs of Arlington Heights, chairman of the Mount Prospect Young Democrats, would meet with Commissioner Ryan on the matter.

The pool would probably be erected somewhere directly west of Elk Grove Village, Africk thought.

It would be made available, he added, for residents from Rolling Meadows, Hoffman Estates, Addison, Palatine and East Dundee as well as persons from Mount Prospect and Elk Grove.

There is now one such forest preserve pool in use in the vicinity of Milwaukee and Touhy aves., Africk said he understood.

Edens Corn 'Guessing' Contest On

Edens Plaza's fall fiesta continues on through this week with old fashioned corn guessing contests. In each store there is a different container of corn and a different contest, and there will be 20 different winners of turkeys.

All you have to do is to guess the number of kernels of corn in the containers. Go try your luck; your guess may be the lucky one that will win you a plump turkey. The contest ends Saturday, Nov. 7. Winners will be notified by mail.

As part of the fall fiesta, Davo, a caricature artist, set up shop where hundreds of children waited to have their favorite character painted on the pumpkins they had chosen from the huge pile. Jo Jo, the scare crow man enchanted the youngsters as he played with them.

Tulip Bulbs Are Planted at Schools

MRS. DONALD CONLEY hands girls bulbs to be planted around tree at Dryden school. School was one of four that got bulbs planted on grounds. Girls in picture are Pamela Stark, Katherine Seetch, Nancy Christopherson and Bonny Kay Baness.

SORTING TULIPS for troops to plant are Mary Lee Simpson, Valerie Voise, Pat Hoffman and Barbara Ward. The girls are part of over 350 Scouts and Brownies that helped plant tulip bulbs at schools in Arlington Heights.

DETERMINING THE best place to plant tulip bulbs are Scout troop leaders Mrs. Martin W. Voise, Mrs. George Arndt, Mrs. William Diviney, Mrs. J. C. Clemens, Mrs. Howard Hansen and Mrs. Charles Hess.

Four hundred tulip bulbs were planted last Saturday by Brownies and Girl Scouts at four elementary schools in Arlington Heights.

As a service project designed to beautify their community, the girls planted 100 bulbs each at Park, Westgate, Dryden and South Junior high schools.

Approximately 350 Scouts and Brownies and 50 leaders from the south side of Arlington Heights participated in this citizenship endeavor.

USING THEIR own funds, the troops purchased multicolored Darwin mixed tulips for the planting. They chose October 31 as their planting date in observance of the birthday of Juliette Gordon Low, founder of the Girl Scouts of the United States.

The Girl Scout movement began in March, 1912, in Savannah, Ga., and the first troop in Arlington Heights was organized over 25 years ago.

Since then hundreds of girls have become active in Scouting and last summer alone 232 girls from this area took advantage of Girl Scout camp facilities.

Eastwood Events

President Robert Glader announces that the Eastwood Community association's first meeting of the fall season will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 18 at 8 p.m. in the community room of the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan assn. Christmas party plans are to be discussed.

With a birthday on Halloween, naturally a girl has to celebrate a day early so that she can go "tricks or treating" on the be'witching day. And that's just what Celine Scully did last Friday. Both sets of grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Scully from Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. J. Hodel from Brookfield, came to wish her "Happy Fifth Birthday." The occasion was also celebrated several days earlier with a party for her playmates. Celine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Scully, 212 N. Brighton pl.

Bringing back their limit of pheasants, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Johnson, 405 N. Dryden ave., returned last week from a hunting trip in S. Dakota. With friends from Chicago, the Johnsons spent 10 days at Willow Lake, near Huron, the same place that Mr. Johnson has returned each year for the past 20 years during the hunting season.

FOR HER birthday last Monday, Mrs. George Moore was taken to lunch at the Winter Garden restaurant in Meadowdale by her houseguest, Mrs. Lillian Bryan, former Eastwood neighbor now living in Moline. After luncheon the ladies decided to visit Santa's Village. A three-hour stay testifies that they enjoyed it as much as youngsters do.

Over the past weekend the Moores visited their son Denny at Bradley university, Peoria, for Dad's day festivities.

An after-the-theatre cake and coffee party for six couples was given Sunday night by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Luker, 1019 E. St. James. They had all attended the performance of "Howie" given by Village Theatre at Prospect High school.

A farewell open house party was given on Saturday night by Mrs. Donald Dickinson, 505 N. Dryden, for her husband who left Sunday for a new position in Newport News, Va. Neighbors bidding goodbye to Mr. Dickinson were the Ken Dougans, James Gomans, Hal Carlsens, Jim Monahans, Connelly Stewarts, Glenn Johnsons and Walter Schimers. Friends from Mt. Prospect, Evanston and Glenview were also present.

IT HAS BEEN a busy week for the Dickinsons with many neighbors hosting farewell parties. On Wednesday evening they were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Goman at the Rustic Manor in Gurnee, and on Friday night the C. C. Stewarts entertained them for dinner in their home at 401 N. Dryden.

Two weeks ago after a honeymoon in Florida, newlyweds Karen and John Schroeder moved into their home at 904 E. Euclid ave. This was the former residence of the Clark Johnsons.

Keefer's Pharmacy Prescription News

A Message From J. T. Keefer, 'Your Pharmacist"

HELP CHILDREN AVOID TROUBLE.

To them, a package of pills or tablets, or a colorful bottle of medicine is a fascinating toy.

MEDICINES CAN BE DANGEROUS.

If a large enough amount is absorbed, any medicine can become poisonous. Too often prescriptions, which are perfectly safe to take in their proper dosage are carelessly left where little children can get at them.

PLEASE DANGER-CHECK YOUR HOME NOW.

1. Collect all medicines and put them in a place impossible for children to reach.
2. While doing this throw away everything that is old, or with contents you do not know.
3. Then, when you finish taking a dose of any medicine, don't carelessly leave it exposed to tempt children, but immediately place it away from their reach.

ALWAYS READ THE LABEL OF ANY MEDICINE.

Never give or take any medicine without reading the label and directions to make certain it is the exact one you want.

PHARMACISTS ALWAYS CHECK LABELS

While compounding prescriptions, we read the label of each ingredient when we take it off the shelf. We carefully read the label again before we compound the medicine. We next, for the third time, check the label and contents before we dispense the prescription. If you will be as careful, you will prevent trouble.

Five Victories For Knights' First Varsity Eleven

Prospect Lands Second Place in Interim Loop

by BOB FRISK

Prospect high school's first season of athletic competition is now a matter of record.

And it was an auspicious beginning for the Foundry road school.

Coach Bill Beckman's Knights wound up their inaugural football campaign with five wins in seven contests and a second place in the Interim association. Both losses were by one touchdown with four of the five victories by three or more six-pointers.

As the shoulder pads and helmets are put away for another year, there's definite optimism concerning the 1960 grid campaign at Prospect.

And why not?

NOT ONE boy graduates and the added year of experience will be invaluable for these current juniors. In addition, several of Ted Wissen's sophs this fall will move up to provide some important depth on the varsity aggregation.

"We still need more development and a lot of work," Beckman inserted Tuesday in considering the outlook for next fall. "If they just keep their feet on the ground, these boys will turn out OK. They matured a lot in those last few games."

Beckman feels that the squad developed confidence in its defense as the season drew to a close. They always felt the offense could go, but it wasn't until those last few games that they gained the confidence in the defense."

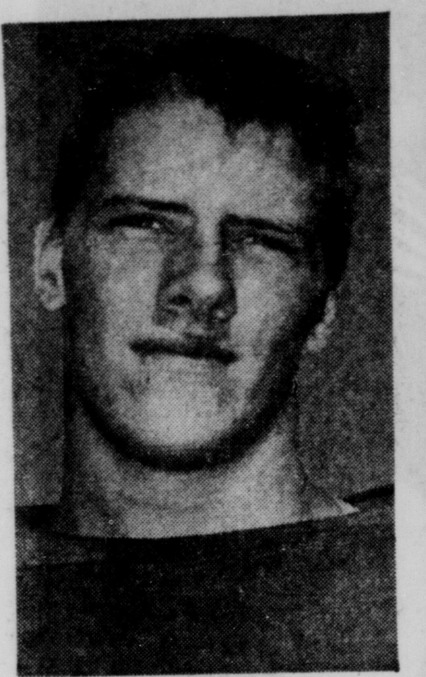
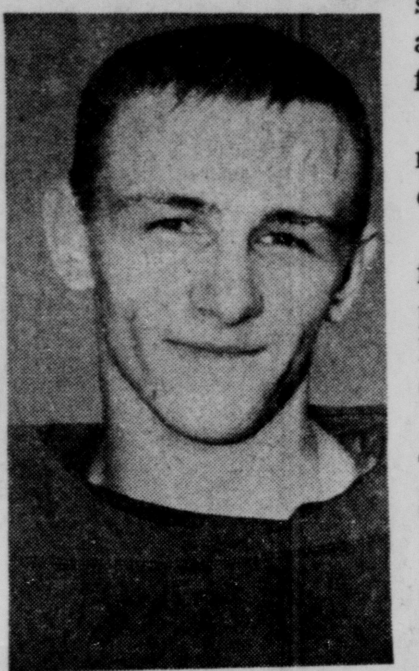
HE POINTED OUT that the club played its best game offensively in the opener, a 27-7 win over Proviso West. "At least the weather was favorable," he added, "and the boys had a chance to block and operate on a dry field."



GEORGE McRAE



KEITH GRAMS

Prospect's best defensive game? "I'd have to say the last four were on a par."

In evaluating the individual performances, Beckman indicated that Bill Zadel, Jeff Rogers, Keith Voigt, Fred Lussow, and Mel Aukamp were probably "the best at their positions in the league."

"I DEFINITELY feel that Zadel was the top center in the Interim with Rogers the top guard. Voigt's all-around ability puts him among the class of the halfbacks, and Fred Lussow was as good a quarterback as we saw. Aukamp had few peers as a defensive end."

Beckman was pleased with the way Bruce Andrise stepped in as a sophomore and performed as a fullback and corner linebacker. In addition, Keith Grams' defensive work drew some post-season plaudits.

Joe Turcek, 195-pound tackle and middleguard, was named the most improved PHS player through a vote of the varsity personnel.

But it was a team effort this fall and you can't forget the work of Dennis Leonard, one of the top extra point kickers in the Chicago area; Fred Empkie, Darryl Phillips, Tom Petrosino, Mike Hogarty, Jim Minikel, George McRae, et al!

Overall, the grid outlook is encouraging for 1960. The word is already circulating around the area: Watch out for Prospect in the Interim!

THIS 'N THAT:

The Campaign-Urbana News-Gazette's 27th annual All-State football team will be announced Nov. 24 . . . Don't be surprised if Arlington is represented on the prep honor squad . . . Two Cardinals have been honored in past years, end Jack Weber and halfback Johnny Sujack, but three boys are being considered this fall . . . Did you realize that Maine has won six of its games this year by one touchdown or less? . . . Palatine's two football teams, varsity and frosh-soph, held the opponents scoreless for 22 straight quarters with the sophs still holding a string of 15 periods in which they haven't yielded a score . . . Roger Boeger, who lived in Arlington before matriculating to York high, is a reserve signal-caller on the University of Kansas football team . . . Arlington's athletic director, Wally Grace, journeyed to Peoria last weekend with Greg Rose's father and reported that Greg, a '58 Arlington grad, turned in a tremendous performance as an offensive center and defensive linebacker for Bradley in a 28-24 losing cause to Wabash . . . Elmwood Park's Terry Ray played one half of one quarter of one game and still finished fifth in Tri-County scoring . . . Know any hard-luck halfbacks? . . . How about Lake Park soph Jeff Johnson who had eight touchdowns called back this fall because of penalties!

New Trier Harrier Champion

The local schools were never in the race as New Trier walked away with the Maine district cross country meet Saturday.

New Trier, the favorite, took first, fifth, sixth, seventh and 12th to defeat runnerup Maine easily.

Arlington finished sixth, highest among local schools with Palatine eighth, Notre Dame ninth and Prospect 12th in a field of 15 teams.

Highest among local finishers was Arlington's Roger Frederickson in 16th place. Palatine's Chuck Conley, out for the first time as a senior, placed 23rd, one ahead of Prospect's Rog Luedke. Ted Johnson led Notre Dame by finishing in 28th position among the more than 100 competitors.

The New Trier and Maine teams plus the five top individuals will go to Urbana for the state meet to be run over the Urbana country club course Saturday morning.

Blue Demons' JVs Blank Cards, 18-0

Maine's junior-varsity eleven blanked Arlington, 18-0, Monday afternoon as the Cards concluded the 1959 campaign.

Arlington had pushed to the six-inch line in the fourth quarter but a fumble terminated the drive.

OFF AND RUNNING on an 82 yard punt return is Prospect's Tom Petrosino (21). Petrosino scored two touchdowns and picked up 51 yards rushing in the Knights' convincing, 41-19 win over Wheaton's Tigers.

Cards' Booster Club Schedules Banquet Nov. 17

The Cardinals Booster Club of Arlington high school announced this week that the Fall Sports banquet originally scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 10, has been postponed until the following week. It will now be held on Tuesday, November 17, at 6:45 p.m. in the Arlington high school cafeteria.

It was brought to the attention of the Booster Club by a member of the "A" Club at the high school that the West Suburban conference dance had also been scheduled for the evening of Nov. 10. Since many athletes to be honored at the banquet have expressed a desire to attend the dance, the Booster Club Board voted to postpone the banquet so as not to interfere with such a popular high school activity.

At the banquet on Nov. 17 all boys who participated in football and cross country will be honored as will the varsity and frosh-soph cheerleading squads. After the banquet is over, all interested persons are invited into the Little Theater to view the films taken during the present football season showing the Cardinals in action.

PARENTS OF the athletes and cheerleaders are cordially invited and urged to attend the banquet. They will soon receive personal invitations from the Booster Club through the athletic department at the high school.

The Fall Sports banquet is one of the many activities sponsored by the Cardinals Booster Club which is constantly striving to improve the functioning of all sports activities of Arlington high school so that the students, the school and the community will be benefitted. Other activities include support of the busses to out-of-town games, the purchase of film for use in the football program, the furnishing of oranges to members of all athletic teams during competition, the awarding of Scholar-Athlete Trophies to lettering students with highest grades in each sport, the arranging of banquets to honor also the athletes participating in the Winter and Spring sports as well as the Fall Sports, and many others.

Memberships in the 1959-60 Cardinals Booster Club are still available and all interested adults in the Arlington high school district are urged to join. Memberships are $2.00 per family or $1.00 each. Mr. John Newhard, 418 Banbury Road, Arlington Heights, is membership chairman of the club.

Big Ten Record

The best team performance on record in the Big Ten cross country championship meets was that by Michigan State in 1956 when Spartan runners finished 1st, 2nd, 5th, 6th and 7th for a low winning total of 21 points.

Cards to Battle Downers Trojans

by BOB FRISK

Football bows out at Arlington high school Saturday afternoon.

Arlington and Downers Grove will clash in the grid finale of 1959 with the Cards in one of their rare afternoon appearances at home.

"Bus" Ormsbee's eleven is still carrying faint hopes for a second place tie in the West Suburban pending the outcome of the Hinsdale-York encounter.

An Arlington victory over Downers Grove would give the Cards a 5-2 league mark and 6-2 overall slate in one of the school's outstanding football campaigns in recent years.

Roland Caranci's Arlington sophs will open Saturday's activities at 12 noon against a Downers Grove eleven with a 2-4 league record. The young Cards stand 1-5 in WSC action.

ONE MAJOR question is revolving around Saturday's varsity battle. Will Arlington bounce back after two straight losses or did the defeats to Maine and Hinsdale take too much out of the Cards? It's questionable whether they'll be up mentally for the final game of 1959.

But given a dry field, the Cards should be able to flash some of that offensive power evident against Hinsdale but lacking against Maine.

A healthy Mike Dundy would make a big difference in the Cardinals' attack Saturday. Dundy is the team's leading rusher and scorer and second leading pass receiver, but a leg injury hampered his play against Maine.

DUNDY NEEDS 196 total yards on offense Saturday to pass the 1,000 mark for the season. He has 530 yards rushing and 275 yards on pass receptions.

Another Arlington performer shooting for that 1,000 mark in yardage is quarterback George Bork. Bork, who has shattered all AHS passing marks, needs 119 yards through the air against Downers for that coveted mark. In seven games he has 61 completions in 112 passes for 881 yards.

Still another Cardinal has a mark going which hasn't been equalled in recent years. Tackle Dan Striegel, 220-pound senior, has played in Arlington's seven games without relief.

Ormsbee praised both Striegel and halfback Bill McMillan for their play in the 6-0 loss to Maine. It was the second straight week that McMillan had turned in an outstanding performance both ways.

Heaviest Trojans include center Ray Barnhart and guard Dan Jacobozzie, both 225-pounders. Jacobozzie and senior Andy Weise, 205-pound tackle, are considered by the Downers coach, Dick Carstens, as the top linemen.

Carstens is high on his current club despite a mediocre 3-3-1 mark. "We're definitely better than that record," he indicated, "with fair balance and team speed."

Halfback Dick Perkins, the club speedster, and fullback Gene Smith have been two impressive performers offensively with junior Rich Coffin operating at quarteback. Coffin played half of the season in '58 on the varsity as a sophomore.

Kickin' It Around On Prospect Football

Prospect Lands Second Place in Interim Loop

by BOB FRISK

Prospect high school's first season of athletic competition is now a matter of record.

And it was an auspicious beginning for the Foundry road school.

Coach Bill Beckman's Knights wound up their inaugural football campaign with five wins in seven contests and a second place in the Interim association. Both losses were by one touchdown with four of the five victories by three or more six-pointers.

As the shoulder pads and helmets are put away for another year, there's definite optimism concerning the 1960 grid campaign at Prospect.

And why not?

NOT ONE boy graduates and the added year of experience will be invaluable for these current juniors. In addition, several of Ted Wissen's sophs this fall will move up to provide some important depth on the varsity aggregation.

"We still need more development and a lot of work," Beckman inserted Tuesday in considering the outlook for next fall. "If they just keep their feet on the ground, these boys will turn out OK. They matured a lot in those last few games."

Beckman feels that the squad developed confidence in its defense as the season drew to a close. They always felt the offense could go, but it wasn't until those last few games that they gained the confidence in the defense."

GEORGE McRAE

KEITH GRAMS

HE POINTED OUT that the club played its best game offensively in the opener, a 27-7 win over Proviso West. "At least the weather was favorable," he added, "and the boys had a chance to block and operate on a dry field."

Prospect's best defensive game? "I'd have to say the last four were on a par."

In evaluating the individual performances, Beckman indicated that Bill Zadel, Jeff Rogers, Keith Voigt, Fred Lussow, and Mel Aukamp were probably "the best at their positions in the league."

"I DEFINITELY feel that Zadel was the top center in the Interim with Rogers the top guard. Voigt's all-around ability puts him among the class of the halfbacks, and Fred Lussow was as good a quarterback as we saw. Aukamp had few peers as a defensive end."

Beckman was pleased with the way Bruce Andrise stepped in as a sophomore and performed as a fullback and corner linebacker. In addition, Keith Grams' defensive work drew some post-season plaudits.

Joe Turcek, 195-pound tackle and middleguard, was named the most improved PHS player through a vote of the varsity personnel.

But it was a team effort this fall and you can't forget the work of Dennis Leonard, one of the top extra point kickers in the Chicago area; Fred Empkie, Darryl Phillips, Tom Petrosino, Mike Hogarty, Jim Minikel, George McRae, et al!

Overall, the grid outlook is encouraging for 1960. The word is already circulating around the area: Watch out for Prospect in the Interim!

THIS 'N THAT:

The Campaign-Urbana News-Gazette's 27th annual All-State football team will be announced Nov. 24 . . . Don't be surprised if Arlington is represented on the prep honor squad . . . Two Cardinals have been honored in past years, end Jack Weber and halfback Johnny Sujack, but three boys are being considered this fall . . . Did you realize that Maine has won six of its games this year by one touchdown or less? . . . Palatine's two football teams, varsity and frosh-soph, held the opponents scoreless for 22 straight quarters with the sophs still holding a string of 15 periods in which they haven't yielded a score . . . Roger Boeger, who lived in Arlington before matriculating to York high, is a reserve signal-caller on the University of Kansas football team . . . Arlington's athletic director, Wally Grace, journeyed to Peoria last weekend with Greg Rose's father and reported that Greg, a '58 Arlington grad, turned in a tremendous performance as an offensive center and defensive linebacker for Bradley in a 28-24 losing cause to Wabash . . . Elmwood Park's Terry Ray played one half of one quarter of one game and still finished fifth in Tri-County scoring . . . Know any hard-luck halfbacks? . . . How about Lake Park soph Jeff Johnson who had eight touchdowns called back this fall because of penalties!

Michigan State and North Carolina will meet for the first time in football in 1962 when the teams play at East Lansing.

New Trier Harrier Champion

The local schools were never in the race as New Trier walked away with the Maine district cross country meet Saturday.

New Trier, the favorite, took first, fifth, sixth, seventh and 12th to defeat runnerup Maine easily.

Arlington finished sixth, highest among local schools with Palatine eighth, Notre Dame ninth and Prospect 12th in a field of 15 teams.

Weymouth Kirkland of New Trier defended his title by winning in 9:52.5 over the very soggy 1.9 mile Maine course. West Suburban champion Jack Kragie was second with Jim Weinert of Highland Park third.

TRI-COUNTY champion Keith Leoni, who led at the halfway mark, finished fourth and Dave Hatcher of New Trier was fifth.

Highest among local finishers was Arlington's Roger Frederickson in 16th place. Palatine's Chuck Conley, out for the first time as a senior, placed 23rd, one ahead of Prospect's Rog Luedke. Ted Johnson led Notre Dame by finishing in 28th position among the more than 100 competitors.

The New Trier and Maine teams plus the five top individuals will go to Urbana for the state meet to be run over the Urbana country club course Saturday morning.

Team points were as follows: New Trier, 31; Maine, 59; Evanston, 79; Highland Park, 111; Elmwood Park, 138; Arlington, 184; East Leyden, 235; Palatine, 236; Notre Dame, 251; Niles, 301; Waukegan, 307; Prospect, 312; Barrington, 350; North Chicago, 354; and West Leyden, 515.

ARLINGTON'S five finishers were Frederickson, 16th; Chuck Phelan, 27th; Tim Smith, 40th; Jim Hendricks, 42nd; and Ron Trebess, 59th.

Palatine's top five were Conley, 23rd; Leonard Ziehm, 48th; Don Miller, 50th; Al Weitzel, 57th; and Jerry Kusek, 58th. Mike Clark, the Pirates' top rated man who led the field at the one-quarter mark, fell clear to 71st place.

Notre Dame's five were Johnson, 28th; Joe Norfray, 29th; Joe Willard, 47th; Mike Gallagher, 73rd; and Don Waddell, 74th.

Prospect's team included Luedke 24th; Doug Vaughan, 52nd; Gary Beck, 69th; Jim Glidden, 83rd; Don Coey 84th.

North Suburban Still In Doubt

The final weekend of suburban high school football is coming up and the championship in the North Suburban is still very much in doubt. There are three crucial games. Most important is Woodstock at Barrington Saturday. If Woodstock wins, the championship is theirs with a 6-1 record. If Barrington wins, both Barrington and Woodstock will have 5-2 records as will Crystal Lake if they beat Palatine Friday night. Should this happen, the outcome of the McHenry-Libertyville game Saturday will be the big determiner. If McHenry wins, it will finish 5-1-1 and this coupled with a Barrington win over Woodstock, would give McHenry a clear championship. If Barrington wins and McHenry loses to Libertyville, which is possible, Barrington and Woodstock will tie for first which also might be shared by Crystal Lake with a win at Palatine. There are a lot of ifs this week.

The way we have it doped out Barrington will beat Woodstock. We have the highest respect for Tom Frederick and Barrington teams when the chips are down and a victory needed to win a championship. However, we doubt if it will do much good except to take second place because we think that McHenry will beat Libertyville and take the championship. Crystal Lake, with a chance at a title tie, will go all out to win at Palatine Friday night and probably will nose out the Pirates by the margin of points after touchdowns. Palatine can't seem to get those extra points this year. If we were sure Palatine's ailing men would be back, we'd pick them. Dundee, which opened the season by beating Crystal Lake, has won none since, hosts winless Zion-Benton Friday night. We are picking Zion to make the most of this final opportunity.

Will Be Good If Woodstock Wins

FROM THE STANDPOINT of competition in the North Suburban we hope that Woodstock wins the championship. To have the smallest school win in the sport where the large schools have the greatest edge, would be good. Probably Woodstock will not have another such chance in football as all the schools are expected to greatly outdistance them in both enrollment and material in the next few years.

Around the suburbs with one game remaining, Evanston has clinched the Suburban League by defeating Highland Park. Niles, the only remaining challenger, fell before New Trier. Maine has no worse than a tie in the West Suburban with a 6-0 record. Hinsdale has 5-1, having lost to Maine. It was tough for Arlington to play Maine on a rainy night when their fast boys and passing attack were handicapped. Otherwise, the Cards might have tied for the championship.

Lake Park Sophs Hopeful Sign

THE SOUTH SUBURBAN is all mixed up as Blue Island defeated Bloom. Rich and Carl Sandburg are tied in the Southwest Suburban. North Chicago made a Tri-County clean sweep with a 39-0 win at Lake Park. Lake Park's sophs beat North Chicago which is a hopeful sign. Freeport clinched the Big Eight though tied 19-19 on a muddy field at East Rockford. This was to have been the showdown between two undefeated teams but the pressure was off when East had to forfeit two league games because one of their athletes forged a teacher's name on his eligibility card to cover up a failure.

Foster, Campbell College Prospects

THE BEST COLLEGE prospects we have seen on Palatine's team this year are Harvey Foster and Wayland Campbell. Foster could make the grade in many schools just as a punter. He kicks a long ball with plenty of height. At McHenry, against the wind, one of his boots carried 43 yards on the fly from the line of scrimmage with enough height so that the ends were down to make the tackle on the spot. Campbell, unlike Foster, is a junior with another year to go. He is the best defensive halfback we have seen at Palatine and certainly the best pass catching end on offense. He is a deadly tackler and pass interceptor, seeming to sense the plays before they develop and being on the spot to spoil them.

Browns, Packers Still Unbeaten

The Browns and Packers moved along with their winning ways in the Arlington Heights midget football program last week although both clubs were pressed in their victories.

Both clubs boast unbeaten records in the two divisions with the 49ers and Cardinals ranking as runnerups.

Browns—13
Rams—6

For the first time this season, the Browns were hard-pressed as a fighting band of Rams contained their bulldozing drives.

Each team scored in the first quarter.

The Browns counted first on a brilliant 40 yard pass from Frase to Osterman. The extra point was the result of a pass from Martin to Osterman. The Rams came roaring back from the kickoff, driving 80 yards in five plays climaxed by a brilliant 40 yard scamper by Billy Becker.

However, the extra was missed and the Brown defense contained their attack for the rest of the game. The Browns final score came on a three yard drive over tackle by Carlson. The Browns by this victory clinched the Senior division totle and only need a victory next Saturday to complete an undefeated season.

Lions—0

The 49'ers regained their winning form as they humbled a scrappy Lion team. Showing a sparkling defense and exeuctin gtheir plays the best they have all year, the 49'ers were never in trouble. Looking forward to next week's climax with the Browns, the 49'ers looked impressive as they drove for two touchdowns which were finished on plunges by Murray of six yards and seven yards. The final TD came on a 25 yard pass play Fink to Splittorf.

Packers—6
Bears—0

Flashing their usual display of heads-up football, the Packers captured the Junior Division crown with a well-earned 6-0 victory over a stubborn Bear eleven. The Packers, finishing the season undefeated, stopped each Bear drive with a fine display of alert football.

The Bears put up the best opposition the Packers have met all year, but it was not enough. The only score of the game came on a brilliant 50 yard pass play from Chip Douglas to Steve Ewert. The pass covered 15 yards and Ewert outran the Bears to score.

Giants—12
Colts—0

The Colts, hoping to move up into fourth place, were stymied by a tough Giant defense. Each team battled along on even terms most of the game. Hwoever, two lightning-like thrusts by the Giants dimmed all colts' hopes for victory.

A sparkling 60 yard return of a punt by Whiteman and a well-executed pass play from LeStarge to Mayfield which also covered 60 yards were all the Giants needed for their victory.

Cardinals—26
Eagles—13

The Cardinals, still hoping for that return match with the Packers that will never come, overpowered the Eagles to grab second place. Again showing a devastating single wing attack, the Cardinals scored on runs of six yards and 10 yards by Sayre, a five yarder by Conti and a 35 yard jaunt by Reichert. The fighting band of Eagles never gave up and pushed across two last period TD's as Conley went 70 yards and eight yards.

Knights Roll, 41-19; Cards Fall

Wheaton Stops PHS Sophs, 14-7

Wheaton's Tiger Cubs won the Interim association frosh-soph football crown last Friday night with a narrow 14-7 victory over the do-or-die little Knights of Prospect.

The apprentice Knights needed a win to tie the Cubs for the conference championship. The loss dumped the Prospect team into third place in the final standings behind Glenbrook which played a tie game to come up with a 3-1-1 record. The little Knightsare3-2 . little Knights are 3-2.

The Prospect eleven gave the Cubs a real battle in the last quarter after they fell behind 14-7 with two minutes left in the third period.

BUT THE WHEATON team was not to be denied as two Knight drives were stifled inside the 20-yard line.

Wheaton opened the scoring in the first quarter when Halfback Bill Oury circled right end from five yards out. Halfback Dick Kee added the extra point on a running play.

The little Knights came back to tie the score with 2:39 remaining in the half after four Wheaton penalties in a row backed the ball to the Cub 20.

TOMMY THOMAS scored the touchdown on an 11-yard sweep around left end. A pass from Thomas to End Jim Anderson tied the score at 7-7.

Wheaton's third period score came on a five-yard off-tackle smash by Oury. Fullback Bob Shay added the point on a plunge.

The little Knights will be feted tonight along with the school's other fall sports participants at a banquet sponsored by the Boosters club in the school cafeteria at 6:45.

Maine Dumps Cards' Frosh

Arlington's freshman "A" football eleven concluded its 1959 campaign Monday afternoon with a 27-12 loss to Maine's plebes.

The defeat set the young Cards' season mark at 2-3-2 with wins over Riverside and York and ties with Hinsdale and Notre Dame.

Jerry Totzke was the offensive leader once again for Arlington in the loss to Maine. Tozke scored one touchdown on a 20-yard scamper and an 80-yard effort set up another score.

Maine scored 20 points in the first half with Bill Daletski's Cards counting in the second and fourth periods.

Totzke emerged as the club's leading scorer for the season with 49 points on seven touchdowns. Joe Wertheimer picked up 15 points and Hal Selleck added six.

Maine Harriers Rout Arlington In Two Meets

Two powerful Maine cross country teams routed Arlington last week in West Suburban competition.

The Blue Demons' varsity topped the Cards, 18-51, with the frosh-sophs blanking Arlington, 15-53.

Maine's Jack Kragie was the individual winner in the varsity class with John Jurco second and Lee Johnson third. Russ Attis' top finisher was Rog Frederickson in fourth.

Other Arlington finishers counting toward the team score: Jim Hendricks, sixth; Chuck Phelan, tenth; Ron Treabess, fourteenth; and Tim Smith, seventh.

Top runner for Frank Bohac's Cards in the young division were Joel Martin, sixth; Gary Brodnan, seventh; Larry Weidner, eighth; Steve Belcher, fifteenth; and Dan Bedford, seventeenth.

ELUDING THE GRASP of a Wheaton defender, Prospect halfback Keith Voigt (14) moves for sizeable yardage in the Knights' 41-19 victory last Friday evening. Voigt scored two touchdowns in the win.

Prospect Gains 2nd in Interim

by TOM McSHANE

The Prospect Knights turned to their bag of Witchcraft on the eve of Halloween to humiliate a good Wheaton team, 41-19, and cinch second place in the Interim association final standings.

Three Knight backs climbed their broomsticks for dazzling touchdown dashes on kick returns, and Lineman George McRae put the hex on a Tiger passer for a 49-yard interception jaunt.

So tricky were Bill Beckman's Foundry rd. magicians that the Tigers were left wondering just who was doing what to whom by the end of the third quarter.

The boys from Wheaton, a fine ball club by anyone's standards, simply were "outthunk" in this one.

The Tigers scored first in the opening period when they recovered a fumble on the Prospect 17. Phil Hahn, who tallied all three touchdowns for the losers, went over from the two. The try for point failed.

Then the broom-riders and hobgoblins made their first appearance of the evening. They stayed about three minutes, and left with the Knights ahead 20-6.

Fullback Bruce Andrise took the Tiger kickoff on his own 24, cut to his left where the whole Prospect team was lined down the west sideline, ducked behind the wall of blockers, and raced in to the end zone.

Quarterback Fred Lussow was nailed on the point try.

THREE PLAYS after Terry Miller kicked off to the Tigers McRae made a spectacular, leaping, one-arm grab of Fullback Jim Wright's pass on the Wheaton 49, and took off like a scared rabbit down the sideline to score. End Dennis Leonard booted the point.

And the show was just starting.

Four plays after Miller's next kickoff, Halfback Tom Petrosino took a Tiger punt on his own 18, moved to the sideline just as Andrise had done, and dashed behind the wall for another score. Leonard again converted.

The Knights let the cauldron simmer a little in the second quarter as the teams traded pass interceptions and punts to no avail.

BUT THE CUP ran over again in the third stanza when the Prospect eleven wound up the night's work with a three-touchdown barrage.

It started two plays after the halftime kickoff when the hard-charging Knight line jolted the ball loose from the Wheaton quarterback, and big Bill Zadel fell on it on the Tiger 41.

Halfback Keith Voigt, Petrosino, and Fullback Dennis Dryjanski lugged the leather to the Wheaton seven in six plays. On the next play, Voigt went over right guard for the score. Leonard again added the point.

FIVE PLAYS later Zadel blocked a Wheaton punt and the Knights recovered on the Tiger 10. Voigt went to the one in two plays, and Petrosino went over center for the score. Leonard's kick again was good, making it 34-6 Prospect.

The Tigers came back after the kickoff to score their second touchdown. Hahn and Wright moved the ball 61 yards in seven plays with Hahn scoring around right end from seven yards out. Fullback Jim Nelson's try for point failed.

The Knights, it seemed, were not about to take this Wheaton effort sitting down. The ensuing kickoff was probably the craziest play of the year.

SUMMING UP ALL the culinary art of history's greatest black magicians and voodoo practitioners, and tossing it all in the vat, Beckman and company came up with this weirdy:

Dryjanski took the kick on the Prospect 28 and stood still. The other 10 players jogged back from their receiving positions and joined him for a chat.

The Tiger team came charging downfield, converging on the huddled Knights.

The polite conversation continued until the leading Wheaton players were diving into the melange. Soon the vicinity of the Prospect 30 became quite crowded.

ABOUT THAT time the Knights seemed to take offense at the invasion of their privacy.

Somewhere in the middle of the huddle, Dryjanski gave the ball to Voigt. The little halfback disconnected himself from the group, shifted into high gear, and went 72 yards up the center of the field to score.

The Wheaton players were caught flat-footed, and the crowd was laughing harder than it was cheering.

Leonard then put his toe to his fifth conversion of the evening, and the Knights rested with a 41-12 lead.

IN THE FOURTH quarter the Tigers scored their third touchdown on a neatly-executed 20-yard pass and run play from Quarterback Brian Grant to Hahn. Hahn caught the ball on the Prospect 10, hurdled two tacklers and fell into the end zone. Jim Nelson added the point.

League Leaders Blank Arlington

by BOB FRISK

Maine's methodical offense had a busy evening last Friday but could push over only one touchdown in forty-eight minutes of play.

The Blue Demons controlled the ball on 61 of the game's 86 plays from scrimmage, but Bob Kunkel's seven yard jaunt midway in the first period was the only score in a 6-0 victory over the visiting Cardinals.

The victory gave Maine a definite share of the West Suburban conference title, and it was the Demons' ninth straight win over the Cards. The loss pushed Arlington into a third place tie with Riverside-Brookfield with one game remaining.

Maine's ease in controlling the ball against Arlington is exemplified in the fact that the Cards could get off only six scrimmage plays in the final period. An intercepted pass checked the visitors' final scoring threat of the evening.

Arlington penetrated into Maine territory three times with the deepest advance reaching the host's 22 yard line where it was checked by a fumble. Maine had drives halted on the Arlington 30, 1, and 4 yard lines.

THE HOST Blue Demons used 15 plays and almost eight minutes moving to the game's only touchdown in the first period.

Two passes from Kunkel to Doug Schmidt picked up 22 of the drive's 61 yards but otherwise it was a straight, hard-driving ground game which used up the clock with Keith Connelly, Dave Hamman, Chuck Reid, and Kunkel all having a hand in the march.

Kunkel's seven yard scoring scamper came with a little over four minutes remaining in the first quarter, but Bill Wagner's attempted extra point was off the mark.

AFTER THAT initial drive, neither team could hit paydirt although Maine threw a real scare into Arlington as the first half drew to a close.

Two penalties against the Cards—one a pass interference call—gave Maine a first down on the Arington 15 with seconds remaining.

Kunkel scampered to the three for another first down, and Connelly bolted over center for one yard to the two. A penalty set Maine back to the seven and Kunkel's aerial effort fell short.

KUNKEL PICKED up two and with one second remaining, Connelly started around right end only to be met by the Cards' Mike Dundy with a vicious tackle, one yard shy of six points.

Arlington started off the second half with a sustained match which was terminated via a method becoming disturbingly common in the Cards' attack—the fumble.

Dundy, hobbled by a leg injury incurred in the second half against Hinsdale, opened the drive from his own 34 with a four yard burst to the 38. George Bork hit Rick Johnston with a 14 yard aerial to the Maine 48 for a first down.

JIM RUFFER picked up five more to the 43, and Dundy scampered eight yards for a first down on the Maine 35. Bill McMillan shot through for five to the 35, and Dundy added four to the Maine 26, before Ruffer's fumble checked the threat.

Arlington was never the same after that drive was stopped. The Cards couldn't pick up another first down and had to play Maine's time-consuming game for the remainder of the third period and during the entire fourth segment.

However, we doubt if it will do much good except to take second place because we think that McHenry will beat Libertyville and take the championship. Crystal Lake, with a chance at a title tie, will go all out to win at Palatine Friday night and probably will nose out the Pirates by the margin of points after touchdowns. Palatine can't seem to get those extra points this year. If we were sure Palatine's ailing men would be back, we'd pick them. Dundee, which opened the season by beating Crystal Lake, has won none since, hosts winless Zion-Benton Friday night. We are picking Zion to make the most of this final opportunity.

Will Be Good If Woodstock Wins

FROM THE STANDPOINT of competition in the North Suburban we hope that Woodstock wins the championship. To have the smallest school win in the sport where the large schools have the greatest edge, would be good. Probably Woodstock will not have another such chance in football as all the schools are expected to greatly outdistance them in both enrollment and material in the next few years.

Around the suburbs with one game remaining, Evanston has clinched the Suburban League by defeating Highland Park. Niles, the only remaining challenger, fell before New Trier. Maine has no worse than a tie in the West Suburban with a 6-0 record. Hinsdale has 5-1, having lost to Maine. It was tough for Arlington to play Maine on a rainy night when their fast boys and passing attack were handicapped. Otherwise, the Cards might have tied for the championship.

Lake Park Sophs Hopeful Sign

THE SOUTH SUBURBAN is all mixed up as Blue Island defeated Bloom. Rich and Carl Sandburg are tied in the Southwest Suburban. North Chicago made a Tri-County clean sweep with a 39-0 win at Lake Park. Lake Park's sophs beat North Chicago which is a hopeful sign. Freeport clinched the Big Eight though tied 19-19 on a muddy field at East Rockford. This was to have been the showdown between two undefeated teams but the pressure was off when East had to forfeit two league games because one of their athletes forged a teacher's name on his eligibility card to cover up a failure.

Foster, Campbell College Prospects

THE BEST COLLEGE prospects we have seen on Palatine's team this year are Harvey Foster and Wayland Campbell. Foster could make the grade in many schools just as a punter. He kicks a long ball with plenty of height. At McHenry, against the wind, one of his boots carried 43 yards on the fly from the line of scrimmage with enough height so that the ends were down to make the tackle on the spot. Campbell, unlike Foster, is a junior with another year to go. He is the best defensive halfback we have seen at Palatine and certainly the best pass catching end on offense. He is a deadly tackler and pass interceptor, seeming to sense the plays before they develop and being on the spot to spoil them.

Browns, Packers Still Unbeaten

The Browns and Packers moved along with their winning ways in the Arlington Heights midget football program last week although both clubs were pressed in their victories.

Both clubs boast unbeaten records in the two divisions with the 49ers and Cardinals ranking as runnerups.

Browns—13
Rams—6

For the first time this season, the Browns were hard-pressed as a fighting band of Rams contained their bulldozing drives.

Each team scored in the first quarter.

The Browns counted first on a brilliant 40 yard pass from Frase to Osterman. The extra point was the result of a pass from Martin to Osterman. The Rams came roaring back from the kickoff, driving 80 yards in five plays climaxed by a brilliant 40 yard scamper by Billy Becker.

However, the extra was missed and the Brown defense contained their attack for the rest of the game. The Browns final score came on a three yard drive over tackle by Carlson. The Browns by this victory clinched the Senior division totle and only need a victory next Saturday to complete an undefeated season.

Lions—0

The 49'ers regained their winning form as they humbled a scrappy Lion team. Showing a sparkling defense and exeuctin gtheir plays the best they have all year, the 49'ers were never in trouble. Looking forward to next week's climax with the Browns, the 49'ers looked impressive as they drove for two touchdowns which were finished on plunges by Murray of six yards and seven yards. The final TD came on a 25 yard pass play Fink to Splittorf.

Packers—6
Bears—0

Flashing their usual display of heads-up football, the Packers captured the Junior Division crown with a well-earned 6-0 victory over a stubborn Bear eleven. The Packers, finishing the season undefeated, stopped each Bear drive with a fine display of alert football.

The Bears put up the best opposition the Packers have met all year, but it was not enough. The only score of the game came on a brilliant 50 yard pass play from Chip Douglas to Steve Ewert. The pass covered 15 yards and Ewert outran the Bears to score.

Colts—0

The Colts, hoping to move up into fourth place, were stymied by a tough Giant defense. Each team battled along on even terms most of the game. Hwoever, two lightning-like thrusts by the Giants dimmed all colts' hopes for victory.

A sparkling 60 yard return of a punt by Whiteman and a well-executed pass play from LeStarge to Mayfield which also covered 60 yards were all the Giants needed for their victory.

Cardinals—26
Eagles—13

The Cardinals, still hoping for that return match with the Packers that will never come, overpowered the Eagles to grab second place. Again showing a devastating single wing attack, the Cardinals scored on runs of six yards and 10 yards by Sayre, a five yarder by Conti and a 35 yard jaunt by Reichert. The fighting band of Eagles never gave up and pushed across two last period TD's as Conley went 70 yards and eight yards.

Wheaton Stops PHS Sophs, 14-7

Wheaton's Tiger Cubs won the Interim association frosh-soph football crown last Friday night with a narrow 14-7 victory over the do-or-die little Knights of Prospect.

The apprentice Knights needed a win to tie the Cubs for the conference championship. The loss dumped the Prospect team into third place in the final standings behind Glenbrook which played a tie game to come up with a 3-1-1 record. The little Knightsare3-2 .
little Knights are 3-2.

The Prospect eleven gave the Cubs a real battle in the last quarter after they fell behind 14-7 with two minutes left in the third period.

BUT THE WHEATON team was not to be denied as two Knight drives were stifled inside the 20-yard line.

Wheaton opened the scoring in the first quarter when Halfback Bill Oury circled right end from five yards out. Halfback Dick Kee added the extra point on a running play.

The little Knights came back to tie the score with 2:39 remaining in the half after four Wheaton penalties in a row backed the ball to the Cub 20.

TOMMY THOMAS scored the touchdown on an 11-yard sweep around left end. A pass from Thomas to End Jim Anderson tied the score at 7-7.

Wheaton's third period score came on a five-yard off-tackle smash by Oury. Fullback Bob Shay added the point on a plunge.

The little Knights will be feted tonight along with the school's other fall sports participants at a banquet sponsored by the Boosters club in the school cafeteria at 6:45.

Maine Dumps Cards' Frosh

Arlington's freshman "A" football eleven concluded its 1959 campaign Monday afternoon with a 27-12 loss to Maine's plebes.

The defeat set the young Cards' season mark at 2-3-2 with wins over Riverside and York and ties with Hinsdale and Notre Dame.

Jerry Tozke was the offensive leader once again for Arlington in the loss to Maine. Tozke scored one touchdown on a 20-yard scamper and an 80-yard effort set up another score.

Maine scored 20 points in the first half with Bill Daletski's Cards counting in the second and fourth periods.

Totzke emerged as the club's leading scorer for the season with 49 points on seven touchdowns. Joe Wertheimer picked up 15 points and Hal Selleck added six.

Maine Harriers Rout Arlington In Two Meets

Two powerful Maine cross country teams routed Arlington last week in West Suburban competition.

The Blue Demons' varsity topped the Cards, 18-51, with the frosh-sophs blanking Arlington, 15-53.

Maine's Jack Kragie was the individual winner in the varsity class with John Jurco second and Lee Johnson third. Russ Attis' top finisher was Rog Frederickson in fourth.

Other Arlington finishers counting toward the team score: Jim Hendricks, sixth; Chuck Phelan, tenth; Ron Treabess, fourteenth; and Tim Smith, seventh.

Top runner for Frank Bohac's Cards in the young division were Joel Martin, sixth; Gary Brodnan, seventh; Larry Weidner, eighth; Steve Belcher, fifteenth; and Dan Bedford, seventeenth.

ELUDING THE GRASP of a Wheaton defender, Prospect halfback Keith Voigt (14) moves for sizeable yardage in the Knights' 41-19 victory last Friday evening. Voigt scored two touchdowns in the win.

Prospect Gains 2nd in Interim

by TOM McSHANE

The Prospect Knights turned to their bag of Witchcraft on the eve of Halloween to humiliate a good Wheaton team, 41-19, and cinch second place in the Interim association final standings.

Three Knight backs climbed their broomsticks for dazzling touchdown dashes on kick returns, and Lineman George McRae put the hex on a Tiger passer for a 49-yard interception jaunt.

So tricky were Bill Beckman's Foundry rd. magicians that the Tigers were left wondering just who was doing what to whom by the end of the third quarter.

The boys from Wheaton, a fine ball club by anyone's standards, simply were "outthunk" in this one.

The Tigers scored first in the opening period when they recovered a fumble on the Prospect 17. Phil Hahn, who tallied all three touchdowns for the losers, went over from the two. The try for point failed.

Then the broom-riders and hobgoblins made their first appearance of the evening. They stayed about three minutes, and left with the Knights ahead 20-6.

Fullback Bruce Andrise took the Tiger kickoff on his own 24, cut to his left where the whole Prospect team was lined down the west sideline, ducked behind the wall of blockers, and raced in to the end zone.

Quarterback Fred Lussow was nailed on the point try.

THREE PLAYS after Terry Miller kicked off to the Tigers McRae made a spectacular, leaping, one-arm grab of Fullback Jim Wright's pass on the Wheaton 49, and took off like a scared rabbit down the sideline to score. End Dennis Leonard booted the point.

And the show was just starting.

Four plays after Miller's next kickoff, Halfback Tom Petrosino took a Tiger punt on his own 18, moved to the sideline just as Andrise had done, and dashed behind the wall for another score. Leonard again converted.

The Knights let the cauldron simmer a little in the second quarter as the teams traded pass interceptions and punts to no avail.

BUT THE CUP ran over again in the third stanza when the Prospect eleven wound up the night's work with a three-touchdown barrage.

It started two plays after the halftime kickoff when the hard-charging Knight line jolted the ball loose from the Wheaton quarterback, and big Bill Zadel fell on it on the Tiger 41.

Halfback Keith Voigt, Petrosino, and Fullback Dennis Dryjanski lugged the leather to the Wheaton seven in six plays. On the next play, Voigt went over right guard for the score. Leonard again added the point.

FIVE PLAYS later Zadel blocked a Wheaton punt and the Knights recovered on the Tiger 10. Voigt went to the one in two plays, and Petrosino went over center for the score. Leonard's kick again was good, making it 34-6 Prospect.

The Tigers came back after the kickoff to score their second touchdown. Hahn and Wright moved the ball 61 yards in seven plays with Hahn scoring around right end from seven yards out. Fullback Jim Nelson's try for point failed.

The Knights, it seemed, were not about to take this Wheaton effort sitting down. The ensuing kickoff was probably the craziest play of the year.

SUMMING UP ALL the culinary art of history's greatest black magicians and voodoo practitioners, and tossing it all in the vat, Beckman and company came up with this weirdy:

Dryjanski took the kick on the Prospect 28 and stood still. The other 10 players jogged back from their receiving positions and joined him for a chat.

The Tiger team came charging downfield, converging on the huddled Knights.

The polite conversation continued until the leading Wheaton players were diving into the melange. Soon the vicinity of the Prospect 30 became quite crowded.

ABOUT THAT time the Knights seemed to take offense at the invasion of their privacy.

Somewhere in the middle of the huddle, Dryjanski gave the ball to Voigt. The little halfback disconnected himself from the group, shifted into high gear, and went 72 yards up the center of the field to score.

The Wheaton players were caught flat-footed, and the crowd was laughing harder than it was cheering.

Leonard then put his toe to his fifth conversion of the evening, and the Knights rested with a 41-12 lead.

IN THE FOURTH quarter the Tigers scored their third touchdown on a neatly-executed 20-yard pass and run play from Quarterback Brian Grant to Hahn. Hahn caught the ball on the Prospect 10, hurdled two tacklers and fell into the end zone. Jim Nelson added the point.

League Leaders Blank Arlington

by BOB FRISK

Maine's methodical offense had a busy evening last Friday but could push over only one touchdown in forty-eight minutes of play.

The Blue Demons controlled the ball on 61 of the game's 86 plays from scrimmage, but Bob Kunkel's seven yard jaunt midway in the first period was the only score in a 6-0 victory over the visiting Cardinals.

The victory gave Maine a definite share of the West Suburban conference title, and it was the Demons' ninth straight win over the Cards. The loss pushed Arlington into a third place tie with Riverside-Brookfield with one game remaining.

Maine's ease in controlling the ball against Arlington is exemplified in the fact that the Cards could get off only six scrimmage plays in the final period. An intercepted pass checked the visitors' final scoring threat of the evening.

Arlington penetrated into Maine territory three times with the deepest advance reaching the host's 22 yard line where it was checked by a fumble. Maine had drives halted on the Arlington 30, 1, and 4 yard lines.

THE HOST Blue Demons used 15 plays and almost eight minutes moving to the game's only touchdown in the first period.

Two passes from Kunkel to Doug Schmidt picked up 22 of the drive's 61 yards but otherwise it was a straight, hard-driving ground game which used up the clock with Keith Connelly, Dave Hamman, Chuck Reid, and Kunkel all having a hand in the march.

Kunkel's seven yard scoring scamper came with a little over four minutes remaining in the first quarter, but Bill Wagner's attempted extra point was off the mark.

AFTER THAT initial drive, neither team could hit paydirt although Maine threw a real scare into Arlington as the first half drew to a close.

Two penalties against the Cards—one a pass interference call—gave Maine a first down on the Arington 15 with seconds remaining.

Kunkel scampered to the three for another first down, and Connelly bolted over center for one yard to the two. A penalty set Maine back to the seven and Kunkel's aerial effort fell short.

KUNKEL PICKED up two and with one second remaining, Connelly started around right end only to be met by the Cards' Mike Dundy with a vicious tackle, one yard shy of six points.

Arlington started off the second half with a sustained match which was terminated via a method becoming disturbingly common in the Cards' attack—the fumble.

Dundy, hobbled by a leg injury incurred in the second half against Hinsdale, opened the drive from his own 34 with a four yard burst to the 38. George Bork hit Rick Johnston with a 14 yard aerial to the Maine 48 for a first down.

JIM RUFFER picked up five more to the 43, and Dundy scampered eight yards for a first down on the Maine 35. Bill McMillan shot through for five to the 35, and Dundy added four to the Maine 26, before Ruffer's fumble checked the threat.

Arlington was never the same after that drive was stopped. The Cards couldn't pick up another first down and had to play Maine's time-consuming game for the remainder of the third period and during the entire fourth segment.

(why Volkswagen's aluminum engine is still years ahead of its time)

Dead weight in an engine is the enemy of efficiency. That's why airplane engines are made of aluminum. And that's why Volkswagen's engine is ingeniously cast of aluminum and magnesium alloys (even lighter than aluminum).

Volkswagen reduces dead weight in still other ways. The engine is air-cooled—there is no bulky radiator. (No water to freeze in winter, or to boil over in summer.) And placing the engine in the back gets rid of the conventional heavy drive shaft while giving direct power to the rear wheels. (In mud, sand, ice, snow, where other cars skid, you go.)

As a result, the Volkswagen engine weighs only 198 lbs. and every pound works. You get an honest 32 miles to the gallon (regular gas, regular driving) and will probably never need oil between changes. And the engine is so efficient, top and cruising speeds are the same. You can go 70 mph without strain, all day long.

These are some of the reasons a used VW is worth almost as much as a new one. We'll be pleased to show you all the others. Come in this week and drive one.

Busy Spartans

Michigan State's football squad has scored at least three touchdowns in every one of nine games played with Notre Dame since 1949, with the Spartans the victors in seven of the contests.

The Mt. Prospect Midget football association closed another highly successful season last Sunday with a full schedule of eight exciting games which found the Junior Division knotted in a final 3-way tie for first place. All three teams, Fairview, Lions and Lincoln, had to win to retain their share of first—and win they did!

Lincoln proved too fast for Central in the final half and scored three touchdowns while holding Central scoreless to win, 32-12.

Fairview beat Emerson, 20-0, on touchdowns by Joel Martin, Larry Snyder and John Phillips but it was Fairview's hard-charging line which consistently broke up Emerson's plays before they got started and, at one point, dropped an Emerson runner behind his goal line for a safety. Charlie Steepolt played a great game at guard for the winners, intercepting a pass and running to the three yard line.

THE LIONS had a struggle but finally downed Sunset, 21-13, with two touchdowns by Kalawitz and one by Bill Dox on a completed pass. Beck and Robinson were outstanding in both backfield and line for the winners.

In the final Junior game, Owens walloped Prospect 26-6, on touchdowns by Jim Simoni, Bill Fox, J. D. Thorne, and Jim Helm. Tommy Grafton was outstanding in the line.

In the Senior Division, Owens swept to an undisputed championship and an undefeated season with a convincing win over Prospect, 51-13. Once again Allen Stoike ran wild and scored four touchdowns while Dave White with two touchdowns and Lind Nelson and Dick Lytle with one each completed the scoring for the winners. Bob Robertshaw scored both touchdowns for the losers and was ably assisted in the backfield by Jerry Cowan.

EMERSON PLAYED its best game of the season in turning back Fairview, 20-14. Gary Hodson was outstanding in the backfield, scoring two touchdowns and two points after touchdown. Greg Stevens scored the final touchdown for the winners on a brilliant 72-yard run. Steve McNamara scored twice for the losers.

Lions captured second place by trouncing Sunset, 20-0. Larry Bogart scored twice and Phil Collins once for the winners but the most outstanding play of the game was Phil Collins' successful points-after-touchdown kick. This was the first time in three years that such a kick, good for two points in midget football, was attempted and made.

In the fina Senior game, Lincoln beat Central in a hard-fought game, 32-7.

Classic Bowlers Make News

Paddock Classic traveling league continued to gain headlines over the weekend, though two-thirds of the competition within the loop was postponed because of those headlines. Six of the 12 finalists in the Northwest Suburban all-star tournament eliminations were members of the Paddock Classic league. Because these six men were bowling 24 games over the weekend four teams in the Paddock Classic were inactive Saturday night, with double headers on the docket this coming weekend.

Buck Perkins of the James Stavros team in Paddock Classic league took first in the eliminations, followed by Al Walter of Beverly Lanes second. Both men will compete in the national event in Omaha inJanuary. In addition, Deloresa Harris, wife of Paddock Classic—or Bill Harris, won the women's event with Pat Proebstle of Arlington Heights finishing second.

CONNIES — Des Plaines won two games from Beverly Lanes Saturday night with games of 904 and 958. The losers copped theirs with 993. Top scores for the night were Tom Kouros of Barrington Woods 631 and Don Christensen 611.

This week will find James Stavros meeting Martinetti's at Ten Pin, Pentane Gas journeying to Des Plaines to oppose Connies Snack Shop, and Tommy Thomas' Casablanca will compete at Beverly Lanes.

Trio to Represent NW Suburbs in Tournament

Buck Perkins, Al Walter and Dolores Harris will represent the northwest suburbs in the All-Star bowling tournament in Omaha in January with all expenses paid.

That was determined Sunday night after the men had completed 24 more games over the weekend in the eliminations for the two berths provided by Northwest Suburban Bowling Proprietors association. Owners are also sending the woman champ to the meet.

Perkins and Walter were two of the six members of the Paddock Classic leaguers surviving preliminaries and semi-finals to make the big event at Lakes Bowl, Round Lake, and Classic Bowl, Morton Grove.

THE ELIMINATIONS were conducted under the Peterson point system with one point for each game won, half a point for ties, and one point for each fifty pins. Perkins stood at 58.39 going into the final day of competition at Classic Bowl, Walter at 56.27.

Perkins totaled 2419 for the twelve games Sunday for a 201 average, with high game Sunday of 226, giving him 113.33 point total and first place. Walter hit 2389 Sunday, a 199 average, high game 237, and finished with 113.11, just 22 sticks behind Perkins.

Actually, Perkins could have lost the title in the final frame when he added two strikes and nine. If he had taken a railroad, or had blown, Walter would have taken the championship.

DOLORES HARRIS, wife of Paddock Classic league bowler Bill Harris, stood third going into the final day of competition. In second spot was Pat Proebstle, a very well known gal around Arlington, whose husband, Bob, works at the local post office. Hope Anderson led the two girls by 14 and 159 pins going into the final eight games Sunday.

Dolores bowled 1382 Sunday, an average of 185, to up her point total from 32.10 to 66.42. Pat, competing in her first tournament, hit 1323, an average of 165, to jump from 35.05 to 66.28, just 14 pins behind the winner. Anderson dropped fast Sunday to place third.

Illinois, Michigan Tangle

Illinois, slightly battered after last Saturday's 7-7 tie with Purdue but apparently free from serious injuries, faces three teams this weekend. Scout Burt Ingwersen reports that Michigan, which visits Memorial Stadium Saturday, employs three complete units.

The Wolverines, who are coached by a native of Bloomington, Ill., "Bump" Elliott, have won only one of the three games which Ingwersen has seen them play, but they have almost knocked off the Big Ten's top two teams (Northwestern and Wisconsin) in the other two contests.

"They've shown something new on offense every week," Ingersen reports. "We'll have to be ready for anything Saturday.

"This is a good football team. They have eight players from last year's first eleven, and one (Tony Rio) who would have been on the first team if he had been eligible.

Arch-Rivals

Notre Dame and Navy have met on the gridiron for 32 consecutive years. The first time the Middies and Irish encountered each other was in 1927 when Notre Dame was a 19-6 victor.

Notre Dame Dons Top Morgan Park

By DAVE SCHLAVER

There is one stadium in the suburban area where the visiting team just can't seem to win.

Morgan Park Military Academy of Chicago was the final victim of the year as Notre Dame closed its second home season. The 31-13 Don victory over the visiting Cadets was the ninth straight game without defeat at home for Notre Dame.

Friday night at Marmion Military Academy in Aurora, the Dons will try to improve their 5-1-1 record.

Notre Dame picked up a second play after the kickoff, and Ernest Tolli went 20 yards for the touchdown. Joe Rinozzi ran the extra point.

RON MATRAY, Morgan Park halfback, broke loose several plays after the kickoff, and went 39 yards for the Cadets. Dan Lenzi ran the point after touchdown and tied the score at 7-7 after only three minutes of play.

In the second period Notre Dame worked its way to the Morgan Park 8 yard line. Bob Anderson tallied to make the score 13-7.

At halftime the Notre Dame Marching Dons made their final appearance of the season at home presenting highlights from the musical "Babes in Arms."

PAT CARLSON gained another six points for the Dons as he went over from five yards out. Morgan park scored on a 25 yard pass play from quarterback Bob Lloyd to Matray. At the end of the third period, Notre Dame led 19-13.

The passing attack of Jim Salzman and Carlson moved the Dons to the five yard line of Morgan Park. Phil Creden went over for the touchdown, making the score 25-13.

Morgan Park moved to the N.D. 35 on peanalties against the home team, but Mike Donovan intercepted their pass and the Dons took over again.

198 lbs.

(why Volkswagen's aluminum engine is still years ahead of its time)

Dead weight in an engine is the enemy of efficiency. That's why airplane engines are made of aluminum. And that's why Volkswagen's engine is ingeniously cast of aluminum and magnesium alloys (even lighter than aluminum).

Volkswagen reduces dead weight in still other ways. The engine is air-cooled—there is no bulky radiator. (No water to freeze in winter, or to boil over in summer.) And placing the engine in the back gets rid of the conventional heavy drive shaft while giving direct power to the rear wheels. (In mud, sand, ice, snow, where other cars skid, you go.)

As a result, the Volkswagen engine weighs only 198 lbs. and every pound works. You get an honest 32 miles to the gallon (regular gas, regular driving) and will probably never need oil between changes. And the engine is so efficient, top and cruising speeds are the same. You can go 70 mph without strain, all day long.

These are some of the reasons a used VW is worth almost as much as a new one. We'll be pleased to show you all the others. Come in this week and drive one.

Three Outfits Share Top Slot

The Mt. Prospect Midget football association closed another highly successful season last Sunday with a full schedule of eight exciting games which found the Junior Division knotted in a final 3-way tie for first place. All three teams, Fairview, Lions and Lincoln, had to win to retain their share of first—and win they did!

Lincoln proved too fast for Central in the final half and scored three touchdowns while holding Central scoreless to win, 32-12.

Fairview beat Emerson, 20-0, on touchdowns by Joel Martin, Larry Snyder and John Phillips but it was Fairview's hard-charging line which consistently broke up Emerson's plays before they got started and, at one point, dropped an Emerson runner behind his goal line for a safety. Charlie Steepolt played a great game at guard for the winners, intercepting a pass and running to the three yard line.

THE LIONS had a struggle but finally downed Sunset, 21-13, with two touchdowns by Kalawitz and one by Bill Dox on a completed pass. Beck and Robinson were outstanding in both backfield and line for the winners.

In the final Junior game, Owens walloped Prospect 26-6, on touchdowns by Jim Simoni, Bill Fox, J. D. Thorne, and Jim Helm. Tommy Grafton was outstanding in the line.

In the Senior Division, Owens swept to an undisputed championship and an undefeated season with a convincing win over Prospect, 51-13. Once again Allen Stoike ran wild and scored four touchdowns while Dave White with two touchdowns and Lind Nelson and Dick Lytle with one each completed the scoring for the winners. Bob Robertshaw scored both touchdowns for the losers and was ably assisted in the backfield by Jerry Cowan.

EMERSON PLAYED its best game of the season in turning back Fairview, 20-14. Gary Hodson was outstanding in the backfield, scoring two touchdowns and two points after touchdown. Greg Stevens scored the final touchdown for the winners on a brilliant 72-yard run. Steve McNamara scored twice for the losers.

Lions captured second place by trouncing Sunset, 20-0. Larry Bogart scored twice and Phil Collins once for the winners but the most outstanding play of the game was Phil Collins' successful points-after-touchdown kick. This was the first time in three years that such a kick, good for two points in midget football, was attempted and made.

In the fina Senior game, Lincoln beat Central in a hard-fought game, 32-7.

Classic Bowlers Make News

Paddock Classic traveling league continued to gain headlines over the weekend, though two-thirds of the competition within the loop was postponed because of those headlines. Six of the 12 finalists in the Northwest Suburban all-star tournament eliminations were members of the Paddock Classic league. Because these six men were bowling 24 games over the weekend four teams in the Paddock Classic were inactive Saturday night, with double headers on the docket this coming weekend.

Buck Perkins of the James Stavros team in Paddock Classic league took first in the eliminations, followed by Al Walter of Beverly Lanes second. Both men will compete in the national event in Omaha inJanuary. In addition, Delores Harris, wife of Paddock Classic—or Bill Harris, won the women's event with Pat Proebstle of Arlington Heights finishing second.

CONNIES — Des Plaines won two games from Beverly Lanes Saturday night with games of 904 and 958. The losers copped theirs with 993. Top scores for the night were Tom Kouros of Barrington Woods 631 and Don Christensen 611.

This week will find James Stavros meeting Martinetti's at Ten Pin, Pentane Gas journeying to Des Plaines to oppose Connies Snack Shop, and Tommy Thomas' Casablanca will compete at Beverly Lanes.

Illinois, Michigan Tangle

Illinois, slightly battered after last Saturday's 7-7 tie with Purdue but apparently free from serious injuries, faces three teams this weekend. Scout Burt Ingwersen reports that Michigan, which visits Memorial Stadium Saturday, employs three complete units.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Edward Rentz

The Washington Street Produce Market supplies most of the food to New York city's populace. It covers 50 acres and moves more than 100,000 carloads of fruit and vegetables each year. It can accommodate 400 trucks at a time and often has 3,500 more lined up waiting to unload.

The market is never closed and New Yorkers receive fresh fruits and vegetables daily, though in a less orthodox manner than most of the country. The sidewalks are lined with crates and boxes of produce. Stepping on rotting cabbages, celery, etc., continues in spite of city health ordinances. There should be a better way to feed the city's millions but apparently there isn't.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Edward Rentz

The Washington Street Produce Market supplies most of the food to New York city's populace. It covers 50 acres and moves more than 100,000 carloads of fruit and vegetables each year. It can accommodate 400 trucks at a time and often has 3,500 more lined up waiting to unload.

The market is never closed and New Yorkers receive fresh fruits and vegetables daily, though in a less orthodox manner than most of the country. The sidewalks are lined with crates and boxes of produce. Stepping on rotting cabbages, celery, etc., continues in spite of city health ordinances. There should be a better way to feed the city's millions but apparently there isn't.

Arlington Erects Memorial To World War I Doughboys

Arlington Erects

The last act of Arlington Heights tribute to her World War heroes was completed this week when a Barre Granite monument was permanently installed in the center of the village park. That monument came from one of the best quarries in the world and is declared by stone cutters to be without a single blemish.

It stands on a five-inch high mound, 8,600 lbs. strong, with a cement base over four feet deep, capable of staunchly preserving Arlington Heights world war record. The names of 133 of "our boys" are there for all time, inserted in the best of bronze, encased in the finest of stones that is to be secured in this country, on ground owned in perpetuity by the commonwealth.

Nearly every citizen in Arlington Heights worked for and subscribed to make that memorial possible.

We never knew until today the difficulties, work, time and gasoline that Dr. B. T. Best expended to get that beautiful memorial here. The doctor has never told us "his" story, but Mr. Wm. F. Meyer, Sr., who as he says "was not even on the committee, but was fortunate to be on hand with Dr. Best" when much of the business was done, says that too much credit can not be given to the doctor for the effort, patience and business sagacity that has enabled this town to have a war monument second to none.

As soon as Dr. Best was appointed to the committee, he got busy. Tentative plans submitted to the general committee brot their approval and authority to go ahead and do it.' And the doctor did it. Early in the summer an order for the stone was dispatched to Vermont.

There are only four quarries in the U.S. capable of mining such a stone, without blemishes or cracks. Doctor's rush order was filled and before many days the stone was loaded with others and billed for the thru Chicago freight.

In the meantime the bronze tablet bearing the names of "our boys" has been ordered in Minneapolis, after much effort on the part of the doctor to get the names and initials correct.

A bonze eagle with a wingspread of 3 ft. 6 in. adorns the top and "stands guard" over the memory of those boys whose names are listed.

The railroad company recently notified the local committee that it was unable to give a permanent lease of a place in the railroad park for the monument. Thus the present site was chosen as being the only suitable location that is owned by the village. The task of overseeing the placing the monument in this park was doubly a pleasurable one for Dr. Best as he was but adding in a way to the work of his father, Dr. John E. Best, who is 1883 presented that piece of ground to the village as a park and under whose direction the present magnificent trees were set out.

Women's Specimen Ballot, Village of Arlington Heights, Special Election, Tuesday, Nov. 25, 1918. Ordinance No. 285. "Shall bonds for the purpose of obtaining funds to pay for the necessary cost of sinking a new well, providing a pump, motor, and other appurtenances and equipment to be used in connection with the improvement and extension of the Municipal Water W[illegible] System, in the sum of [illegible]0, be issued by th[illegible]dent and Board of T[illegible]s of the Village of Arlington Heights, as authorized in the foregoing ordinance?" A. L. McElhose, Village Clerk.

Wm. Felz, Arlington Heights harness maker, says a man traveled 25 miles to get some of the bargains advertised in his ad last week. That fact shows two things: Felz had real bargains and that there is no limit to the territory any of our advertisers can draw from.

50 YEARS AGO
Nov. 5, 1909
Palatine

Engineers were in Palatine Wednesday examining our water plant, with a view of installing an electric pump. A plat of the village with a proposed system of lighting was also laid out.

Their report will no doubt be presented to the village board in the form of contracts by the electric power company at an early date. At present we have only thirty-five lights, which give inadequate light and are constantly in need of repair.

The plan calls for about sixty-five lights, or one at every corner, and if installed would cost the village little more than now. Besides, it means one more step in making our village an up-to-date city.

The present plans at the pumping station include the removal of the old steam pump and the installation of the latest motor driven pumps on the market. The total cost of making such a change, including all new fittings and labor, whereby either the new or old plant could pump the water, will cost not to exceed $1,000. This amount would be saved to the village within three years by decreased operating expenses. Our village board are wideawake, and if the company present a reasonable contract, electricity will be pumping our water within a year.

Some Predictions, Opinions Offered

By JIM PHILLIPS

Phillips' Opinions 'n Predictions:

"Anatomy of a Murder's" sensational "censorship" activity was one of the best publicity stunts ever put over on the movie-going public.

Elizabeth Taylor and Eddie Fisher will call it quits before the end of next year.

One of the most badly needed things in this area is an FM station. And the first location to get one will be a certain well-programmed high school.

One of the lowest forms of television advertising is the headache commercial. The big three in this category deliberately insult themselves, their audience and the market by degrading each other to the extent of almost naming products.

SOME DAY Mel Allen will broadcast a baseball or football game without leaning toward the eastern team.

Educational motion pictures are starting to appear more "arty" and less educational. Films produced for the fourth grade level are well-suited to second graders. Films produced for the high school level are overly-simple. Any film that has a "grade rating" given to it, insults the individual ability of the instructor and the subject for which it is slated.

"Adults only" is a phrase used by ad men and publicity hounds to get more people into a theater to see a movie no one in his right mind would go to see if the phrase were not used.

There hasn't really been a good musical produced on film since "Singin' in the Rain," "American in Paris," "Til the Clouds Roll By" and "Porgy and Bess."

It doesn't make any difference who she marries, Marilyn Monroe still can't act.

Overused movie ad phrases: "award winning; for the entire family; supressed for ---years; never before told; savage truth; please don't reveal the climax; explosive subject; not recommended for children; you must see it!"

Movie critics who use the "star" system for rating a movie are unimaginative as well as aware of their own short-comings as critics.

THE "AVERAGE" intelligence of the television audience is noted by media experts as being around sixth grade level. The average intelligence of the media experts is around first grade level if they actually believe that hasty generalization.

When it comes to criticising movies, teen-agers are the most exacting, adults are the most listless, producers are the most careless.

There isn't a clear-cut, dependable, precise or believable audience rating system in use today, and there never will be; and that goes for radio, television and motion pictures.

I miss the dancing of Eleanor Powell, the burlesque comedy of Bert Lahr, the character-humor of Fred Allen and Allen's Alley, the John Nesbitt Passing Parade movies, the heroics of Douglas Fairbanks Jr., the acting of Wallace Berry, the singing of Ethel Waters in "Cabin in the Sky" and the sophistication of William Powell as the Thin Man.

AT DES PLAINES

Highlighted by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe's first score since "My Fair Lady," M-G-M's "Gigi" comes to the screen with an all-star cast. On the sofa are Leslie Caron and Louis Jourdan. Standing are Maurice Chevalier, Hermione Gingold and Eva Gabor. An Arthur Freed production, the musical was filmed largely on locations in Paris in CinemaScope and color.

ROAD
The Bishop's Company

MEMBERS OF THE Bishop's Company of Santa Barbara, Cal., ponder over maps before embarking for another presentation of Alan Paton's "Cry, the Beloved Country," this time in the Long Grove Community church, Friday, Nov. 13, at 8:30 p. m. The Bishop's Company, first American touring repertory company of its kind and currently on its sixth national and second international tour, is comprised of two units, traveling from coast to coast 51 weeks of the year to present drama in the church. The play, "Cry, the Beloved Country" is a tender, tragic story of a white man and a black man locked in the grimmest of human emotions. Beyond the intense and insoluble personal tragedy is the story of the beautiful and tragic land of South Africa—or any land or any world where racial ferment and unrest breaks the harmony of men. Reservations for the Long Grove performance, limited due to the church's seating capacity, may be made by calling Mrs. Edward Wachs, GEneral 8-2137; Mrs. Robert Hill, NEwton 4-3037; or the church, NEwton 4-3635.

ROAD
The Bishop's Company

MEMBERS OF THE Bishop's Company of Santa Barbara, Cal., ponder over maps before embarking for another presentation of Alan Paton's "Cry, the Beloved Country," this time in the Long Grove Community church, Friday, Nov. 13, at 8:30 p. m. The Bishop's Company, first American touring repertory company of its kind and currently on its sixth national and second international tour, is comprised of two units, traveling from coast to coast 51 weeks of the year to present drama in the church. The play, "Cry, the Beloved Country" is a tender, tragic story of a white man and a black man locked in the grimmest of human emotions. Beyond the intense and insoluble personal tragedy is the story of the beautiful and tragic land of South Africa—or any land or any world where racial ferment and unrest breaks the harmony of men. Reservations for the Long Grove performance, limited due to the church's seating capacity, may be made by calling Mrs. Edward Wachs, GEneral 8-2137; Mrs. Robert Hill, NEwton 4-3037; or the church, NEwton 4-3635.

Some Predictions, Opinions Offered

By JIM PHILLIPS

Phillips' Opinions 'n Predictions:

"Anatomy of a Murder's" sensational "censorship" activity was one of the best publicity stunts ever put over on the movie-going public.

Elizabeth Taylor and Eddie Fisher will call it quits before the end of next year.

One of the most badly needed things in this area is an FM station. And the first location to get one will be a certain well-programmed high school.

One of the lowest forms of television advertising is the headache commercial. The big three in this category deliberately insult themselves, their audience and the market by degrading each other to the extent of almost naming products.

SOME DAY Mel Allen will broadcast a baseball or football game without leaning toward the eastern team.

Educational motion pictures are starting to appear more "arty" and less educational. Films produced for the fourth grade level are well-suited to second graders. Films produced for the high school level are overly-simple. Any film that has a "grade rating" given to it, insults the individual ability of the instructor and the subject for which it is slated.

"Adults only" is a phrase used by ad men and publicity hounds to get more people into a theater to see a movie no one in his right mind would go to see if the phrase were not used.

There hasn't really been a good musical produced on film since "Singin' in the Rain," "American in Paris," "Til the Clouds Roll By" and "Porgy and Bess."

It doesn't make any difference who she marries, Marilyn Monroe still can't act.

Overused movie ad phrases: "award winning; for the entire family; supressed for ---years; never before told; savage truth; please don't reveal the climax; explosive subject; not recommended for children; you must see it!"

Movie critics who use the "star" system for rating a movie are unimaginative as well as aware of their own short-comings as critics.

THE "AVERAGE" intelligence of the television audience is noted by media experts as being around sixth grade level. The average intelligence of the media experts is around first grade level if they actually believe that hasty generalization.

When it comes to criticising movies, teen-agers are the most exacting, adults are the most listless, producers are the most careless.

There isn't a clear-cut, dependable, precise or believable audience rating system in use today, and there never will be; and that goes for radio, television and motion pictures.

I miss the dancing of Eleanor Powell, the burlesque comedy of Bert Lahr, the character-humor of Fred Allen and Allen's Alley, the John Nesbitt Passing Parade movies, the heroics of Douglas Fairbanks Jr., the acting of Wallace Berry, the singing of Ethel Waters in "Cabin in the Sky" and the sophistication of William Powell as the Thin Man.

Local Man To Offer Electrical Lecture

Henry A. McCormack, 308 S. Albert, Mt. Prospect, has just been named to the roster of the speakers bureau of Chicago's Electric association.

Well qualified to speak on electrical matters, McCormack has served the electrical industry since his graduation from Notre Dame University in 1951. For the past four years he has been a sales representative for Phelps Dodge Copper Products, Inc., with offices at 5310 West 66th Street, Chicago.

McCormack, with his wife and two children have been residents of Mt. Prospect since coming to the Chicago area four years ago. The family is a member of St. Raymond's Parish, and McCormack is active in parochial and civic affairs of Mt. Prospect.

HENRY McCORMACK

IN HIS new appointment, McCormack will be available to church, civic, fraternal and other groups to present a program developed by the Electric association of Chicago in response to wide public demand for authoritative information on home electrical problems and how to remedy them.

Called "The Magic Link to Living Better Electrically," the program opens with the showing of a swiftly-paced movie produced in color and sound by Hollywood talent. In a witty and entertaining manner, the movie story depicts the ludicrous situations which typically arise in the electrically deprived family. Following the movie, McCormack enlarges on the points made in the movie, with the aid of a series of large colored charts, which help to explain the home electrical wiring system and how to enjoy the maximum benefit from the family's investment in electrical living.

McCormack devotes some time to the new "fashions" in electrical wiring that allow for silent switches, "dinner" switches, electronic devices to perform extra tasks around the home such as snow clearance and master control panels, and outdoor weatherproof electrical connectors.

THE PROGRAM requires about 45 minutes to complete and is followed by a period for the discussion of questions from the audience. Presentation is limited to groups numbering forty or more persons. There is no charge for the program.

McCormack invites program chairmen wishing to make arrangements for presentation of the program to their organizations to call him at his home, CLearbrook 3-3199, or to contact the Electric Association directly, STate 2-8887.

Time given to the Speakers Bureau is without recompense, McCormack explained, "the compensation being the pleasure in helping families to know how to get more convenience and enjoyment from electrical living." BB

New Green Stamp Center to Open

Built and equipped at a cost of $30,000, a new Sperry and Hutchinson Company Green Stamp redemption center will be opened Thursday, Nov. 5 in the new Wieboldt store at Meadowdale shopping center in Carpentersville.

The new center, according to Herbert R. Newman, Chicago, vice president of the midwest division, The Sperry and Hutchinson Company, will occupy 10,000 square feet on the ground floor level.

Of that total area, 3,500 square feet will be devoted to the display of the S&H line of nationally advertised merchandise which may be redeemed with S&H Green Stamps.

IN ADDITION to the 1,000 items of nationally advertised merchandise listed in the S&H Green Stamp catalog, another 1,000 items will be displayed in the Meadowdale Redemption Center, Newman said.

"New items are added to our merchandise almost daily," he pointed out.

A major advance in merchandising will be the use of a perimeter stock room with the display area in the center.

"This will speed up service to our stamp savers," said Newman. "A patron will be able to go to the department which handles the items she wants and the item can be taken out of stock immediately." (BB

Eagle To Build New Warehouse To Serve Area

Eagle Food Centers, Inc., today announced plans for expanding their general offices and warehouse at Milan, Ill. The addition will create a warehouse of approximately 7½ acres under one roof.

"Our constantly increasing business and our plans for opening six new stores in the coming year make it imperative that we enlarge our facilities," said Richard Waxenberg, president of Eagle Food Centers. "This 332,758 square-foot warehouse should adequately serve our needs for the next five years. It will be of special value in expanding our facilities to serve the three new Chicago suburban stores scheduled to open in 1959 in Highland Park, Rolling Meadows, and Elmhurst, as well as our thriving store in Glenview and our Broadway store in Chicago."

THE GROCERY storage area will be increased 121,000 square feet. All grocery items are on pallets and therefore able to be stored in stacks 22 feet high. With this new addition, 650,000 cases of merchandise can be accommodated in the grocery section.

A temperature and humidity controlled produce warehouse of 38,600 square feet is also being added. This temperature control guarantees that all fresh produce will be stored at the proper scientific temperature for the short period it is in the warehouse. It is estimated that the average length of time that any one case of produce, such as lettuce, is in the cooler is a brief two hours and 30 minutes before it is rushed to the stores.

An innovation in the warehouse will be the produce packaging section of 17,000 square feet, where items such as potatoes, apples and citrus fruits will be packed preparatory to going to the stores. Up to this time, such items have been packaged in the store. However, with the central packaging department and the latest mechanical conveniences and equipment, the cost of packaging should be reduced, which will enable a lower price on these items in the stores.

IN ADDITION, the deep freeze room which is maintained at a constant temperature of 10 degrees below zero is being enlarged 50 per cent in area so that it will accommodate 42,000 cases of frozen foods at one time.

The truck service garage facilities which maintains the 35 semi-trailers and 15 tractors plus the other company vehicles is being increased 3200 square feet.

Construction started the last week in October, and is scheduled for completion July 1960. The expanded facility will service the present 30 Eagle Food Centers and also the future stores. New stores are presently under construction in Cedar Rapids and Bettendorf, Iowa, and East Moline, Highland Park, Rolling Meadows and Elmhurst, Ill.

New Green Stamp Center to Open

Built and equipped at a cost of $30,000, a new Sperry and Hutchinson Company Green Stamp redemption center will be opened Thursday, Nov. 5 in the new Wieboldt store at Meadowdale shopping center in Carpentersville.

The new center, according to Herbert R. Newman, Chicago, vice president of the midwest division, The Sperry and Hutchinson Company, will occupy 10,000 square feet on the ground floor level.

Of that total area, 3,500 square feet will be devoted to the display of the S&H line of nationally advertised merchandise which may be redeemed with S&H Green Stamps.

IN ADDITION to the 1,000 items of nationally advertised merchandise listed in the S&H Green Stamp catalog, another 1,000 items will be displayed in the Meadowdale Redemption Center, Newman said.

"New items are added to our merchandise almost daily," he pointed out.

A major advance in merchandising will be the use of a perimeter stock room with the display area in the center.

"This will speed up service to our stamp savers," said Newman. "A patron will be able to go to the department which handles the items she wants and the item can be taken out of stock immediately." (BB

What Next: Start Commuter Tickets for Air Travelers

Sunday, air travelers in nine cities became able to enjoy the speed and ease of commuter ticketing which proved so successful when Capital Airlines inaugurated this convenient ticket program between Chicago and August 2.

The nine cities involved are: Washington, Atlanta, Buffalo, Chicago, Clevelend, Detroit, Minneapolis, St. Paul, New York and Pittsburgh.

Capital Airlines' new multi-destination commuter ticket plan works this way: The traveler orders a book of 10 pre-printed tickets which are enclosed in a neat, fold-over case which is similar to a checkbook. The case contains space for the passenger's air travel card and carry-on baggage tags to be attached to the passenger's suitcases, in addition to the 10 tickets. The traveler's name is engraved in neat gold letters on the outside cover.

Each book of commuter tickets shows point of origin and several destination points, class of service with appropriate fares and reservation telephone numbers of the Capital offices. The ticket is a four part item with a flight coupon, invoice, coupon for the traveler's accounting department and a passenger receipt.

When transportation is desired, a book holder simply calls the nearest Capital office, reserves his space and fills in the ticket himself by marking the appropriate city pair, class of service, flight number, date and the number of the agent who takes his reservation.

On the day of departure, the traveler goes to the airport, presents his ticket to the gate agent, has his baggage weighed in at the gate (except in those cities where there is no gate check-in), and boards his flight. At the end of the month the traveler will be billed for the number of tickets used during the previous month.

Capital's new commuter tickets may be ordered by an air travel plan card holder and by any commercial account.

McDonald's Burgers Hit 50 Million

More than 50 million hamburgers were sold by the McDonald's drive-in chain in the first nine months of 1959, reports Dick Linnel, who operates the local McDonald's unit on Northwest highway near Wilke rd.

The drive-in chain reported its largest three-months sales volume in any quarter since McDonald's was started almost five years ago in April of 1955.

Total sales for the third quarter of the year were $6,710,881, bringing nine-months sales to $15,351,920, an increase of 89 per cent over the first nine months of 1958. Total number of units now operated by the McDonald's chain is 130 compared to 70 at the same time last year.

"We expect to top 20 million dollars in sales for 1959," predicted Ray A. Kroc of Arlington Heights, president of chain which has drive-ins in 29 states. "Before the end of the year, we also should have a total of 200 units open."

Since the start of the firm, in excess of 300 million 15-cent hamburgers have been sold by McDonald's. More than 15,000 tons of beef have been used by McDonald's chain since starting in business.

The chain specializes in an assembly-line type of food preparation that includes only ten items on a menu which features 15-cent hamburgers.

Rush Des Plaines Discount House Toward Completion

A hard-working crew of plasterers, painters and carpenters is rushing to complete the interior of Shopper's Warehouse, Des Plaines' newest discount store, in time to meet the grand opening date of Thursday, Nov. 19.

Located at 1500 Rand rd., Des Plaines, just west of the intersection of Rand and River rds., Shopper's Warehouse will be one of the most modern stores in Chicago's northwest suburban area, according to Leonard Wineburgh, manager.

"In opening this new store, we are endeavoring to bring to suburban shoppers a complete self-service operation just like a food supermarket," he said. "By eliminating credit buying and fancy fixtures, we can cut overhead and pass the savings along to the customer in the form of large discounts on brand name merchandise."

Shopper's warehouse will cover more than 11,000 square feet with parking facilities available for 250 automobiles. Merchandise will be displayed in such a way as to make shopping quick and easy. Shopping carts will be available for customers who anticipate making more than one purchase during the time they are in the store.

"As a further convenience, store hours will be timed to the suburban family," Wineburgh said. "We will be open 12 hours daily, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Our Sunday hours will be from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m."

Plans for a gigantic "grand opening" celebration "week" will be announced at a later date. (BB

Safety and Security Key Words at Missile Center

by BOB BUCHANAN

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Two "S's" — safety and security — are key words here at the United States Air Force missile test center.

Everything at "the Cape," as local residents refer to it, evolves around these two words for they are the key to this nation's race against the Soviets in the missile field.

Though innumerable missiles of all sizes and types have been fired and misfired here, no one single person has been killed or injured during a firing.

This is a most impressive record in a most impressive business where 8,000 people are working daily over a 15,000 acre highly secured sandy and scrub area midway down Florida's east coast.

For those who understand the language, several "stop and go" lights stand in the launching area 40 feet above the ground. A "red" light means stay out of the area. A "yellow" light is caution, tests are being conducted. Green means the area is open.

WHEN ALL IS in readiness for a firing, all personnel are cleared from the area behind a barracade nearly a mile back of the launching pad.

The only people within the area are about 30 key personnel who are locked in a concrete dome blockhouse designed to withstand 50,000 tons of dynamite at all positions excepting the apex. These key personnel are on duty checking some 250,000 parts in 175 different functions designed to test each missile to the highest degree.

The Air Force, which had been given the responsibility of operating the missile test site at Cape Canaveral, has delegated all authority but one. That is Safety.

Each blockhouse for each launching pad has a separate conference room where contractors and sub-contractors can "discuss" their different phases of activity so that persons who do not need to know are not informed about disagreements which may go on as to whether or not a missile will be fired, a "hold" —unscheduled interruption and delay in the countdown —will be ordered, or the mission will be "scrubbed." In layman's language that means cancelled.

Regardless of whether the Air Force, Army or Navy fires the missile from their pads or blockhouses along the Cape, the Air Force through a range safety officer has complete control over the life of the missile once it is airborne.

Prior to the firing, safety lines are plotted on a sky screen. Outside these lines which chart the amount a missile may stray are destruct lines.

THE RANGE safety officer can, if the missile is acting weirdly and depending upon the situation, shut off the fuel supply and let the missile coast to earth with hopes of recovery or if the missile passes the destruct lines, he will set off an explosive destroying the missile.

No one ever has or probably will ever question the range officer's decision of exploding a multi million dollar missile. As one officer said, "I wouldn't want his job in a million years. He gets too many gray hairs too quickly."

The only question about exploding the missile is whether or not the range safety officer pushed the destruct button too soon and did not give the missile a proper chance. Yet, his record of no lives lost sepaks for itself.

Down-range, which is the path the missile will follow for up to 5,000 miles, there are a dozen tracking stations on either islands or ships which plot the missile's course. Each station has its range safety officer and when the missile is in his area, he is the one who has the authority to destruct or not.

He doesn't have long to think since the missile down range often is approaching 15,000 miles per hour.

Every safety precaution is taken back at the Cape. Before a missile is fired, all aircraft flying along the coast are diverted inland. The shrimp fishermen, who inhabited the area long before the missilemen came along, are cleared from the waters within three miles of the Cape.

The other "S," security, is not so simple. With 8,000 civilians and military at the Cape, it is difficult to keep security in its strictest sense.

There is to be no publicizing of a missile firing but the handwriting is on the wall and all one needs to do is read it.

Mom knows that when "dad" is working late tonight, the lights are lit out on the cape, and over coffee she learns that Tom down the street and Pat over on the next block are all working tonight, and that all are working in say the Titan complex, it's evident as to why they are working.

THE MEN will not say so much as a word to their wives, but they know "what's coming off." They've lived with their husbands being away from home for years. They should know.

And drive-in movies often have a hard time on missile firing nights. Instead the family drives to the beach and sits and waits with all eyes strained toward the cape.

It is not hard to find cars lined up solidly abreast two deep watching missile firings. Ten thousand cars can't be wrong. Sometimes they are, but usually only when there is a long "hold" or the mission is "scrubbed."

Press accommodations are two miles behind the launching sites. As soon as the Atlas, or the Navy Polaris or whatever missile is fired reporters rush to more than a dozen telephones.

One wire service, however, is usually not present. Its correspondents are in the bridal suite at a seaside motel. On the suite balcony they have a large telescope to watch the firing so that they can dash back inside and send the news out immediately over a teletype machine.

Most important to security is the complete absence of all camera equipment from launching sites except those under government contract. These cameras are so powerful they can photograph a baseball from eight miles away.

The government is happy to give out photographs of each missile but all have been carefully screened to be sure that no secrets are divulged. Officials state that photographs have given missile test officials some of the more important data they have uncovered in their testing.

SECURITY is a part of the contract that was let to Pan-American airways for operation of the missile test center and the down range tracking stations.

The guards are employed by Pan-Am. Each employee has a badge with his photo on it and a key designating which areas he may enter. Even new employees have "new employee" stamped on their badges in large letters.

Air Force officers would like to add a third "S." This is success. However, most never expect success but all say that they never fail.

Recently a multi-million dollar Atlas missile took two seconds to explode on the pad. Even that wasn't a failure. Scientists learned the cause. The test was a costly one but certainly not a failure. The closest thing to a failure at Cape Canaveral would be a missile that went all the way down the test range without obser vers learning one thing from the firing.

As the scientists and key personnel from some 30 civilian contracting agencies learn more about U.S. missile development, they are ever reminded, the two "S's" —safety and security — come first. (WUS

SECURITY IS QUITE DIFFICULT, especially in instances like this when an 11-story gantry sticks out above the skyline with an Atlas missile clearly vissible inside. For safety reasons, the gantry and all personnel are removed when this inter-continental missile is fired.

Seniors Have Until Nov. 14 To Apply for NROTC Exams

High school seniors and graduates have only until November 14 to apply for the Navy's Reserve Office Training Corps, VAdm. H. P. Smith, Chief of Naval Personnel, said today. Applicants will take the nationwide competitive examination on December 12 as the first step toward an appointment as midshipman.

Designed to supplement the officer output of the Naval Academy the NROTC program makes it possible for a young man to earn a regular commission while studying at the civilian college of his choice which has an NROTC unit. All tuition, fees and books are furnished by the Navy, and the student receives an annual retainer of $600 for four years.

During the summers the student goes on interesting training cruises to many parts of the world. After completing the usual four year college course, he is commissioned in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps and goes on active duty as a prospective career officer with the Navy's far-flung fleets.

High school seniors and graduates who have reached the 17th anniversary of birth and have not reached the 21st anniversary of birth on 1 July 1960 may apply for the NROTC aptitude test. Those who make a qualifying score will be given a rigid physical exam early in 1960. From the pool of qualified young men remaining in competition, approximately 1600 will be selected to begin their naval careers next September.

The NROTC college training program is also open to enlisted men on active dury with the Navy and Marines. Separate quotas are established for applicants within these services.

Application forms are available at high schools, colleges, Navy Recruiting Stations or from the Chief of Naval Personnel, Department of the Navy, Washington 25, D. C.

The 11-week course included instruction in all basic military subjects and infantry weapons.

General To Inspect Marines

GENERAL F. E. LEEK

Annually, the Commander of the Marine Air Reserve Training Bgdr. Gen. Frederick E. Leek, and representatives of his staff, conduct a military inspection of all Organized Marine Air Reserve Squadrons throughout the United States.

Saturday, Nov. 7, 1959 has been designated as the day of "Inspection" of the Chicagoland Marine Air Reserve Squadrons, in the station drill hall at the Glenview Naval Air Station, at 6:30 p.m. The public is invited.

The squadrons to be inspected are as follows: Marine Attack Squadrons (VMA) 543, 611, Marine Air Control Squadron (MACS) 22, Marine Air Reserve Group (MARG) 12, and two Helicopter Transport Squadrons (HMR) and 776.

The purpose of the military inspection is to provide the General and his staff the opportunity to visit this command and organized reserve squadrons, discuss policy and matters of interest with squadron commanders, inspect personnel and facilities, obtain first hand information on such as command relationship, problem areas, working and operation procedure, squadron accomplishments and to better Marine relations and understandings with local news media and civilian personnel. # Some Quick Tips To Winter Drivers

Six quick tips from the National Safety Council on how to be a better winter driver:

1. Winterize not only your car, but your driving technique and your attitude, as well. Normal speeds often are too fast for winter conditions. When weather's bad, slow down.

2. Have good tires—preferably snow tires—and for more severe conditions, use reinforced tire chains.

3. Keep windshield and windows clear, and wiper blades, heater and defroster in proper operating condition.

4. Get the feel of the road as soon as you start out (but away from hazards or other cars). By cautiously trying your brakes or gently pressing your accelerator, you can learn how slippery the road surface is. Then adjust your speed accordingly.

5. KEEP WELL back of the vehicle ahead to give yourself plenty of room for an emergency stop. Following too closely is boubly dangerous on winter roads.

6. Pump your brakes to stop quickly on icy roads. Jamming on the brakes will throw the car into an uncontrollable skid. The trick is to slow the car by rapid and intermittent brake applications and at the same time maintain rolling traction that gives steering control.

"There's nothing much you can do about winter weather —except be prepared for it," the National Safety Council said. "Snow and ice, combined with early darkness frequent snowstorms and spattered windshields, help cause the high auto death and injury toll in the winter."

THE COUNCIL cited these revealing facts:

1. In one out of six fatal auto accidents, the weather is rainy, foggy or snowy.

2. In one out of four fatal auto accidents, the reoad is wet, snowy, icy or muddy.

3. In fatal auto accidents in which the driver's vision is obstructed, rain, snow and sleet on the car windshield crop up in two out of five instances.

"Seat belts, a must when ever you drive," the Council said, "are especially valuable in winter."

"But nothing," it emphasized, "protects a driver as much as being prepared for the added hazards of winter driving." (B8

Arlington Heights Couple Will Reside in Hometown

(Jenart

An Arlington Heights couple was united in marriage September 26 in an afternoon ceremony performed in the town's First Presbyterian church by Dr. Paul L. Stumpf. The former Janet Davenport, daughter of the O. E. Davenports, 314 S. Beverly, became the bride of Donald E. Niemeyer, son of the E. H. Niemeyers, 116 S. Chestnut, before the church's altar which was banked with baskets and vases of white mums.

Wearing a white satin brocade wedding gown, the bride came down the aisle on the arm of her father. Her gown had an oval neckline long sleeves and at the front of the fitted waistline a small flat bow held three deep pleats in place. The very full skirt fell into a chapel train and was complemented with a fingertip veil held by a pearl encrusted crown. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade of white roses and stephanotis.

TWO ATTENDANTS preceded the bride, attired in identical apple green tissue peau de soie waltz length gowns, belted by narrow forest green velvet with long streamers, and matching forest green bands in their hair. Each wore apple green shoes and carried a cascade of rust and gold chrysanthemums tied with matching ribbons. Maid of honor was Kathleen Ames of Marinette, Wis., and bridesmaid was Judie Kohl of Arlington Heights.

David Ewing of Arlington Heights was best man, and ushers were Donald Seymour of Marinette, Wis., Clarke Garrett of Madison, Wis., and Thomas Kouros, Ted Baralar and Robert Winter, all of Arlington Heights.

THE BRIDAL pair both attended Arlington high school, the bride then taking two years of college at Lawrence in Appleton, Wis., and the bridegroom graduating from the University of Illinois. He is now employed by the Pure Oil Co. in Arlington Heights.

Following the afternoon wedding a reception was held in the church fellowship hall for 200 guests. The bride's mother received in a french blue silk faille sheath dress with matching accessories, her purse pinned with a phalanopsis orchid corsage. Mrs. Niemeyer chose a pale blue brocade sheath dress with matching accessories and had a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids.

The couple had a 2-week honeymoon at Niagara Falls and Canada and are now at home at 910 N. Beverly lane, Arlington Heights.

An Inspired Partygiver

Dear Peg:

If "Semper Paratus" or "God's orange juice squeezer" or even five stars on some wide satin ribbon mean anything to you, you'd have been a good partner to have along on the treasure hunt last Sunday night. It was fun to receive Vera and Dick's clever invitation, written in verse with the information about the party given in thinly disguised clues—it had been a long time since we had been to any type of party other than the usual dinner or cocktail party.

Somehow as we grow older, have larger families and more household duties our party-giving tends to become less inspired and it's all we can do to have a few couples in for dinner. However, I think Vera and Dick's party gave the social life of the group a good shot in the arm—at least you'd have thought so if you could have heard all the ideas for unusual parties that the gals came up with by the end of the evening—it looks as if there might even be a scramble for Vera's new title, without question, "the hostess with the mostest!"

The 12 couples arrived about 7:30 Sunday evening in treasure hunting clothes and armed with flash lights. After a few necessary instructions: don't spend more than 20 minutes figuring out the clue, call in and be told what it is even though it means being docked 30 minutes; bring the clue in with you (there were enough clues for everyone in the various envelopes); we would be traveling in a circle, we were given our first clue and we all took off in cars with our assigned partners.

The big red thing which used to make a lot of noise, but which the children now love to climb on was, of course, the old fire engine in the park. Under the front seat was the large envelope containing the second clues. "Semper Paratus" could be nothing but the Coast Guard motto and the nearest Coast Guard station to us was located in Wilmette harbor. Sure enough, just outside the gate leading into the station was the familiar manila envelope containing the little cards on which we would find the next clue. It takes a little imagination, but the Bahai Temple, on Sheridan Road in Wilmette, does resemble a huge orange juice squeeer. At any rate that's what we thought and we were right, for just behind the sign at the entrance was the envelope and next clue. Five stars on wide satin ribbon? That's easy—it really wasn't ribbon but blanket binding and the five stars simply meant general. What else—General Binding Co., of course.

And so it went until we had found the eight clues. Although we made a valiant effort, we didn't win. We just couldn't figure out the last clue—a paper with only the letters "ogombrena" which unscrambled read "boomerang." This is a good way to entertain a large number of people. After the hunt we went back to Vera and Dick's and had food and drink and laughed over the amusing things that happened to us all sometime during the evening's travels.

My love,
Patty

Arlington Heights Couple Will Reside in Hometown

(Jenart

An Arlington Heights couple was united in marriage September 26 in an afternoon ceremony performed in the town's First Presbyterian church by Dr. Paul L. Stumpf. The former Janet Davenport, daughter of the O. E. Davenports, 314 S. Beverly, became the bride of Donald E. Niemeyer, son of the E. H. Niemeyers, 116 S. Chestnut, before the church's altar which was banked with baskets and vases of white mums.

Wearing a white satin brocade wedding gown, the bride came down the aisle on the arm of her father. Her gown had an oval neckline long sleeves and at the front of the fitted waistline a small flat bow held three deep pleats in place. The very full skirt fell into a chapel train and was complemented with a fingertip veil held by a pearl encrusted crown. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade of white roses and stephanotis.

TWO ATTENDANTS preceded the bride, attired in identical apple green tissue peau de soie waltz length gowns, belted by narrow forest green velvet with long streamers, and matching forest green bands in their hair. Each wore apple green shoes and carried a cascade of rust and gold chrysanthemums tied with matching ribbons. Maid of honor was Kathleen Ames of Marinette, Wis., and bridesmaid was Judie Kohl of Arlington Heights.

David Ewing of Arlington Heights was best man, and ushers were Donald Seymour of Marinette, Wis., Clarke Garrett of Madison, Wis., and Thomas Kouros, Ted Baralar and Robert Winter, all of Arlington Heights.

THE BRIDAL pair both attended Arlington high school, the bride then taking two years of college at Lawrence in Appleton, Wis., and the bridegroom graduating from the University of Illinois. He is now employed by the Pure Oil Co. in Arlington Heights.

Following the afternoon wedding a reception was held in the church fellowship hall for 200 guests. The bride's mother received in a french blue silk faille sheath dress with matching accessories, her purse pinned with a phalanopsis orchid corsage. Mrs. Niemeyer chose a pale blue brocade sheath dress with matching accessories and had a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids.

The couple had a 2-week honeymoon at Niagara Falls and Canada and are now at home at 910 N. Beverly lane, Arlington Heights.

Hawaiian Theme Used For Jrs.' Guest Night

THIRTEEN new members will meet their club officers and board members at a tea to be held November 5 in the home of the club's president, Mrs. G. T. Beckley, 737 S. Belmont lane. The occasion will provide an opportunity for new members to become better acquainted with some of the philanthropies that the club supports. The Clearbrook school in Rolling Meadows, the Arlington Library, and Scholarships for Teachers of Exceptional Children are but a few of the many civic organizations that the club helps support by club dances, fashion shows, and committee projects.

An Inspired Partygiver

Dear Peg:

If "Semper Paratus" or "God's orange juice squeezer" or even five stars on some wide satin ribbon mean anything to you, you'd have been a good partner to have along on the treasure hunt last Sunday night. It was fun to receive Vera and Dick's clever invitation, written in verse with the information about the party given in thinly disguised clues—it had been a long time since we had been to any type of party other than the usual dinner or cocktail party.

Somehow as we grow older, have larger families and more household duties our party-giving tends to become less inspired and it's all we can do to have a few couples in for dinner. However, I think Vera and Dick's party gave the social life of the group a good shot in the arm—at least you'd have thought so if you could have heard all the ideas for unusual parties that the gals came up with by the end of the evening—it looks as if there might even be a scramble for Vera's new title, without question, "the hostess with the mostest!"

The 12 couples arrived about 7:30 Sunday evening in treasure hunting clothes and armed with flash lights. After a few necessary instructions: don't spend more than 20 minutes figuring out the clue, call in and be told what it is even though it means being docked 30 minutes; bring the clue in with you (there were enough clues for everyone in the various envelopes); we would be traveling in a circle, we were given our first clue and we all took off in cars with our assigned partners.

The big red thing which used to make a lot of noise, but which the children now love to climb on was, of course, the old fire engine in the park. Under the front seat was the large envelope containing the second clues. "Semper Paratus" could be nothing but the Coast Guard motto and the nearest Coast Guard station to us was located in Wilmette harbor. Sure enough, just outside the gate leading into the station was the familiar manila envelope containing the little cards on which we would find the next clue. It takes a little imagination, but the Bahai Temple, on Sheridan Road in Wilmette, does resemble a huge orange juice squeeer. At any rate that's what we thought and we were right, for just behind the sign at the entrance was the envelope and next clue. Five stars on wide satin ribbon? That's easy—it really wasn't ribbon but blanket binding and the five stars simply meant general. What else—General Binding Co., of course.

And so it went until we had found the eight clues. Although we made a valiant effort, we didn't win. We just couldn't figure out the last clue—a paper with only the letters "ogombrena" which unscrambled read "boomerang." This is a good way to entertain a large number of people. After the hunt we went back to Vera and Dick's and had food and drink and laughed over the amusing things that happened to us all sometime during the evening's travels.

My love,
Patty

SUCCESSFUL HOMEMAKING

by LOIS SEILER Food Editor

SIFTING FLOUR FOR her very different and delicious Poppy Seed Cake is Mrs. Walter Landmeier of Arlington Heights. This good cook and her favorite recipes are being featured this week in the column "Successful Homemaking." (S

Two unique and delicious recipes have been shared with us this week by Mrs. Walter Landmeier of Arlington Heights.

One is for a hearty molded salad; the other for a rich delectable poppy seed cake.

The salad, which is made in two layers, has a basic mayonnaise - gelatin mixture in both layers.

In the bottom layer this mixture is combined with sieved egg yolks seasoned with mustard. The top layer is a combination of cooked shrimp, cottage cheese, chopped egg whites, olives, parsley, celery and the mayonnaise mixture.

THE SALAD is firm and sets quickly, but it may be made a day in advance, if desired. Mrs. Landmeier cuts it into squares and serves it on lettuce leaves accompanied by spiced peaches and a molded fruit or vegetable salad. Other alternatives which she recommends as accompaniments are a combination salad or a relish tray.

This good cook has found that men as well as women enjoy this flavorful parti-colored Harlequin Salad. She suggests serving it for a luncheon, late evening snack or a Sunday night buffet supper.

Mrs. Landmeier only recently acquired the recipe for a Poppy Seed Cake, but she liked it so well that it quickly became a favorite.

VERY DIFFERENT and very delicious, this is definitely a party cake.

Made in three layers, this poppy seed cake has a custard filling and chocolate frosting. It is excellent to serve as a dinner dessert or with afternoon coffee.

The Landmeiers live at 702 N. Chestnut in Arlington Heights. They have two sons: John, 22, a senior at Southern Illinois university, and Tommy, 18, who is in his freshman year at Northern Illinois university.

Harlequin Salad

Mayonnaise Mixture:

2 tablespoons gelatine
1 cup cold water
1½ cups mayonnaise
¼ cup lemon juice
¾ teaspoon salt
½ tablespoon grated onion

Soften the gelatin in the cold water in the top of a double boiler. Heat until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from the fire and add the remaining ingredients. Blend well. Set aside.

Bottom Layer

The yolks from eight large hard-cooked eggs
½ cup of the mayonnaise mixture
1 teaspoon prepared mustard

Put the yolks through a sieve. Mix with a scant ½ cup of the mayonnaise mixture. Add the prepared mustard.

Pat this mixture into an oiled 8 by 8 by 2 inch pan.

Top Layer

Whites from eight hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 pound cottage cheese
½ cup olives with pimientos, chopped
¼ cup chopped parsley
¾ cup chopped celery
1 pound cooked shrimp, cut up
Remainder of mayonnaise mixture

Blend all of these ingredients together and pat on top of yolk mixture in pan. Place in the refrigerator for two hours or until served.

Serves eight to 10.

Poppy Seed Cake

¾ cup poppy seeds
¾ cup milk
¾ cup butter
1½ cups granulated sugar
4 egg yolks, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons baking powder
4 well-beaten egg whites

Soak the poppy seeds in the milk for two hours.

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the beaten egg yolks and beat well. Blend in the vanilla.

Add the poppy seed mixture to the batter.

Sift the flour and baking powder together and beat into the batter. Lastly fold in the beaten egg whites.

Bake the cake in three 8-inch layer cake tins in a 325 degree oven for 25 minutes.

When cool, fill with custard and frost with chocoate icing.

SUCCESSFUL HOMEMAKING

by LOIS SEILER Food Editor

SIFTING FLOUR FOR her very different and delicious Poppy Seed Cake is Mrs. Walter Landmeier of Arlington Heights. This good cook and her favorite recipes are being featured this week in the column "Successful Homemaking." (S

Two unique and delicious recipes have been shared with us this week by Mrs. Walter Landmeier of Arlington Heights.

One is for a hearty molded salad; the other for a rich delectable poppy seed cake.

The salad, which is made in two layers, has a basic mayonnaise - gelatin mixture in both layers.

In the bottom layer this mixture is combined with sieved egg yolks seasoned with mustard. The top layer is a combination of cooked shrimp, cottage cheese, chopped egg whites, olives, parsley, celery and the mayonnaise mixture.

THE SALAD is firm and sets quickly, but it may be made a day in advance, if desired. Mrs. Landmeier cuts it into squares and serves it on lettuce leaves accompanied by spiced peaches and a molded fruit or vegetable salad. Other alternatives which she recommends as accompaniments are a combination salad or a relish tray.

This good cook has found that men as well as women enjoy this flavorful parti-colored Harlequin Salad. She suggests serving it for a luncheon, late evening snack or a Sunday night buffet supper.

Mrs. Landmeier only recently acquired the recipe for a Poppy Seed Cake, but she liked it so well that it quickly became a favorite.

VERY DIFFERENT and very delicious, this is definitely a party cake.

Made in three layers, this poppy seed cake has a custard filling and chocolate frosting. It is excellent to serve as a dinner dessert or with afternoon coffee.

The Landmeiers live at 702 N. Chestnut in Arlington Heights. They have two sons: John, 22, a senior at Southern Illinois university, and Tommy, 18, who is in his freshman year at Northern Illinois university.

Harlequin Salad

Mayonnaise Mixture:

2 tablespoons gelatine
1 cup cold water
1½ cups mayonnaise
¼ cup lemon juice
¾ teaspoon salt
½ tablespoon grated onion

Soften the gelatin in the cold water in the top of a double boiler. Heat until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from the fire and add the remaining ingredients. Blend well. Set aside.

Bottom Layer

The yolks from eight large hard-cooked eggs
½ cup of the mayonnaise mixture
1 teaspoon prepared mustard

Put the yolks through a sieve. Mix with a scant ½ cup of the mayonnaise mixture. Add the prepared mustard.

Pat this mixture into an oiled 8 by 8 by 2 inch pan.

Top Layer

Whites from eight hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 pound cottage cheese
½ cup olives with pimientos, chopped
¼ cup chopped parsley
¾ cup chopped celery
1 pound cooked shrimp, cut up
Remainder of mayonnaise mixture

Blend all of these ingredients together and pat on top of yolk mixture in pan. Place in the refrigerator for two hours or until served.

Serves eight to 10.

Poppy Seed Cake

¾ cup poppy seeds
¾ cup milk
¾ cup butter
1½ cups granulated sugar
4 egg yolks, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons baking powder
4 well-beaten egg whites

Soak the poppy seeds in the milk for two hours.

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the beaten egg yolks and beat well. Blend in the vanilla.

Add the poppy seed mixture to the batter.

Sift the flour and baking powder together and beat into the batter. Lastly fold in the beaten egg whites.

Bake the cake in three 8-inch layer cake tins in a 325 degree oven for 25 minutes.

When cool, fill with custard and frost with chocoate icing.

Reading about the winter Olympics to be held at Squaw Valley, Nevada, has made me think of our NORDIC STOCKING CAPS for snow weather, skating, sledding, and plain every-day wear. You will be very snug and warm in our Nordic Knit Stocking Caps.

For you squaws, choose from a five foot stocking cap that swings around your neck to form a scarf in bold stripes in your school colors — or the old favorite KRIS KRINGLE stocking cap also in your school colors — or you may prefer the KING ARTHUR helmet or the Italian Wiglet. 5 ft. stocking cap, all wool or orlon 3.98. Kris Kringle in brushed orlon 1.98, King Arthur helmet in orlon 2.98. Italian Wiglet, imported angora 2.98.

For Women

Quite Contrary by Mary

She's Last Big Spender

I just love to travel. And, I adore hotels. There is something about a hotel that brings out the grande dame in me. Anyway, it brings out what I like to consider the grande dame in me. I honestly don't know any grande dames personally but I read a lot.

I sort of sweep into the lobby flapping my gloves and clutching my little train case tightly. With nose in air, I graciously condescend to glance at the hoi polloi gathered about. Strangely enough, they don't ever seem to be glancing at me. Which I can hardly understand as I am in my very best bib and tucker and looking devastatingly lovely. In my opinion.

I AM ALSO always very very pleasant to the help as somewhere I read that it is a mark of the aristocrat to be nice to the help. Besides, I have been help myself and liked customers to be nice to me. All in all, I get along quite well with travel until one little thing pops up. And, it pops up with monotonous regularity. I cant seem to figure out tipping.

Back in the days when everything was 10 per cent I did pretty well as even I with my shaky arithmetic can move a decimal point. However, along with everything else, tipping has gone up. I think I was told that fifteen per cent was the going rate now. This almost has me thrown.

As I sat in my hotel room, it occurred to me that it would be nice to have a double Coca Cola sent up. Sort of living it up, as it were. As father had said to just sign the check with the room number and add a 15 per cent tip if I ordered dinner in my room, this is what I planned to do. The whole operation seemed to me both daring and evidently a little nerve racking.

THE LITTLE MAN appeared at the door. I grabbed for the check and with trembling hand wrote out all the information I had been told to write. Little man gave me a rather peculiar look but I just put it down to awe at such a big operation.

It wasn't until much later that father gently but loudly pointed out to me that I had given little man the vast sum of nine-and-one-half cents for his work. Which, even to my miserly thinking, seemed a bit stingy. I can even hear little man telling his friends below stairs that he has finally met the last of the big spenders. And, I'm not going to that hotel again.

Use of Corn, Beans Rises to New Record

by L. H. SIMERL

Last year, 1958, farmers produced a then record crop of 3,800 million buhels of corn. Yet more than 98 per cent of that amount was used and exported before October 1 of this year. Only 59 million bushels, less than 2 per cent of the crop, was added to the carryover!

Last November, United States Department of Agriculture experts forecast that the addition to the corn carryover would be around 300 million bushels, five times as much as now appears to have been added.

Total disappearance of corn during the marketing year ended October 1 was 3,741 million bushels. This was 371 million bushels more than the previous record disappearance, jut a year before. It was 270 million bushels more than United States Department of Agriculture experts calculated last February 1.

THE IMPORTANT point is that no one really knows how much corn we can use with prices in the $1.00 to $1.15 range, as they were this past year.

When our best experts make such errors as the above, we have good reason to be skeptical of promises of farm prosperity that might come as a result of new attempts to restrict production or marketings.

We simply do not know enough about the causes and effects of prices to be able to guarantee results from any price-boosting program. Future programs, like those of the past, will come with promises, not guarantees.

Look at soybeans for another example: The 1958 crop totaled 574 million bushels. All but 41 million bushels of the crop was used or exported before October 1. This amount was added to the carryover on October 1, the beginning of the new marketing year. Last November, USDA outlook experts said that the addition to carryover would be around 80 million bushels, or twice as much as the actual accumulation.

WE ARE NOT criticizing government employees. We know them personally. They are well-trained and conscientious workers. Most of them have had 15 to 25 years of experience in their present or related positions. But we do believe that we have an obligation to point out that there are lots of unknowns about the demand for and prices of farm products.

Here's another case: Thirty years ago our ranchers and farmers produced only enough cattle to provide 50 pounds of beef per person in a year—less than a pound a week. And there was much talk then about overproduction. Now our cattlemen supply enough beef to provide 80 pounds per person—60 per cent more than in 1929. And yet beef cattle are at the top of the farm price totem pole.

State Farm Census To Begin Nov. 11

Census takers will be combing Illinois farms this fall for agricultural facts and figures. It will be part of the nationwide farm census which the U.S. Government's Bureau of the Census undertakes every five years. The last farm census was taken in 1954.

More than 700 Illinois census takers will begin operations on November 11. They will want to know about the number and sizes of farms, acreage and harvest of crops, livestock production and inventories, farm expenditures, farm values and mortgage debt.

The results, to be published on a county, state and national scale, will give the facts on what millions of farmers are doing. These up-to-date totals should be helpful to farmers in making decisions about their operations.

Each farmer will be asked to help directly in the census. About two weeks before the census-taking starts, post offices will distribute a farm census questionnaire to each farmer. He will be asked to fill it out and hand it to the local census taker when he calls. To accurately answer the census questions, farmers are urged to keep a few simple records of harvest information, products sold and major farm expenses. The records will not only help the census bureau, but should prove handy to farmers themselves in management planning.

The census bureau will use a new definititon of a farm this year. It is this — a farm must have 10 or more acres with agricultural sales of $50 or more per year. Or, if it is less than 10 acres, it must have minimum sales of $250 a year. The former definition of a farm for census purposes was a place of more than three acres that produced commodities with at least $150, whether they were sold or not; or, if it was less than three acres, it had actual total sales of products worth $150. Merle W. Wills, Wheeling, will direct census taking in Northern Illinois.

Down On The Farm

CARL F. MEES

with Your Farm Adviser

By: CARL F. MEES
Farm Adviser

A few days ago I received a copy of the 1959 yearbook of agriculture entitled "Food." While I have not read the book, I have glanced at portions of it and have found it to be quite interesting. Many of the statements contain some basic facts and many of which could easily be expanded. The first statement in the book is "Food is important in keeping our people and our country strong." Yes America has become a strong nation because it has had a strong agriculture.

In the early period of our history about 85 per cent of the population was producing food for the other 15 per cent. Today less than 15 per cent is producing food for the 85 per cent. Even as late as 1900 one person in agriculture could produce only enough food for himself and three others. Today one person produces enough for himself and about 23 others. Agriculture is a basic industry and it has played an important part in making America strong.

WE READ much about our surpluses and what to do with the food we do not need. I would much rather consider that an abundance of food is one of our blessings and worry with how to dispose of the quantity not needed, than to live in a country where people are starving. We are the best fed nation in the world.

I am happy to have worked for 15 years in helping farm people produce abundantly. We have been able to do this because we have applied the research developed by the land grant colleges.

If you would like a copy of the book write to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C. The price of the book is $2.25.

THE 1959 census of agriculture will be conducted soon. There have been many changes taking place the last five years. Only a nationwide farm census can give a true measure of these changes and their nature.

To answer the census questions, farmers will need a few simple records. The Bureau is urging each farmer to bring up to date the records of his harvest, the products sold and major farm expenses so that he can easily and accurately fill out his census report.

The census bureau will use a new definition of a farm this year. It is this — a farm must have 10 or more acres with agricultural sales of $50 or more per year. Or, if it is less than 10 acres, it must have minimum sales of $250 a year. The former definition of a farm for census purposes was a place of more than three acres that produced commodities with at least $150, whether they were sold or not; or, if it was less than three acres, it had actual total sales of products worth $150.

Tips on Machine Economy

It costs more than $1,700 a year to keep the fleet of machinery the average farmer uses on a 150-200 acre farm.

Fixed costs, much as depreciation, interest and taxes, are responsible for this high figure. And the tab is probably too high for that size of farm, according to R. B. Schwart, University of Illinois agricultural economist. It indicates that many farmers have overdone themselves in buying machinery.

He suggested that farmers buy equipment carefully, making sure they have plenty of work for each piece. Careful selection tends to hold down the initial investment and thus lowers fixed costs.

It's expensive to keep an idle piece of equipment — fixed costs stay the same whether it works or sits.

Here are other ways to reduce fixed costs: share machinery with a neighbor, buy and use machines cooperatively; do custom work for others; hire custom operators to do some of your work.

Fixed costs may eat away unnoticed on a bank balance. But they do eat. According to Schwart, farmers can figure depreciation at 6 to 10 per cent of the initial investment. Other costs, such as interest on investment, taxes, insurance and housing, take a 3 to 5 per cent cut. This amounts to a yearly bill of 9 to 15 per cent on the machinery's initial price. It's worth reckoning with, Schwart said.

Operator Care Equals Fewer Farm Accidents

The safe operation of any machine depends entirely on you, the operator.

O. L. Hogsett, extension safety specialist at the University of Illinois college of agriculture, said the operator must always be alert and agile if he is to avoid some of the sudden emergencies that may cause serious accidents.

Through training and experience, the good operator acquires habits of safe operation that cause him to respond automatically to dangerous conditions, Hogsett said.

When learning to operate a new machine, get someone to show you how to operate it safely before you try it alone. Always be conscious of danger to other people around your machine. Never let them ride on your tractor or on any machine that is being pulled.

Long hours of operation will cause you to become tired and increase the chances of accidents.

Your clothing should fit snugly, with no loose ends. Loose coattails, wide or torn trouser cuffs, torn coat or shirt sleeves and double-thumb gloves often cause accidents around moving machinery. To help reduce farm machinery accidents, learn what precautions to take with each machine. Then practice these precautions until they become automatic.

Add Protein To Increase Stock Profit

Cook county farmers can increase their livestock profits by feeding protein supplements to livestock gleaning cornfields.

Farm adviser Carl F. Mees said hogs and cattle fed protein will gain enough to more than pay the supplement costs. As proof, he cited a recent Iowa trial in which gains increased ¾ pound a head daily when the cattle received a protein supplement. Each dollar spent for supplement returned $2.85.

The average of 13 corn-belt experiments has shown that:

1. Pigs receiving supplement each gained ½ pound more daily while gleaning cornfields.
2. Each buhel of corn produced 4.5 more pounds of pork when supplement was fed.
3. Each pound of supplement saved 6.4 pounds of corn.

If corn in the field is worth only 50 cents a bushel, the supplement would have to cost over $6.00 a hundred pounds before it would be too expensive to feed.

Preservative Keeps Fence Posts Longer

Farmers can stretch the service life of pine fence posts to at least 15 or 20 years by cold-soaking them in the wood preservative pentachlorphenol, according to W. F. Bulkley, extension forester at the University of Illinois.

White, southern, red and jack pines are the main sources of pine fence posts in Illinois. Of these species, eastern white pine is most resistant to decay. However, even this species will decay in less than three years when in contact with the soil if it is not treated with a preservative.

For best protection against decay, Bulkley lists three steps for treating pine posts: Farmers should (1) remove all bark from the posts, (2) let them dry out completely before treating and (3). treat them full length in the preservative from 24 to 48 hours.

Painting the preservative on with a brush or treating only a portion of the post is a waste of time, Bulkley explained.

For further information on preserving fence posts at home, write to the College of Agriculture, Urbana, or stop at the Farm Adviser's Office, 201 N. Dunton ave., Arlington Heights, for a copy of Circular 636, "Preserve Your Pot With Penta."

Use of Corn, Beans Rises to New Record

by L. H. SIMERL

Last year, 1958, farmers produced a then record crop of 3,800 million buhels of corn. Yet more than 98 per cent of that amount was used and exported before October 1 of this year. Only 59 million bushels, less than 2 per cent of the crop, was added to the carryover!

Last November, United States Department of Agriculture experts forecast that the addition to the corn carryover would be around 300 million bushels, five times as much as now appears to have been added.

Total disappearance of corn during the marketing year ended October 1 was 3,741 million bushels. This was 371 million bushels more than the previous record disappearance, jut a year before. It was 270 million bushels more than United States Department of Agriculture experts calculated last February 1.

THE IMPORTANT point is that no one really knows how much corn we can use with prices in the $1.00 to $1.15 range, as they were this past year.

When our best experts make such errors as the above, we have good reason to be skeptical of promises of farm prosperity that might come as a result of new attempts to restrict production or marketings.

We simply do not know enough about the causes and effects of prices to be able to guarantee results from any price-boosting program. Future programs, like those of the past, will come with promises, not guarantees.

Look at soybeans for another example: The 1958 crop totaled 574 million bushels. All but 41 million bushels of the crop was used or exported before October 1. This amount was added to the carryover on October 1, the beginning of the new marketing year. Last November, USDA outlook experts said that the addition to carryover would be around 80 million bushels, or twice as much as the actual accumulation.

WE ARE NOT criticizing government employees. We know them personally. They are well-trained and conscientious workers. Most of them have had 15 to 25 years of experience in their present or related positions. But we do believe that we have an obligation to point out that there are lots of unknowns about the demand for and prices of farm products.

Here's another case: Thirty years ago our ranchers and farmers produced only enough cattle to provide 50 pounds of beef per person in a year—less than a pound a week. And there was much talk then about overproduction. Now our cattlemen supply enough beef to provide 80 pounds per person—60 per cent more than in 1929. And yet beef cattle are at the top of the farm price totem pole.

State Farm Census To Begin Nov. 11

Census takers will be combing Illinois farms this fall for agricultural facts and figures. It will be part of the nationwide farm census which the U.S. Government's Bureau of the Census undertakes every five years. The last farm census was taken in 1954.

More than 700 Illinois census takers will begin operations on November 11. They will want to know about the number and sizes of farms, acreage and harvest of crops, livestock production and inventories, farm expenditures, farm values and mortgage debt.

The results, to be published on a county, state and national scale, will give the facts on what millions of farmers are doing. These up-to-date totals should be helpful to farmers in making decisions about their operations.

Each farmer will be asked to help directly in the census. About two weeks before the census-taking starts, post offices will distribute a farm census questionnaire to each farmer. He will be asked to fill it out and hand it to the local census taker when he calls. To accurately answer the census questions, farmers are urged to keep a few simple records of harvest information, products sold and major farm expenses. The records will not only help the census bureau, but should prove handy to farmers themselves in management planning.

The census bureau will use a new definititon of a farm this year. It is this — a farm must have 10 or more acres with agricultural sales of $50 or more per year. Or, if it is less than 10 acres, it must have minimum sales of $250 a year. The former definition of a farm for census purposes was a place of more than three acres that produced commodities with at least $150, whether they were sold or not; or, if it was less than three acres, it had actual total sales of products worth $150. Merle W. Wills, Wheeling, will direct census taking in Northern Illinois.

Tips on Machine Economy

It costs more than $1,700 a year to keep the fleet of machinery the average farmer uses on a 150-200 acre farm.

Fixed costs, much as depreciation, interest and taxes, are responsible for this high figure. And the tab is probably too high for that size of farm, according to R. B. Schwart, University of Illinois agricultural economist. It indicates that many farmers have overdone themselves in buying machinery.

He suggested that farmers buy equipment carefully, making sure they have plenty of work for each piece. Careful selection tends to hold down the initial investment and thus lowers fixed costs.

It's expensive to keep an idle piece of equipment — fixed costs stay the same whether it works or sits.

Here are other ways to reduce fixed costs: share machinery with a neighbor, buy and use machines cooperatively; do custom work for others; hire custom operators to do some of your work.

Fixed costs may eat away unnoticed on a bank balance. But they do eat. According to Schwart, farmers can figure depreciation at 6 to 10 per cent of the initial investment. Other costs, such as interest on investment, taxes, insurance and housing, take a 3 to 5 per cent cut. This amounts to a yearly bill of 9 to 15 per cent on the machinery's initial price. It's worth reckoning with, Schwart said.

Operator Care Equals Fewer Farm Accidents

The safe operation of any machine depends entirely on you, the operator.

O. L. Hogsett, extension safety specialist at the University of Illinois college of agriculture, said the operator must always be alert and agile if he is to avoid some of the sudden emergencies that may cause serious accidents.

Through training and experience, the good operator acquires habits of safe operation that cause him to respond automatically to dangerous conditions, Hogsett said.

When learning to operate a new machine, get someone to show you how to operate it safely before you try it alone. Always be conscious of danger to other people around your machine. Never let them ride on your tractor or on any machine that is being pulled.

Long hours of operation will cause you to become tired and increase the chances of accidents.

Your clothing should fit snugly, with no loose ends. Loose coattails, wide or torn trouser cuffs, torn coat or shirt sleeves and double-thumb gloves often cause accidents around moving machinery. To help reduce farm machinery accidents, learn what precautions to take with each machine. Then practice these precautions until they become automatic.

If corn in the field is worth only 50 cents a bushel, the supplement would have to cost over $6.00 a hundred pounds before it would be too expensive to feed.

Down On The Farm

CARL F. MEES

with Your Farm Adviser

By: CARL F. MEES
Farm Adviser

A few days ago I received a copy of the 1959 yearbook of agriculture entitled "Food." While I have not read the book, I have glanced at portions of it and have found it to be quite interesting. Many of the statements contain some basic facts and many of which could easily be expanded. The first statement in the book is "Food is important in keeping our people and our country strong." Yes America has become a strong nation because it has had a strong agriculture.

In the early period of our history about 85 per cent of the population was producing food for the other 15 per cent. Today less than 15 per cent is producing food for the 85 per cent. Even as late as 1900 one person in agriculture could produce only enough food for himself and three others. Today one person produces enough for himself and about 23 others. Agriculture is a basic industry and it has played an important part in making America strong.

WE READ much about our surpluses and what to do with the food we do not need. I would much rather consider that an abundance of food is one of our blessings and worry with how to dispose of the quantity not needed, than to live in a country where people are starving. We are the best fed nation in the world.

I am happy to have worked for 15 years in helping farm people produce abundantly. We have been able to do this because we have applied the research developed by the land grant colleges.

If you would like a copy of the book write to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C. The price of the book is $2.25.

THE 1959 census of agriculture will be conducted soon. There have been many changes taking place the last five years. Only a nationwide farm census can give a true measure of these changes and their nature.

To answer the census questions, farmers will need a few simple records. The Bureau is urging each farmer to bring up to date the records of his harvest, the products sold and major farm expenses so that he can easily and accurately fill out his census report.

The census bureau will use a new definition of a farm this year. It is this — a farm must have 10 or more acres with agricultural sales of $50 or more per year. Or, if it is less than 10 acres, it must have minimum sales of $250 a year. The former definition of a farm for census purposes was a place of more than three acres that produced commodities with at least $150, whether they were sold or not; or, if it was less than three acres, it had actual total sales of products worth $150.

On First Looking Into a Barber Shop

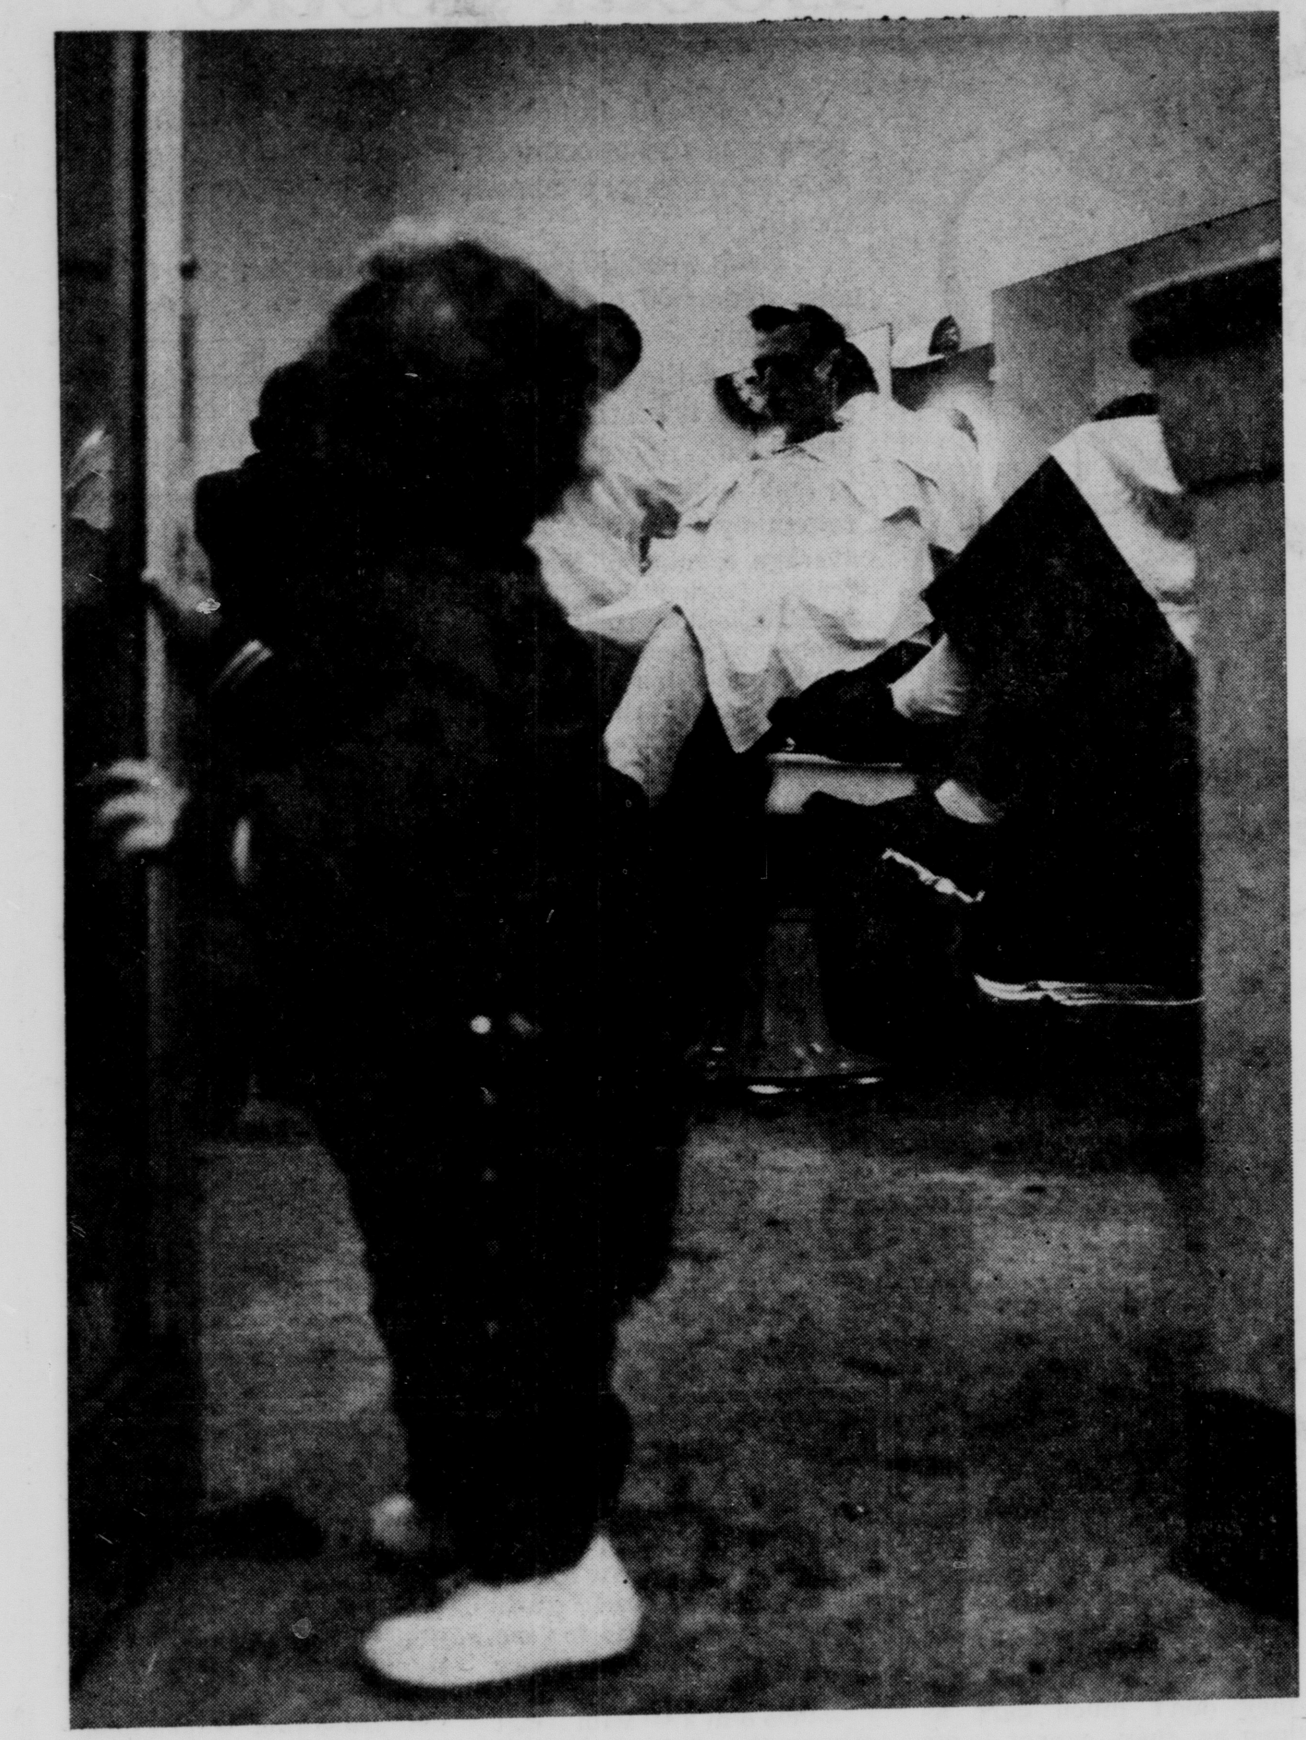
There comes a time in every curly-headed little boy's life when he has to face up to the customs of his forebearers and begin looking like a little boy should look.

Generally the first trip to a tonsorial parlor is a sad occasion, filled with the weeping of a mother who hates to see those curls go, and with the wails of the youngster himself who has to live through those tormenting moments with that strange, buzzing clipper at his ears.

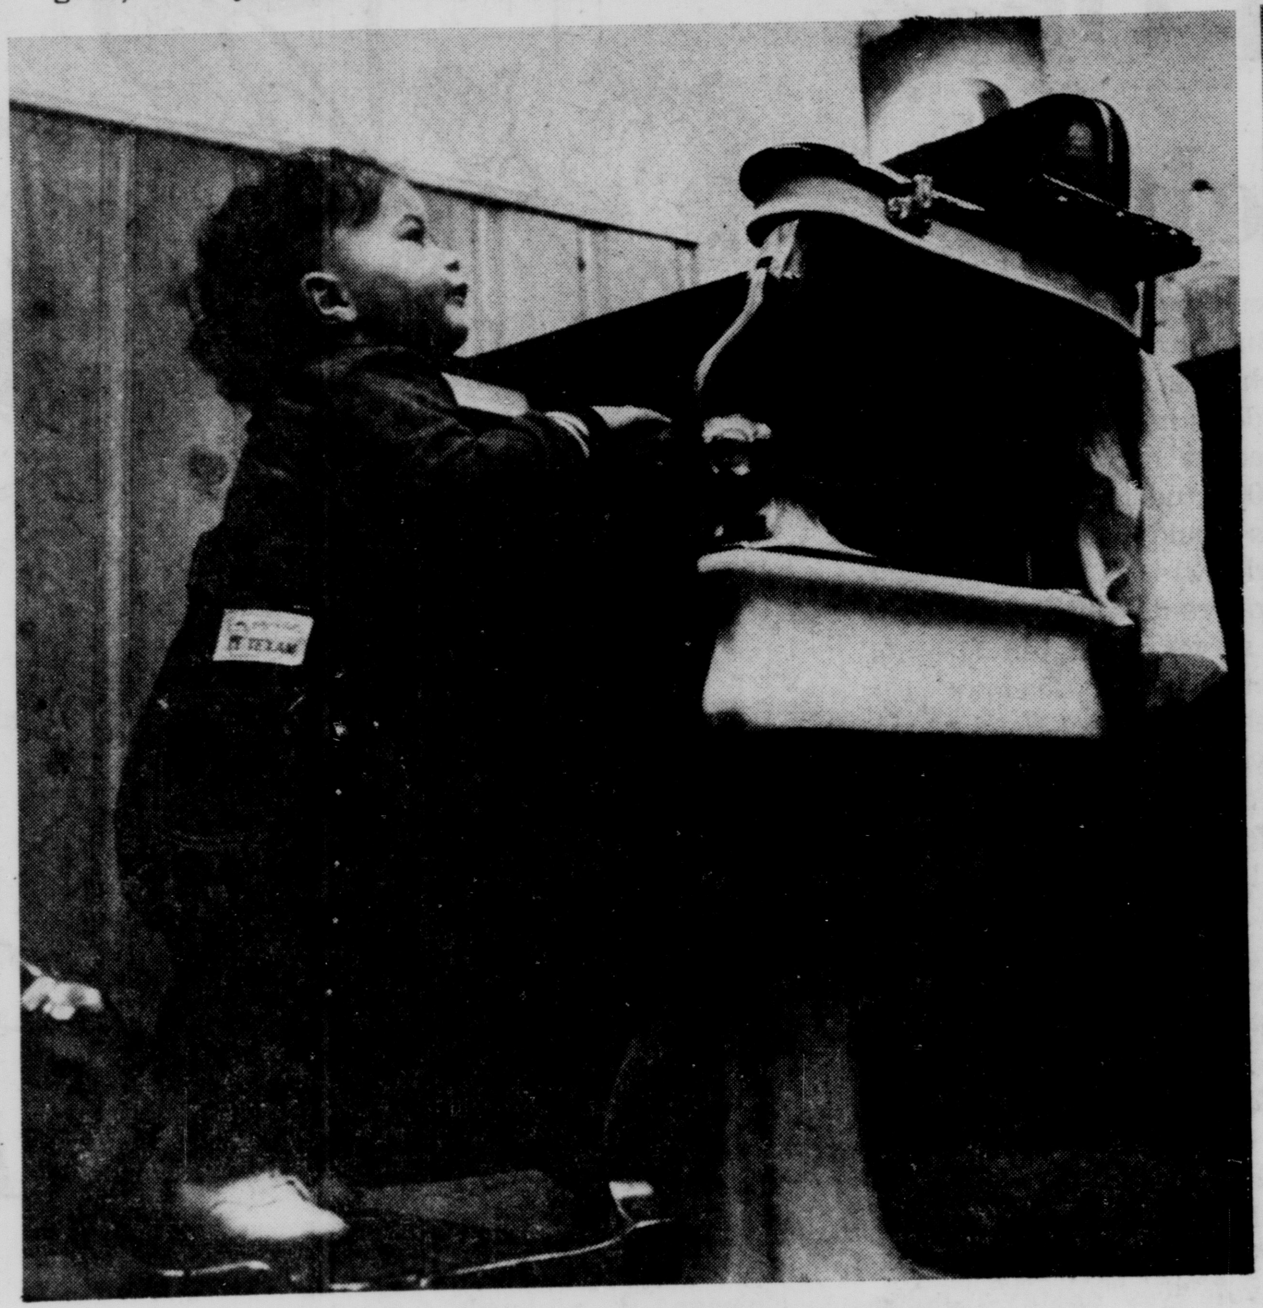
But, when it's done and the locks finally and forever are gone, the boy ceases to be a baby, and looks for new horizons on his way to manhood. And the curls are wrapped in an envelope, and slipped into the scarpbook beside his father's and grandfather's, and maybe someday he'll open the book and take them out and say:

"Gee Whiz!"

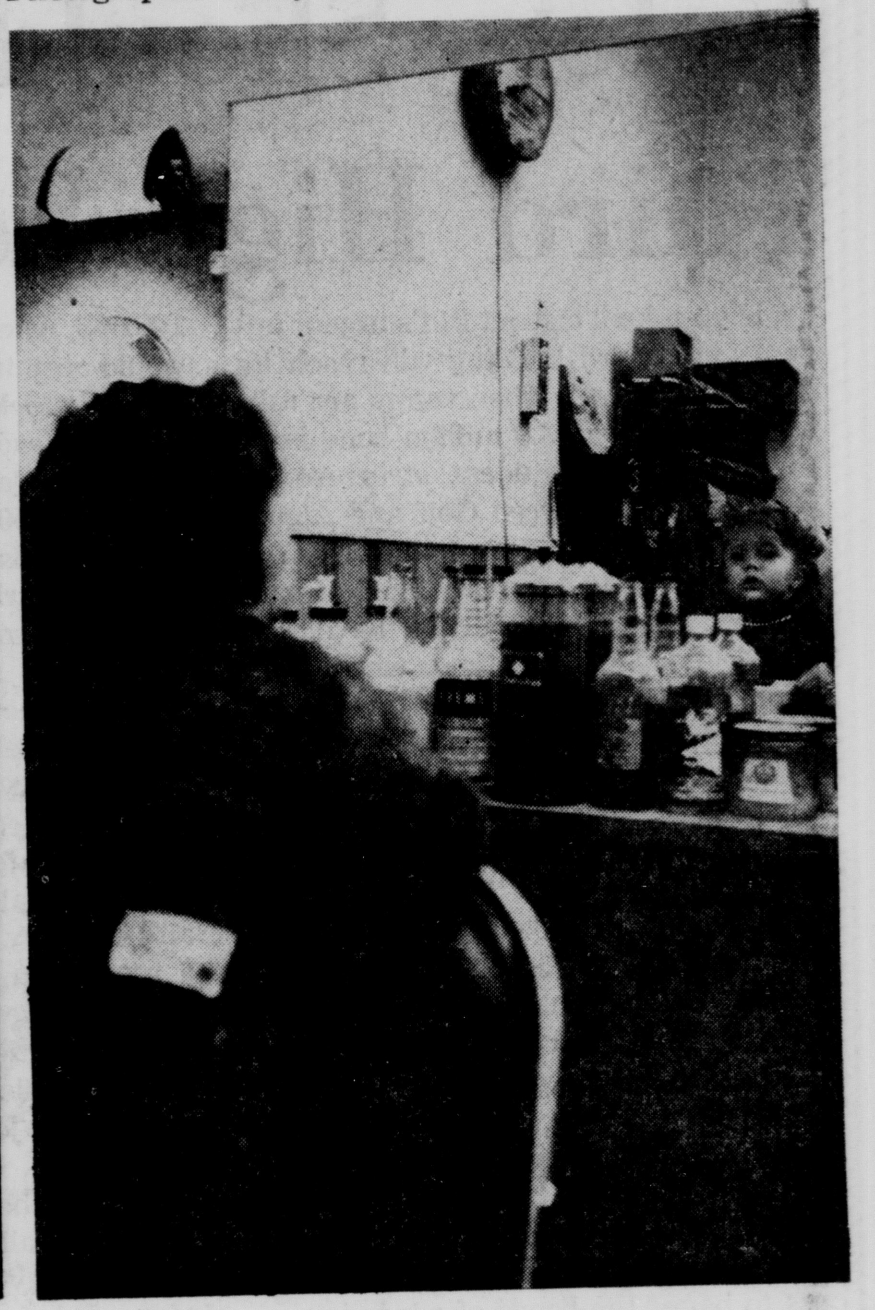
The child in these pictures is Thomas K. McShane Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McShane, 38 S. Mitchell, Arlington Heights. The barber is Don Schneider. The pictures were taken in Tom's Barber shop, 6 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights, by Staff Photographer Larry Cameron.



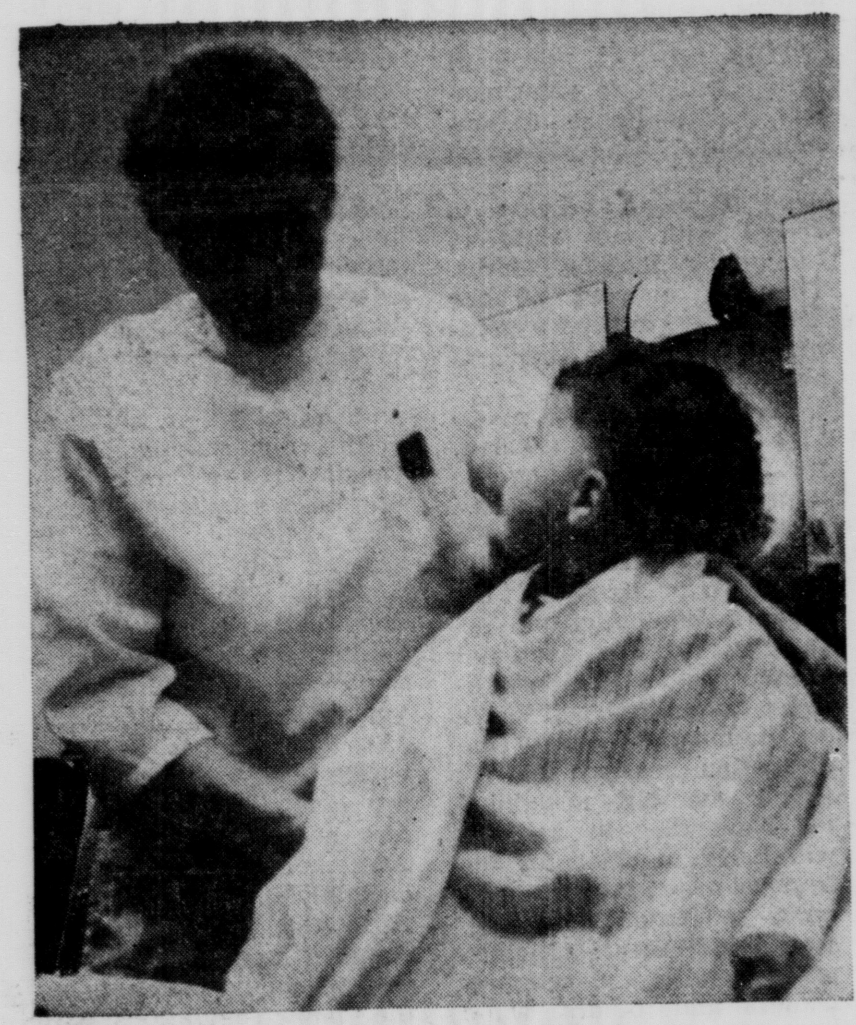
"I GUESS THIS IS THE PLACE."



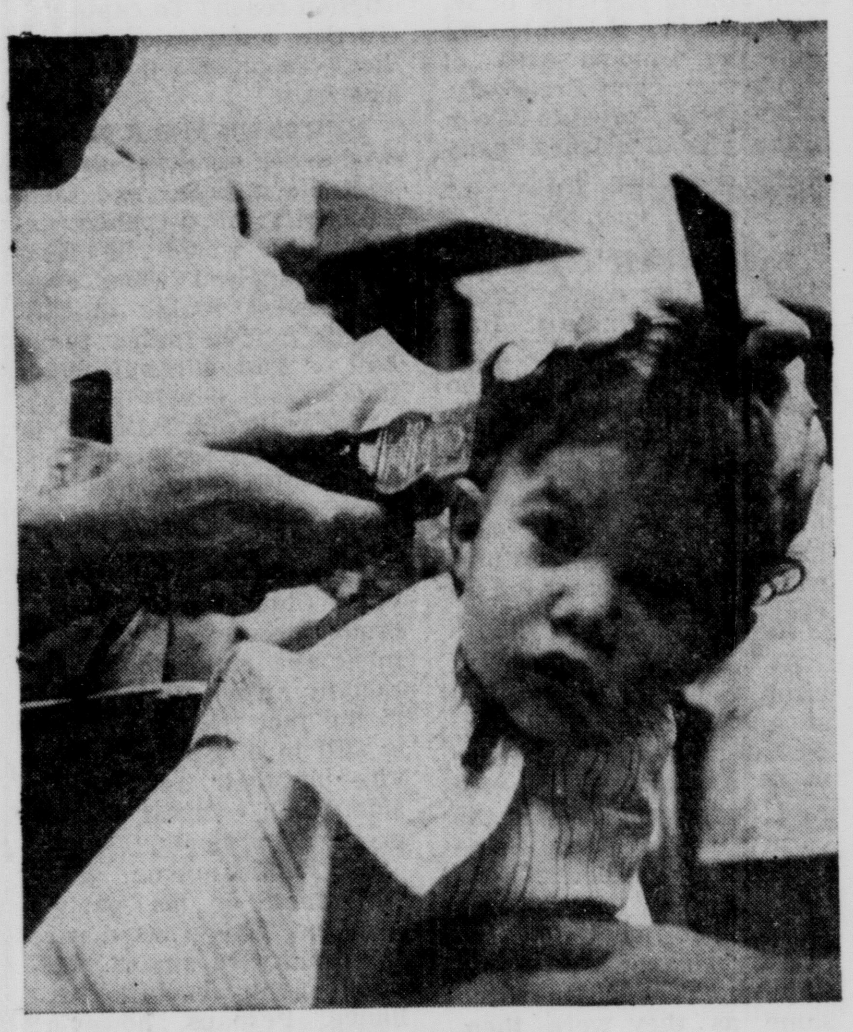
"DIG THE CRAZY HIGH CHAIR."



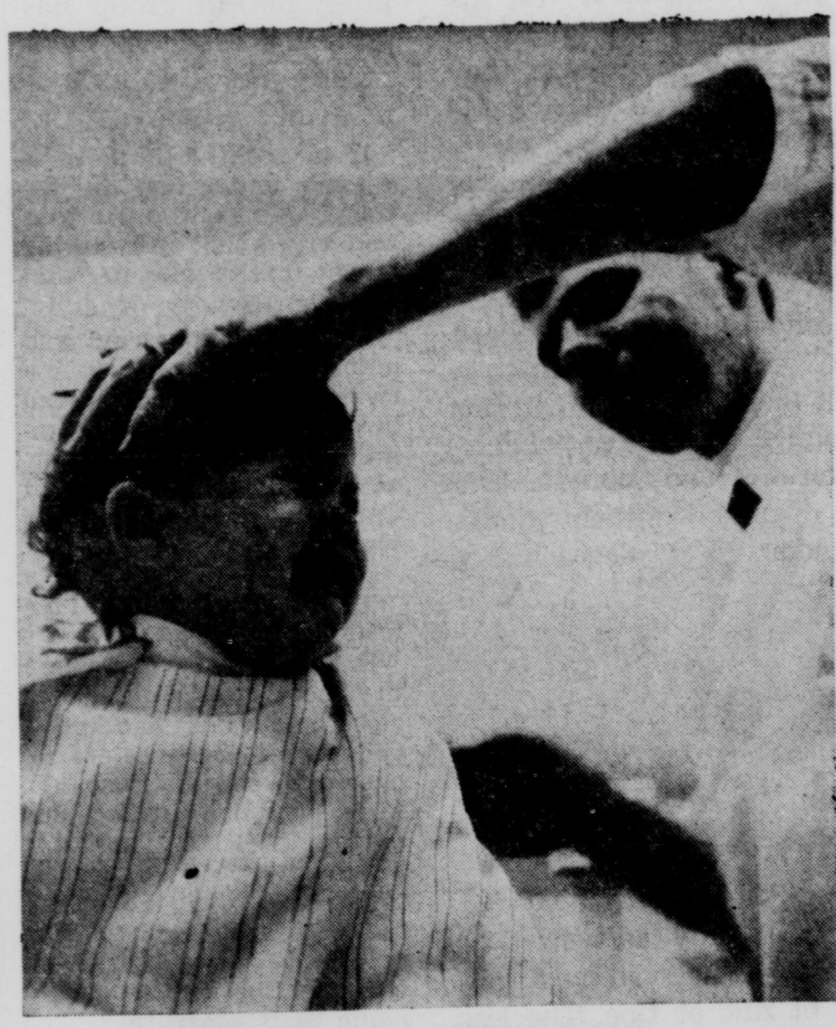
"SAY, THAT'S ME!"



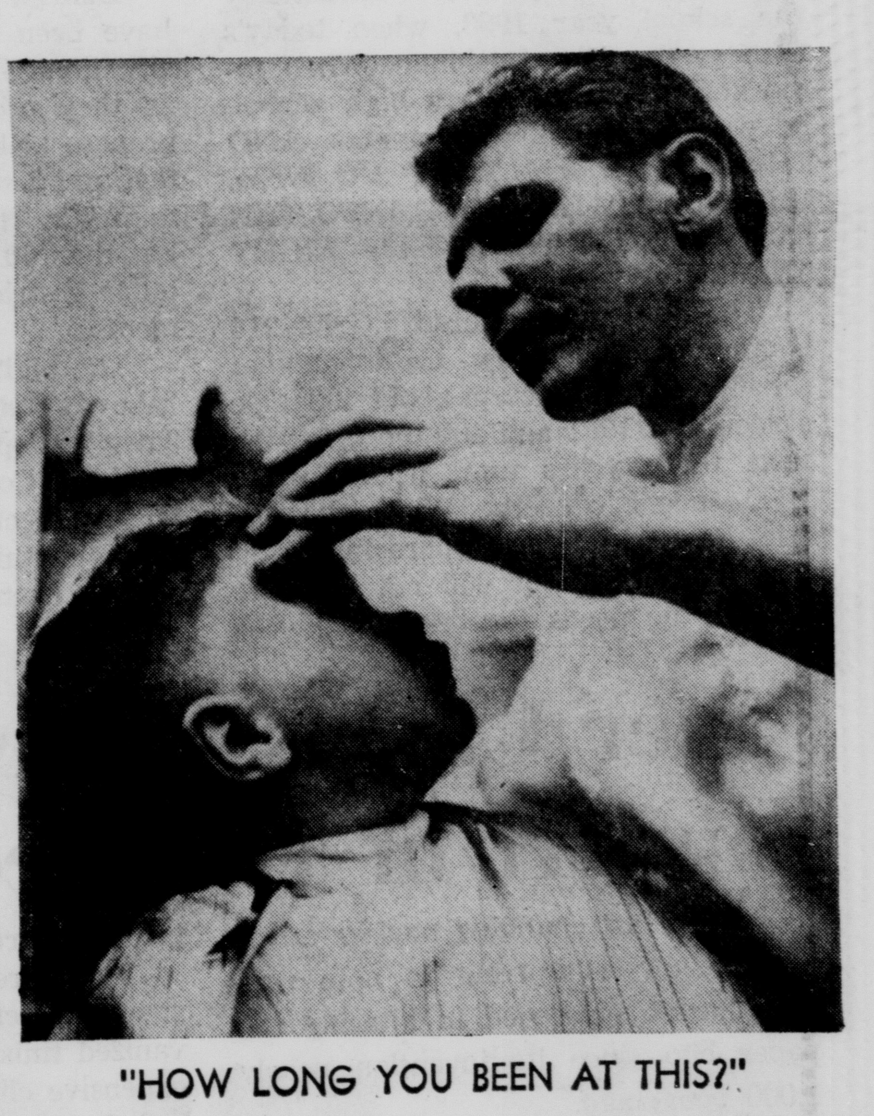
"WHAT'S HE UP TO?"



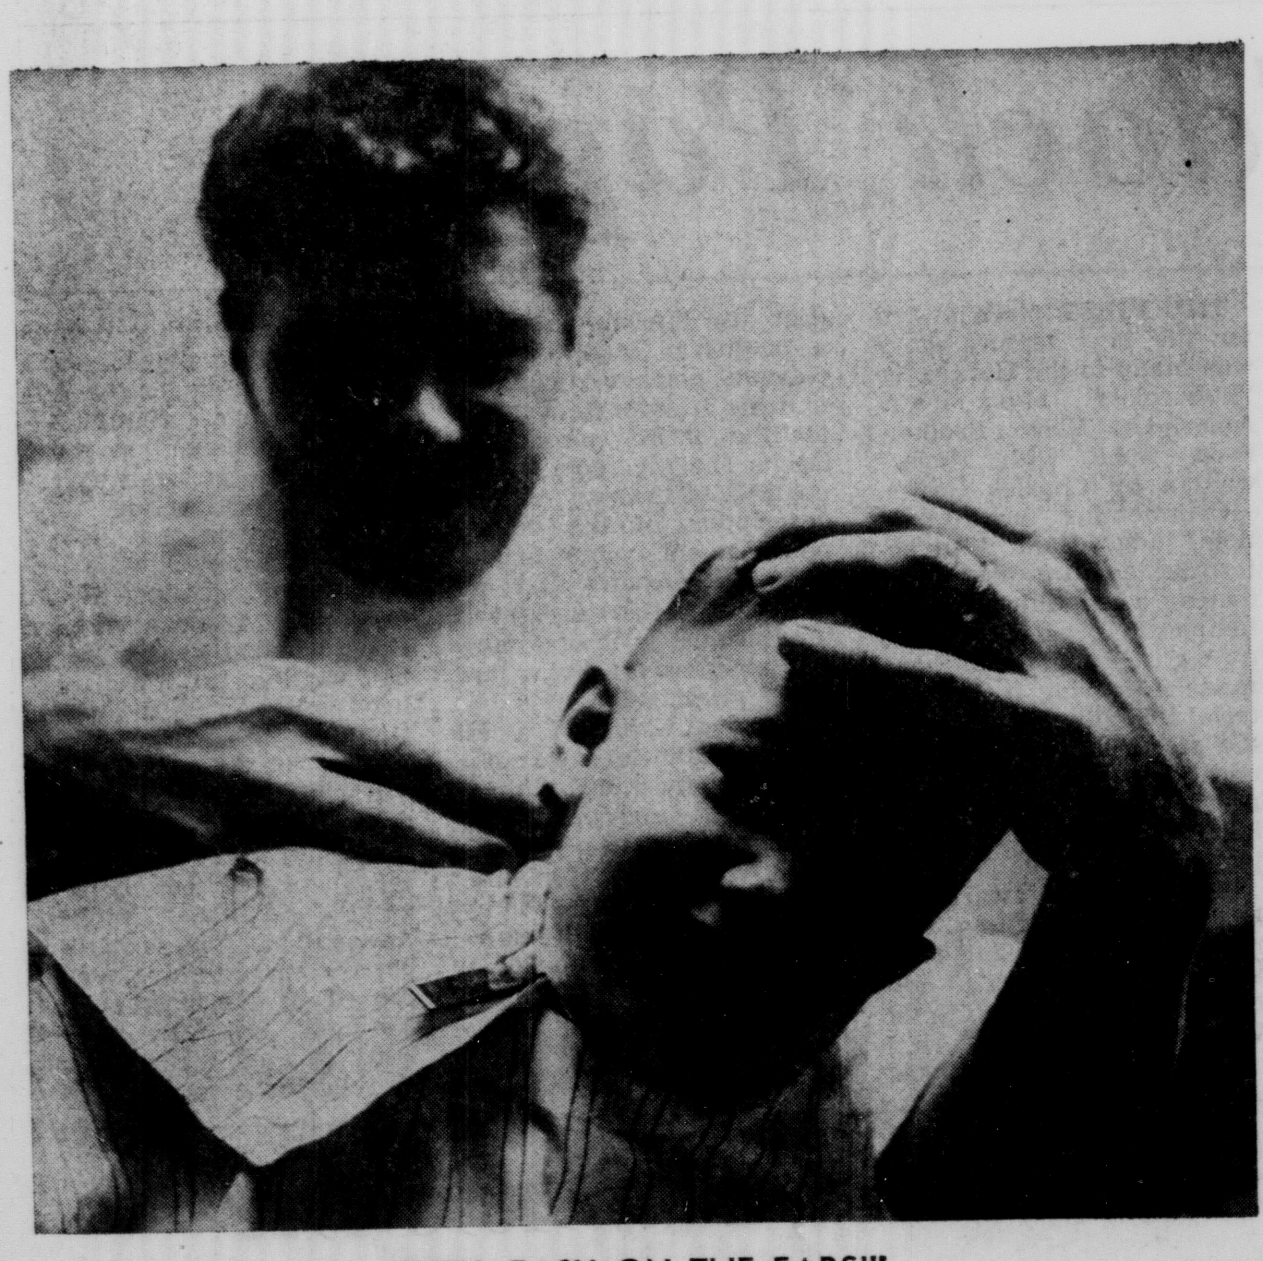
"MY WORD!"



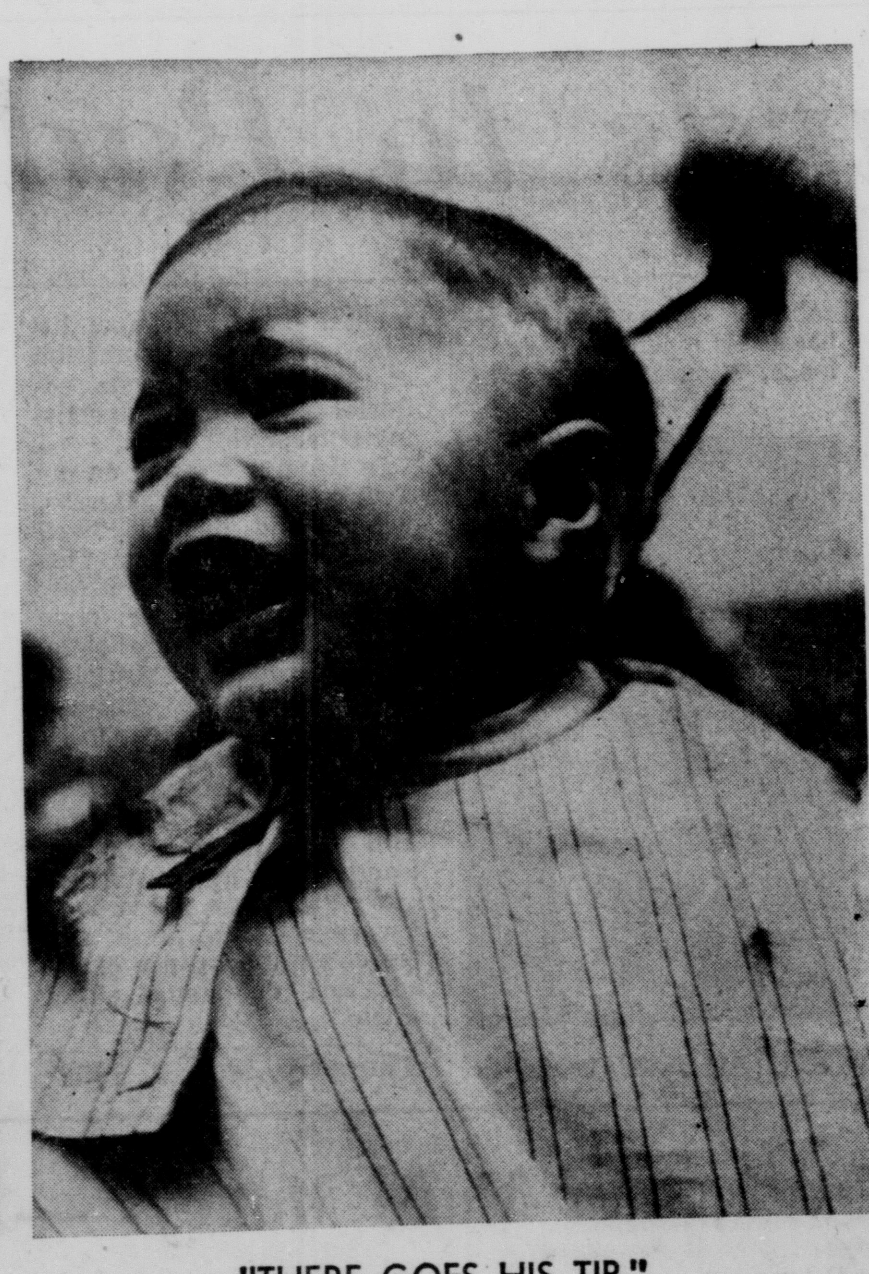
"I WANT MY MOMMY."



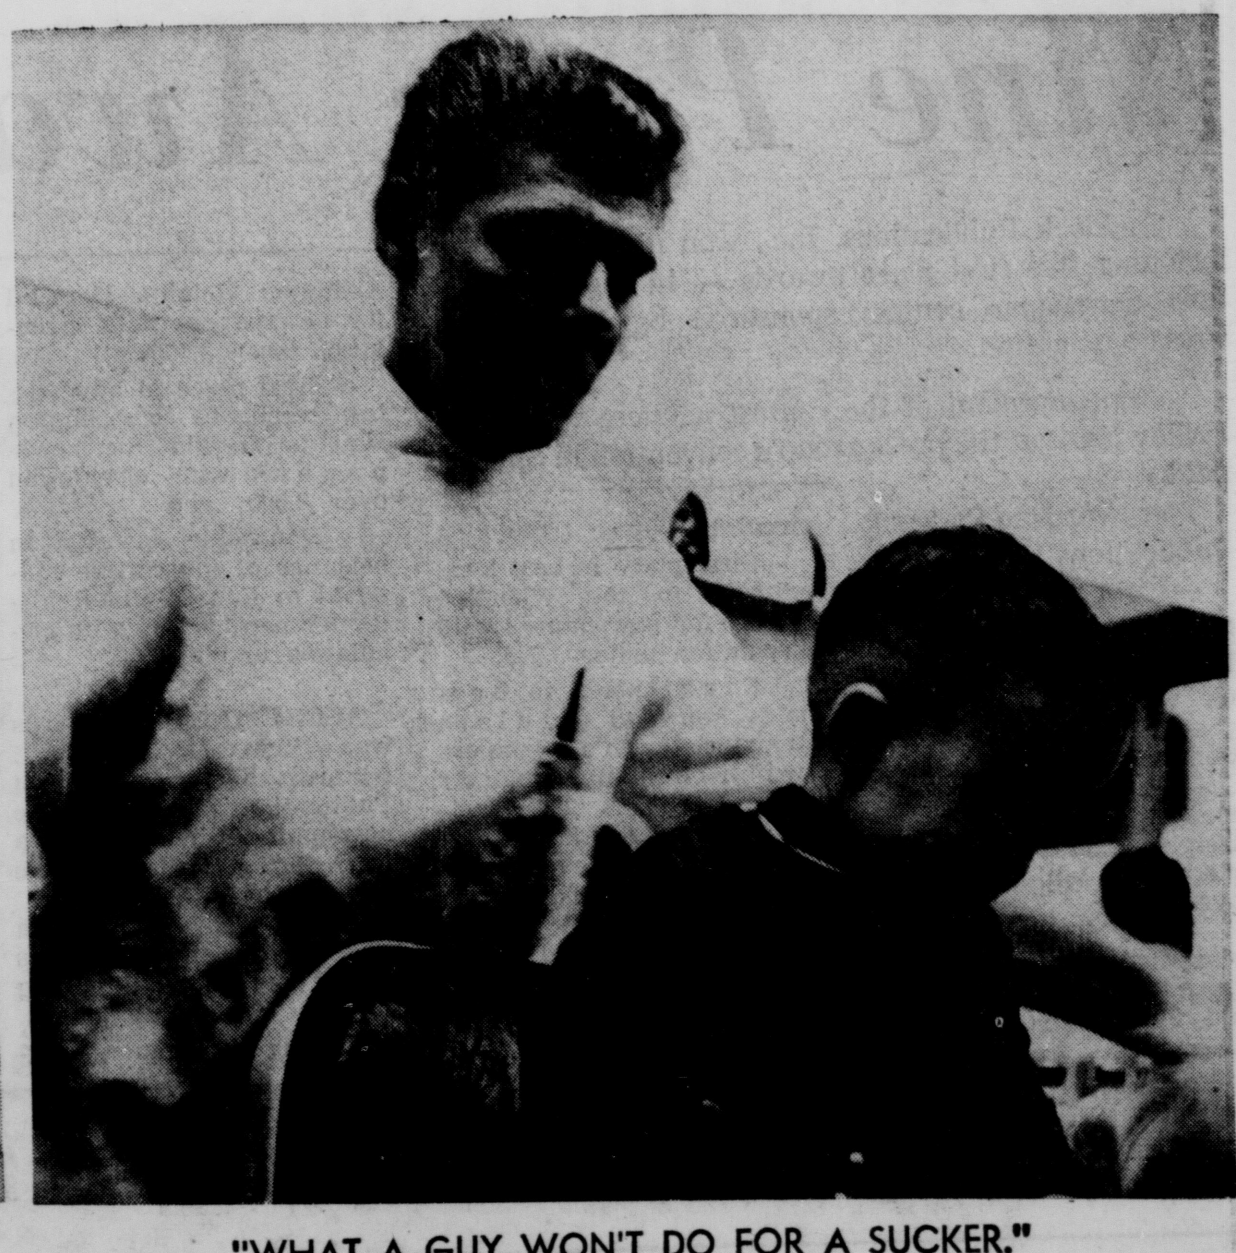
"HOW LONG YOU BEEN AT THIS?"



"HEY, EASY ON THE EARS!"



"THERE GOES HIS TIP."



"WHAT A GUY WON'T DO FOR A SUCKER."

Voters Should Okay Third High School

High school district 214's urgent appeal for a third building will reach its climax next week when voters are asked to approve a $3.9 million bond issue to build a 2500-student structure on Goebbert rd., between Golf and Algonquin rds., in Elk Grove township.

If there have been any hints of panic in the educators' plea, they have been well-founded. At a time when high schools all over the nation are facing the biggest educational challenge of all time, district 214 must fight a different type of "space" problem, classroom shortage. The present facilities of Arlington and Prospect high schools will be sufficient only until the fall of 1962. Both schools will be cramped in 1961.

The space problem is amazing, considering that Prospect high school, one of the biggest bargains that any taxpayer ever paid for, has been in operation for only three school years, including this one. But the mass of growth figures reported by the communities served by district 214 continues to haunt the board of education.

Some 20,000 students are now attending grade schools which feed Arlington and Prospect high schools. Eliminating the kindergarten set and dividing the rest into two four-year groups, the district can expect 7,310 students by the school year 1963, when today's fifth grader is a freshman. When today's first grader enters high school, he will have 10,326 classmates. AND THIS PRESUMES THAT NO NEW CHILDREN WILL MOVE INTO THE DISTRICT IN THE NEXT EIGHT YEARS!

The only relief offered district 214 is the proposed new Catholic high school which will accept about 400 male students in 1961 and 400 more for the next three years until it reaches a 1600-student capacity. While the district has welcomed the parochial addition with cheers, it will not begin to answer the needs for the school year 1962-63, when the Goebbert rd. building would open its doors. The Catholic girls' school which has been discussed for Rolling Meadows has been described as a small, selective institution, probably less than 500 student capacity. Both these schools would also draw students outside district 214.

The 66-square-mile high school district which serves Arlington Heights, Mt. Prospect, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, and Buffalo Grove enjoys one of the country's best educational reputations. It has been rated in the top one per cent by a national agency which works with all secondary schools. The decay of such a reputation as a result of overcrowding, split sessions, and understaffing would be a setback to every homeowner in the district, whose schools have played a major role in keeping property values high.

While the "property depreciation" appeal is valid, it seems a shame that the only way some suburbanites can be persuaded to vote "yes" or stay-at-home is to threaten his possessions — as if there had to be a pecuniary reason for providing good schooling for children, as if the measure of learning could be converted into dollars and cents.

District 214 educators, however, have been very conscious of the tax situation. To build such a high school as they propose, for the figure they propose to build it on, is a remarkable feat and deserves the applause of every taxpayer. The $3.9 million bond issue is less than 60 per cent that paid by some other districts for comparable enrollments.

The high school officials have been "above board" from the beginning. They laid open their plans to a Citizens Advisory Committee and have publicized the election for two months. The voters of this district owe their youngsters a tremendous "yes" decision November 14.

Paper Clip Is Source of Comfort in Troubled Time

In this fast changing nuclear era it is somehow comforting to note that man hasn't succeeded in altering the paper clip since its invention nearly 1,000 years ago.

First used during the Sung Dynasty of China in 960 A.D., the paper clip is consumed today at the rate of 6,000,000,000 a year. The wire used would gird the earth 16 times.

The wire is usually soft iron or steel, protected against rust by a galvanized finish of zinc or tine. The less expensive clip is given a copper wash, called a liquor finish.

Some manufacturers are experimenting with plastic and colored clips that might prove useful as page markers.

'Wide Open' Chicago Not About to Reform

by WILLIAM DULANEY

Chicago is a "wide open" town.

It was "wide open" shortly after it was founded and has remained that way to the present day. Reform group after reform group has launched clean-up campaigns, and all to little or no avail.

It is doubtful if there is another major city in the United States where organized vice holds sway to the extent that it does in "that toddling town."

Unabashed, unafraid and untouched, Chicago vice swaggers broad-shouldered through senate racket committee investigations, federal grand jury probes, and Chicago Crime commission vigilance.

TAKE LAST week, for instance.

Headlines blazoned that the "heat" was on and that vice operations had gone undercover because of a current probe of Rush st. bistros by the Justice department. The "heat," however, merely appeared to have kindled the thirst of the Near North Side's prostitutes and B-girls. It was business as usual, name your pleasure.

My interest in Chicago's "reforms" stems from my days as a graduate student at Northwestern university when I made a three-month study of prostitution. Extensive research gave me a pretty fair picture of the city's vice operations. Before my feet gave out, I found over 50 bars, clubs and hotels in the area bounded by the Chicago river and Division st. and Lake Michigan and N. La Salle st. where the services of a prostitute could be engaged. To a lesser extent, the same applied to the loop and to stretches of W. Madison st., S. State st., and the Uptown area of Wilson ave. and Broadway. Along with prostitution, there also flourishes gambling and the narcotics trade.

LAST WEEK I gave the areas another check. Things haven't changed. In a stretch three blocks long on N. Clark st., between the Chicago river and Chicago ave., the only thing missing is a red light. Between four and five o'clock in the afternoon in eight bars, there were prostitutes who would accomodate customers on the premises.

At Chicago's well-publicized "sin corner" at 63rd st. and Cottage Grove ave., five women and two men were arrested in a vice raid last week. This is the corner that resulted in the transfer of the district's police captain not many months ago and was supposedly cleaned up. Conditions today are about the same as they were then. As in other areas of the city where vice thrives, the faces may change but the operation continues.

One might ask whether or not Chicagoans want a reform. For the majority the answer is probably that they don't much care as long as they cannot see themselves as the direct prey of organized crime.

What they fail to realize is that the cop who winks at a crap game or hustling B-girl is doing so with the approval of a higher up. To where does the corruption reach? To captains? To the commissioner's office? To aldermen and into city hall?

FURTHERMORE, it would be safe to assume that the morale, and thus efficiency, of a police department would be seriously impaired when even the lowest rookie quickly learns that he either plays ball or finds himself on an undesirable beat.

Mayor Richard Daley is being touted for higher political office, perhaps the governorship or congress. His record as an enlightened mayor who has provided Chicago with a vigorous program of development and expansion is nationally known. Less known is the fact that the "fix" is still in and purveyors of vice ply their trade alongside urban renewal and expressway projects.

As both mayor and strongman of his party's machine, Daley has a rare opportunity to smash Chicago's political-criminal alliance. Perhaps, however, he and his party are committed too deeply to destroy the racketeers without destroying themselves. At any rate there are no indications that things are going to change. It appears the lid is off to stay.

Migrant Is Local Issue

by CHARLES HAYES

Of special interest to northwest suburbs last week was the announcement that a national conference on migratory labor is to be held in Chicago this month.

Each year 20,000 migrant laborers come to Illinois, some 800 or more for the northwest suburban area alone.

Many of these families are ill-fed, ill-clothed, and ill-housed.

The migrant is outrageously exploited. The average earning of the migratory worker in 1957 was $892. He is not protected by minimum wage laws, unemployment insurance, federal labor tribunals or state workmen's compensation programs. In Cook county, his employers can inflict any kind of living standards because farmers are excused from complying with health or housing regulations.

THESE SPANISH speaking families live in sprawling ghettos on the fringe of our northwest suburbs. In spite of growing pressure from the public and press for reforms, the living conditions inflicted upon the migrant families are still marked by:

—homes of converted chicken houses and shacks standing amidst overgrown weed patches or clearings strewn with rocks and debris;

— primitive, stinking, broken down fly-infested toilets;

—front yards whose mud, garbage and trash are a background to the too-close privy and water pump; and —"rooms" with dirt floors, hanging electric wires, and partitions ranging from wood to a bedspread doubled over a rope.

In addition, the migrant faces serious handicaps of language, culture, no education, and lack of job skills.

THIS SOCIAL problem is of concern to suburbanites because these are our neighbors. They harvest the food which we eat, they send their children to school with our children, they shop in our stores. They are a part of our community, and as a community we have a responsibility to them.

For the past two years, the Opportunity Council, Inc., has been tackling the migrant and other related problems on an area-wide level. Its president, Willis J. Jensen of Arlington Heights, is one of the organizers of the National Conference to Stabilize Migrant Labor and will serve as chairman of one of the discussion sessions.

This meeting, scheduled for November 21 and 22, will bring together for the first time growers, canners, educators, federal, state and local officials, union leaders, religious leaders and others who deal with migrant workers.

Northwest suburbs will be well represented at the conference.

"I'm not being overly optimistic, or living on cloud nine," confesses Patrick F. Crowley, president of the organization sponsoring the conference. 'I don't think we're going to come up with a cure-all. We're not even trying to do so—but I think we'll decide on some definite plans to stabilize migrant labor. These will be along the lines of finding ways and means to provide the migrant worker with regular employment, a steady income and a stable family life, and at the same time furnish the growers and canners with an adequate labor supply."

ONE OF THE principal speakers at the migratory conference will be U.S. Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, who has also figured in the news recently.

Faced with bitter farm group opposition, Secretary Mitchell is nevertheless resolved to issue new migratory labor reform regulations by the end of this month. The regulations would rest on existing legislative authority and would do no more than check the worst abuses of migrants.

The nub of the Mitchell proposal is that the use of tax-supported public employment services, which last year recruited 160,000 migrants for farmers, would be denied to agricultural employers who undercut prevailing wage, housing, and transportation standards.

Since agriculture is by-and-large exempt from unemployment compensation benefits, it makes no dollar contribution to the farm placement program. Employment services of the various states are financed entirely by compensation - covered industries. This means the farmer gets the benefit of the program without contributing to its support.

MITCHELL'S regulations have been framed as amendments to the Farm Placement Act. In addition to setting wage and transportation standards and enforcing their observance, state employment services, before undertaking hiring, would have to make certain that migrants are not used to deprive local workers of job opportunities; that the farm employer does not ignore local health, sanitary and housing codes in facilities provided for the migrants; and that records on the worker's past job contracts are taken into account before he is referred.

Mitchell's reforms will certainly not significantly raise the $892 annual income of migratory workers who would be covered, but the new regulations will give some support to state groups and voluntary organizations, such as the Opportunity Council, which have pressed for improvement in the working conditions and pay of the migrants.

Nine Press Awards to Paddock Papers

Paddock Publications, Inc., won nine awards — including five first place awards — in the 1959 Illinois newspaper contest sponsored by the Illinois Press association.

Announcement of the contest winners was made Friday night at the press group's convention in Springfield.

The awards to Paddock Publications were:

—First place in general excellence to the Arlington Heights Herald for weeklies and semi-weeklies with circulation over 5,000;

First place in best feature story to the Arlington Heights Herald for newspapers with circulation over 3,500;

—First place in best classified advertising pages to Arlington Heights Herald for newspapers with circulation over 3,500;

—First place in best local editorial to the Wheeling Herald for newspapers with circulation under 3,500;

—First place in best news story to Addison Register for newspapers with circulation under 3,500;

—Second place in general excellence to Bensenville Register for weeklies and semi-weeklies with circulation over 2,000 and under 5,000;

—Third place in best typography and makeup to Arlington Heights Herald for newspapers with circulation over 3,500;

—Third place in advertising excellence to Arlington Heights Herald for newspapers with circulation over 3,500; and —Honorable mention in best use of illustrative material to Bensenville Register for newspapers with circulation under 3,500.

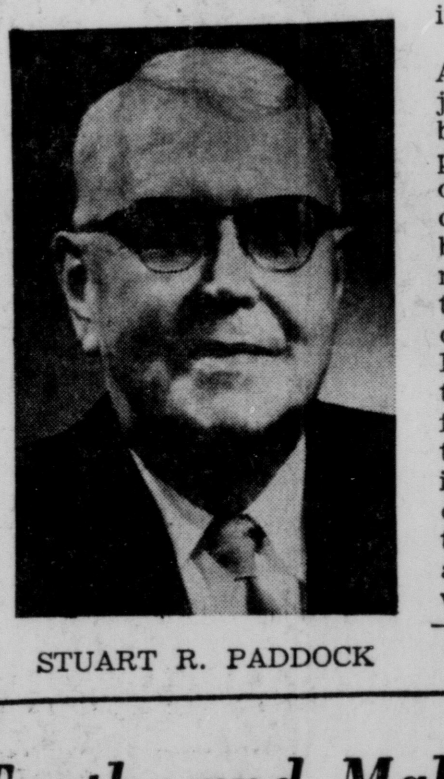
ACCEPTING the awards was Stuart R. Paddock, editor-in-chief of Paddock Publications. Since 1952 the newspapers have won a total of 27 awards from the Illinois Press association.

A total of 125 newspapers was entered in this year's contest with all judging done by out-of-state judges.



STUART R. PADDOCK

Judging for general excellence competition was based on mechanical excellence, general and departmental news coverage, literary excellence, promotion of community interests, editorial page, and advertising enterprise.

In commenting on the Arlington Heights Herald, judges said it is a "well balanced newspaper. This paper does not rely entirely on spooning up the civic club dish on every page, but also contains "straight" news. The stories are extremely well-written in a clear and simple style. Factors contributing toward the choice of this paper for first place included the attractive and aggressive editorial page, thorough coverage of the news, and the clean appearance of the ads and makeup as a whole."

THE FIRST place award for the best feature story was made to the Herald for "Suburbia's Mexican-Americans View Brotherhood Week with Hope," written by Charles Hayes.

Commenting on the article, judges said: "An enterprise feature that illustrates a significant contemporary problem and the progress that has been made in solving it. Its material is highly specific, and the story is well organized and well written. By reporting, rather than editorializing, it makes a moral point without preachment."

A first place award for local editorial writing was made to the Wheeling Herald for Ted Smart's editorial, "What Is a Child Worth? A Lesson for All."

Said the judges: "Makes dramatic but simple use of a publicized local case of parental neglect of children to draw an important moral for the entire community. Opens sharply, gets to the point. Both the very explicit description of the county placement center for juvenile castoffs and the more general assessment of the pitfalls in the American standard of living are made graphic by vivid but economical writing. Like all top-rate editorials, this one is profoundly moral without moralizing, and instructive without trying to do all the reader's thinking for him. It takes a small, easily comprehended local example and draws larger meanings from it."

BUD BOOTH's coverage of the Scott-Melquist murder case in DuPage county earned a first place award in news writing for the Addison Register. Said the judges: "Recognition must be given to thorough coverage of a local crime story and the assistance given police by the newspaper. A series of pictures, keyed to the story, are also very effective. While the story is not written in the usual newspaper form, it is well written and easy to read. A fine job."

Earlier this year, Paddock Publications was named winner in the 1959 Better Newspaper contest sponsored by the National Editorial Association. This spring the papers earned the coveted Award of Merit from the National Religious Publicity Council for reporting of religious news.

For the past two years, the Opportunity Council, Inc., has been tackling the migrant and other related problems on an area-wide level. Its president, Willis J. Jensen of Arlington Heights, is one of the organizers of the National Conference to Stabilize Migrant Labor and will serve as chairman of one of the discussion sessions.

This meeting, scheduled for November 21 and 22, will bring together for the first time growers, canners, educators, federal, state and local officials, union leaders, religious leaders and others who deal with migrant workers.

Northwest suburbs will be well represented at the conference.

"I'm not being overly optimistic, or living on cloud nine," confesses Patrick F. Crowley, president of the organization sponsoring the conference. 'I don't think we're going to come up with a cure-all. We're not even trying to do so—but I think we'll decide on some definite plans to stabilize migrant labor. These will be along the lines of finding ways and means to provide the migrant worker with regular employment, a steady income and a stable family life, and at the same time furnish the growers and canners with an adequate labor supply."

ONE OF THE principal speakers at the migratory conference will be U.S. Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, who has also figured in the news recently.

Faced with bitter farm group opposition, Secretary Mitchell is nevertheless resolved to issue new migratory labor reform regulations by the end of this month. The regulations would rest on existing legislative authority and would do no more than check the worst abuses of migrants.

The nub of the Mitchell proposal is that the use of tax-supported public employment services, which last year recruited 160,000 migrants for farmers, would be denied to agricultural employers who undercut prevailing wage, housing, and transportation standards.

Since agriculture is by-and-large exempt from unemployment compensation benefits, it makes no dollar contribution to the farm placement program. Employment services of the various states are financed entirely by compensation - covered industries. This means the farmer gets the benefit of the program without contributing to its support.

MITCHELL'S regulations have been framed as amendments to the Farm Placement Act. In addition to setting wage and transportation standards and enforcing their observance, state employment services, before undertaking hiring, would have to make certain that migrants are not used to deprive local workers of job opportunities; that the farm employer does not ignore local health, sanitary and housing codes in facilities provided for the migrants; and that records on the worker's past job contracts are taken into account before he is referred.

Mitchell's reforms will certainly not significantly raise the $892 annual income of migratory workers who would be covered, but the new regulations will give some support to state groups and voluntary organizations, such as the Opportunity Council, which have pressed for improvement in the working conditions and pay of the migrants.

Nine Press Awards to Paddock Papers

Paddock Publications, Inc., won nine awards — including five first place awards — in the 1959 Illinois newspaper contest sponsored by the Illinois Press association.

Announcement of the contest winners was made Friday night at the press group's convention in Springfield.

The awards to Paddock Publications were:

—First place in general excellence to the Arlington Heights Herald for weeklies and semi-weeklies with circulation over 5,000;

First place in best feature story to the Arlington Heights Herald for newspapers with circulation over 3,500;

—First place in best classified advertising pages to Arlington Heights Herald for newspapers with circulation over 3,500;

—First place in best local editorial to the Wheeling Herald for newspapers with circulation under 3,500;

—First place in best news story to Addison Register for newspapers with circulation under 3,500;

—Second place in general excellence to Bensenville Register for weeklies and semi-weeklies with circulation over 2,000 and under 5,000;

—Third place in best typography and makeup to Arlington Heights Herald for newspapers with circulation over 3,500;

—Third place in advertising excellence to Arlington Heights Herald for newspapers with circulation over 3,500; and —Honorable mention in best use of illustrative material to Bensenville Register for newspapers with circulation under 3,500.

ACCEPTING the awards was Stuart R. Paddock, editor-in-chief of Paddock Publications. Since 1952 the newspapers have won a total of 27 awards from the Illinois Press association.

A total of 125 newspapers was entered in this year's contest with all judging done by out-of-state judges.

Judging for general excellence competition was based on mechanical excellence, general and departmental news coverage, literary excellence, promotion of community interests, editorial page, and advertising enterprise.

STUART R. PADDOCK

In commenting on the Arlington Heights Herald, judges said it is a "well balanced newspaper. This paper does not rely entirely on spooning up the civic club dish on every page, but also contains "straight" news. The stories are extremely well-written in a clear and simple style. Factors contributing toward the choice of this paper for first place included the attractive and aggressive editorial page, thorough coverage of the news, and the clean appearance of the ads and makeup as a whole."

Thursday, Nov. 5, 1959

THE FIRST place award for the best feature story was made to the Herald for "Suburbia's Mexican-Americans View Brotherhood Week with Hope," written by Charles Hayes.

Commenting on the article, judges said: "An enterprise feature that illustrates a significant contemporary problem and the progress that has been made in solving it. Its material is highly specific, and the story is well organized and well written. By reporting, rather than editorializing, it makes a moral point without preachment."

A first place award for local editorial writing was made to the Wheeling Herald for Ted Smart's editorial, "What Is a Child Worth? A Lesson for All."

Said the judges: "Makes dramatic but simple use of a publicized local case of parental neglect of children to draw an important moral for the entire community. Opens sharply, gets to the point. Both the very explicit description of the county placement center for juvenile castoffs and the more general assessment of the pitfalls in the American standard of living are made graphic by vivid but economical writing. Like all top-rate editorials, this one is profoundly moral without moralizing, and instructive without trying to do all the reader's thinking for him. It takes a small, easily comprehended local example and draws larger meanings from it."

BUD BOOTH's coverage of the Scott-Melquist murder case in DuPage county earned a first place award in news writing for the Addison Register. Said the judges: "Recognition must be given to thorough coverage of a local crime story and the assistance given police by the newspaper. A series of pictures, keyed to the story, are also very effective. While the story is not written in the usual newspaper form, it is well written and easy to read. A fine job."

Earlier this year, Paddock Publications was named winner in the 1959 Better Newspaper contest sponsored by the National Editorial Association. This spring the papers earned the coveted Award of Merit from the National Religious Publicity Council for reporting of religious news.

Languages Are Cited by Reader

Your editorial October 22 "The Way We See It" is the way I have seen it for a long time, but how are parents to convince those in charge of the northwest area schools that they are not satisfied with the system.

I attended a German Lutheran grade school and had six years of instruction in German, not compulsory. Today the Lutheran schools have discontinued their language program, too.

The stress today seems to be to make a child socially acceptable. Instead of keeping the library handy during lunch time, the children of our junior high must go to the gym for dancing, even a child who is not interested must dance if he or she is asked. Instead this child could be doing homework, catching up, doing research or just reading a book that might interest him. When I suggested this to a junior high teacher last year, he said, "But we don't want the children to think they're in a monastery." Hogwash!

HOW IMPORTANT is fancy footwork if this child is not a good conversationalist? And how can they talk about something if they are not given the opportunity to avail themselves of the books that interest them the most. It's true we have a wonderful up-to-date library in town, but by the same token, those that want to learn fancy-footwork and the social aspects can avail themselves of the Cotillion and the teen dances at Pioneer Park that are sponsored by the Westgate Association.

Our taxes have been steadily increasing, but this figures if we are going to have good educators and the necessary schools to avoid overcrowding. We all know a poor teacher or an overworked one can not give our children the best education — and I do not mind paying these increases in taxes as long as I know our school system is using the monies to the best advantage.

"Language Barriers Must Be Shattered," as our leading educators have been telling us for a long time. It's no secret that the majority of diplomats from foreign countries know our language, but the same cannot be said of our government representatives sent to foreign countries. Instead of teaching our fourth graders at Westgate school how to square-dance let them use this time to learn a foreign language.

When I voiced my displeasure in regards to the dancing at the open house last week, one mother said, "But it's only for half an hour." I say let them use this half hour to learn another language. I have nothing against dancing, square or otherwise; in fact my husband and I square-danced for 10 years and we do other dancing, too, but I do not think the school system should spend my tax money to teach my children dancing. I'm sending them to school to get a good education so they can make a decent living when they are through.

OUR STANDARDS are rising, and one entering the business world today, must have more years of schooling that in years back. But isn't it just possible that our fathers got just as much or almost as much out of eight years of schooling as our children do today out of 12 years?

After all, they did not teach our boys how to cook-which any interested mother can do at home, but every minute of the day was spent in receiving an education which would prepare them for the role of bread-winner.

Candidates Oppose Zoning

In keeping with our promise to provide strong zoning for our community, the People's party has sent a letter to Mr. Kavavli and the Texas company. It is quoted below.

"Dear Sir:

"We, the undersigned, candidates for office in the election of November 7 for Hoffman Estates wish to express our opposition to the erection and maintenance of an automobile service station on the corner of Roselle and Bode Roads. The people of Hoffman Estates, we are certain, share this opposition.

"We understand that the zoning of the parcel of land on Roselle rd., between Bode and Higgins rds., was changed to commercial upon the representations of the land owner that a shopping center would be built on such land consisting of a certain number of stores without any mention of plans for a service station. We consider this a misrepresentation and a complete disregard for the desires of the residents, home values, and proper zone planning of Hoffman Estates.

"We remind the owner of the land in question that all land previously zoned by Cook county in Hoffman Estates will be subject to rezoning upon election of village officers. A complete reappraisal of any proposed commercial development will be made and the flagrant disregard by this owner of desirable planned development will be taken into consideration.

"We further intend to use all available means, both legal and economic, to bring about the possible elimination of the service station on the said site."

All other candidates for office in Hoffman Estates are asked to join us in an expression of opposition to the service station."

Treasure Hunt Earns Criticism

I would like this to appear in your Fence Post column of the Paddock papers.

I've never written anything before, but I feel that this letter needs publishing as is shows not only my feelings, but I'm sure many others also. My article is as follows:

"I'm going on record as being a very disappointed person who participated in the Elk Grove Park and Shop's treasure hunt. As the contest rules stated, follow the easy clues and win $5000. The treasure was worth $5000 for nine days and the 10th day it was reduced to $500 until it was found. I dare say anyone who could have found the treasure while it was worth $5000 from the clues (and I use the word clues loosely) had to have some inside information. I think the whole treasure hunt insulted the intelligence of the people who participated in the hunt and I wonder what the Elk Grove Park and Shop Merchants association had in mind when they planned this gimmick.

I for one am very annoyed by the whole thing and I believe there are many more people in the Elk Grove area who feel the same way."

Ex-Employees Have a Ball

About 32 ex-Palatine operators from the now extinct manual office had a "ball" recently in honoring Elsie Lundy at a retirement party in the home of Carolyn Lynch.

Reader Reacts Against Funds

I would like to answer the letter by E. W. Johnson written to the Fence Post October 22, 1959.

Mr. Johnon may be very, very happy to contribute to all of these countless charity drives, but I certainly am not!

I feel sorry for the people who come around asking for the money, but maybe some day everyone will refuse to do it and then the constant begging will stop.

We pay enough in our taxes and hidden taxes and taxes on taxes to pay all these charities without forcing us to pay any more.

AS FAR AS the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and all the rest of these organizations, they are not at all necessary and I believe they do far more harm than good. Our children need to stay home more and our family life needs togetherness — we need to do things with each other at home and not constantly be running out every night to some needless, foolish meeting that some adults dreamed up for our children simply because they don't want to stay home themselves. I am sick to death of these organizations . . . I like to stay home! I like my children to stay home! Children can be taught good citizenship and good conduct far better in the home than they can in any organization. Mr. Johnson STAY HOME AND KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HOME and we'll all be far better off.

Reform Must Start at Top

I have been reading the many fine articles on suburbia in your paper with a great deal of interest. But aren't these learned gentle-barking up the wrong tree? Can we lay the conditions of "poverty amidst plenty" at suburbia's door? Surely, if there are to be changes made in our status quo, they must be made where responsibility lies: at the top—among the men and women representing our great country's wealth, power, and position.

Further, certainly, wealthy suburban communities are not a new phenomenon! These communities have been with us for a long time, are well established, and are generally accepted as part of the American Way of Life. On the other hand, gigantic housing developments are new but certainly cannot be considered wealthy and in a position to share with those less fortunate. There are few, if any, swimming pools, mink coats, Cadillacs, maids, and country club memberships.

So, if "the good life for everyone" is to become something more than an idealistic and altruistic dream, there will have to be a great many changes made, but I'm very much afraid those changes cannot be made in suburbia.

'Wild Goose' Chase Deceit?

I sincerely hope that the persons charged with the responsibilty of promoting the so-called "Treasure Hunt" which was part of the grand opening celebration for the Elk Grove Village shopping center, will tender a bit more consideration to the many "hunters" should the opportunity ever again present itself.

A great many hours were spent, and miles travelled in earnest attempts to decipher and evaluate the quote clues unquote. I feel, as do many others, that to be baffled can be challenging, interesting and enjoyable, but being led on an obviously useless, wild-goose chase borders on deceit.

While the purpose of the "Treasure Hunt" was primarily to attract as many persons as possible to the shopping center, I doubt if any undertaking could have much success if the patrons displayed as flippant an attitude as was evidently expressed by those appointed to "puzzle" us.

'Narrow Views' Are Criticized

In your editorial ("The Way We See It,") Judge Tuohy states that people in unincorporated areas are too selfish to supply their own police protection through incorporation and higher taxes.

Your paper agrees with this view concerning Prospect Heights and states also that unincorporated areas are the victims of a higher crime rate.

Your question as to why cities and towns should pay for more county police can be answered by the fact that a great majority of criminals and delinquents are spawned in your police-protected cities and villages.

WE PEOPLE in Prospect Heights supply our own water (wells), our own sewage systems, etc. In fact we pay very high taxes for the serrvice we get from Cook county.

If your narrow view were put into practice where we paid only for what we get childless families would pay no taxes to support schools . . . families with one child would pay much less than families with more children, etc.

The answer as to why we do not incorporate can be found on the same page of your editorial . . . in part, your writer, Charles Hayes in "Swivel Chair Comments" says:

"Too many suburbanites have been indifferent to political action because their local organizations have insulted the intelligence of citizens more concerned with ideas and ideals than with patronage and power."

As for Judge Tuohy's opinion . . . I say "thank heaven for District Attorney Adamowski."

Urges Vote For Individual

On November 7, the people of Hoffman Estates will go to the polls to elect their first officers who will serve for the next eighteen months.

Our community especially because of its youth needs individuals in office who will serve wisely regardless of their slate affiliation or independent candidacy.

Some of these candidates who feel they are adequate to hold office have never volunteered their services for the community. Where were these same people when the Home Owners association needed them so desperately?

A FEW OF these men resigned officially from the HOA or some just failed to attend the meetings. Their indifference and alleged lack of time resulted in failure to gain quorum. This lack of quorum caused delay and confusion in pressing discussions facing the group. These same people couldn't afford the time away from their employment or families. What makes them think they can now give their services to a more time consuming job?

Several of the candidates have voluntarily given and are still giving their precious time, money and effort to make Hoffman Estates a better place in which to live.

Choose the candidates who are qualified and will diligently serve our community.

"Don't be afraid to split your ticket."

Tells Error In Article

I wish to inform you that in the October 22 publication of the Roselle Register in the incorporation of Keeneyville village news on the front page you made a mistake in the part of annexations that have extended the municipal confines of Chicago, Bartlett and Ontarioville into DuPage from adjoining Cook county. Where you have Ontarioville, it should have been the village of Hanover Park, as there is no incorporated village of Ontarioville. The Cook county part is incorporated as the village of Hanover Park. That part of DuPage county that Hanover Park has annexed has about seven acres in it, has only two houses and two business places in it.

I would like to see a correction on this to read as follows:

The county's eight new villages since 1956 include Harvester, Lisle, Wayne, Carol Stream, Woodridge, Glendale, Oak Brook and Utopia. Annexations have extended the municipal confines of Chicago, Bartlett and Hanover into DuPage from adjoining Cook county. The Chicago annexation, in Addision township, is inclusive of all of O'Hare airport.

Helpful Hints For Newspaper

Enclosed check for the sum of four dollars is for my dad's subscription to the Arlington Heights Herald.

Sure am terribly disappointed in the way the sports department has the set-up for the bowling scores. Did so much enjoy seeing how well several of my old friends were doing individually in their bowling.

I DO HONESTLY think that the way your for rent classified are listed could be very much improved.

As the listings are now stated, if a person wanted to rent a room, he would have to go through the whole list of for rents. Also, if a person were interested in an unfurnished house he would have to do likewise. So, therefore, I suggest that each separate classification be placed in its own column.

For Rent — Furnished Houses
For Rent — Furnished Apartmnet
For Rent — Unfurnished Houses
For Rent — Unfurnished Apartment
For Rent — Sleeping Rooms

I think that such a method of listing would be of great help to all your readers.

Bids Farewell To Merchants

"I'll buy mine in Palatine" is a nice sounding slogan. Then the "powers that fix things" do the best job possible to discourage business. Palatine got off to a flying start by closing off a street and building a railway station in the center of it. The expensive triangle would have been a better spot for it, and traffic would have flowed more efficiently. Then Parallel ave. was closed off.

This was good planning. To return to Palatine south of Chicago ave. you are allowed to drive through Palnois Park, or forget Palatine, and go on to Arlington Heights. If you plan on going into Palatine from Ill. 53, you have the privilege of waiting for a break in traffic from 5 to 20 minutes at route 53 and 14. Then if you ever reach Chicago ave. you sit like a lump for a long time to make a left turn, and when your turn comes the light turns red, as the green light will allow only about four cars to race through.

During the month of September I purchased in Palatine, $330.00 worth of taxable merchandise. Since Parallel ave. has been made a one-way treet I have watched it being used as a playground, and waited for long periods of time to enter hwy. 14. To me, the shopping in Palatine is just not worth the frustration.

Being a Palatine resident for the past 20 years I feel your merchants are entitled to be called wonderful, and sadly I bid them "good-bye."

We pay enough in our taxes and hidden taxes and taxes on taxes to pay all these charities without forcing us to pay any more.

AS FAR AS the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and all the rest of these organizations, they are not at all necessary and I believe they do far more harm than good. Our children need to stay home more and our family life needs togetherness — we need to do things with each other at home and not constantly be running out every night to some needless, foolish meeting that some adults dreamed up for our children simply because they don't want to stay home themselves. I am sick to death of these organizations . . . I like to stay home! I like my children to stay home! Children can be taught good citizenship and good conduct far better in the home than they can in any organization. Mr. Johnson STAY HOME AND KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HOME and we'll all be far better off.

Reform Must Start at Top

I have been reading the many fine articles on suburbia in your paper with a great deal of interest. But aren't these learned gentle-barking up the wrong tree? Can we lay the conditions of "poverty amidst plenty" at suburbia's door? Surely, if there are to be changes made in our status quo, they must be made where responsibility lies: at the top—among the men and women representing our great country's wealth, power, and position.

Further, certainly, wealthy suburban communities are not a new phenomenon! These communities have been with us for a long time, are well established, and are generally accepted as part of the American Way of Life. On the other hand, gigantic housing developments are new but certainly cannot be considered wealthy and in a position to share with those less fortunate. There are few, if any, swimming pools, mink coats, Cadillacs, maids, and country club memberships.

So, if "the good life for everyone" is to become something more than an idealistic and altruistic dream, there will have to be a great many changes made, but I'm very much afraid those changes cannot be made in suburbia.

'Wild Goose' Chase Deceit?

I sincerely hope that the persons charged with the responsibilty of promoting the so-called "Treasure Hunt" which was part of the grand opening celebration for the Elk Grove Village shopping center, will tender a bit more consideration to the many "hunters" should the opportunity ever again present itself.

A great many hours were spent, and miles travelled in earnest attempts to decipher and evaluate the quote clues unquote. I feel, as do many others, that to be baffled can be challenging, interesting and enjoyable, but being led on an obviously useless, wild-goose chase borders on deceit.

While the purpose of the "Treasure Hunt" was primarily to attract as many persons as possible to the shopping center, I doubt if any undertaking could have much success if the patrons displayed as flippant an attitude as was evidently expressed by those appointed to "puzzle" us.

Paul A. Savino

'Narrow Views' Are Criticized

In your editorial ("The Way We See It,") Judge Tuohy states that people in unincorporated areas are too selfish to supply their own police protection through incorporation and higher taxes.

Your paper agrees with this view concerning Prospect Heights and states also that unincorporated areas are the victims of a higher crime rate.

Your question as to why cities and towns should pay for more county police can be answered by the fact that a great majority of criminals and delinquents are spawned in your police-protected cities and villages.

WE PEOPLE in Prospect Heights supply our own water (wells), our own sewage systems, etc. In fact we pay very high taxes for the serrvice we get from Cook county.

If your narrow view were put into practice where we paid only for what we get childless families would pay no taxes to support schools . . . families with one child would pay much less than families with more children, etc.

The answer as to why we do not incorporate can be found on the same page of your editorial . . . in part, your writer, Charles Hayes in "Swivel Chair Comments" says:

"Too many suburbanites have been indifferent to political action because their local organizations have insulted the intelligence of citizens more concerned with ideas and ideals than with patronage and power."

As for Judge Tuohy's opinion . . . I say "thank heaven for District Attorney Adamowski."

Urges Vote For Individual

On November 7, the people of Hoffman Estates will go to the polls to elect their first officers who will serve for the next eighteen months.

Our community especially because of its youth needs individuals in office who will serve wisely regardless of their slate affiliation or independent candidacy.

Some of these candidates who feel they are adequate to hold office have never volunteered their services for the community. Where were these same people when the Home Owners association needed them so desperately?

A FEW OF these men resigned officially from the HOA or some just failed to attend the meetings. Their indifference and alleged lack of time resulted in failure to gain quorum. This lack of quorum caused delay and confusion in pressing discussions facing the group. These same people couldn't afford the time away from their employment or families. What makes them think they can now give their services to a more time consuming job?

Several of the candidates have voluntarily given and are still giving their precious time, money and effort to make Hoffman Estates a better place in which to live.

Choose the candidates who are qualified and will diligently serve our community.

"Don't be afraid to split your ticket."

VOTE FOR THE INDIVIDUAL.

Lee Schumacher

Publicity Is Appreciated

Many thanks for the excellent coverage which you gave to the sixth biennial ACCW conference held on October 2-3 at the Conrad Hilton hotel.

You may be interested to know that the attendance at the conference exceeded 1800. The reports of the delegates were enthusiastic and we know that the article in all of your papers helped to increase the crowd.

Tells Error In Article

I wish to inform you that in the October 22 publication of the Roselle Register in the incorporation of Keeneyville village news on the front page you made a mistake in the part of annexations that have extended the municipal confines of Chicago, Bartlett and Ontarioville into DuPage from adjoining Cook county. Where you have Ontarioville, it should have been the village of Hanover Park, as there is no incorporated village of Ontarioville. The Cook county part is incorporated as the village of Hanover Park. That part of DuPage county that Hanover Park has annexed has about seven acres in it, has only two houses and two business places in it.

I would like to see a correction on this to read as follows:

The county's eight new villages since 1956 include Harvester, Lisle, Wayne, Carol Stream, Woodridge, Glendale, Oak Brook and Utopia. Annexations have extended the municipal confines of Chicago, Bartlett and Hanover into DuPage from adjoining Cook county. The Chicago annexation, in Addision township, is inclusive of all of O'Hare airport.

Planning and zoning board,
Hanover Park

Helpful Hints For Newspaper

Enclosed check for the sum of four dollars is for my dad's subscription to the Arlington Heights Herald.

Sure am terribly disappointed in the way the sports department has the set-up for the bowling scores. Did so much enjoy seeing how well several of my old friends were doing individually in their bowling.

I DO HONESTLY think that the way your for rent classified are listed could be very much improved.

As the listings are now stated, if a person wanted to rent a room, he would have to go through the whole list of for rents. Also, if a person were interested in an unfurnished house he would have to do likewise. So, therefore, I suggest that each separate classification be placed in its own column.

For Rent — Furnished Houses
For Rent — Furnished Apartmnet
For Rent — Unfurnished Houses
For Rent — Unfurnished Apartment
For Rent — Sleeping Rooms

I think that such a method of listing would be of great help to all your readers.

Lloyd E. Sieburg
Lake land, Fla.

Bids Farewell To Merchants

"I'll buy mine in Palatine" is a nice sounding slogan. Then the "powers that fix things" do the best job possible to discourage business. Palatine got off to a flying start by closing off a street and building a railway station in the center of it. The expensive triangle would have been a better spot for it, and traffic would have flowed more efficiently. Then Parallel ave. was closed off. This was good planning. To return to Palatine south of Chicago ave. you are allowed to drive through Palnois Park, or forget Palatine, and go on to Arlington Heights. If you plan on going into Palatine from Ill. 53, you have the privilege of waiting for a break in traffic from 5 to 20 minutes at route 53 and 14. Then if you ever reach Chicago ave. you sit like a lump for a long time to make a left turn, and when your turn comes the light turns red, as the green light will allow only about four cars to race through.

During the month of September I purchased in Palatine, $330.00 worth of taxable merchandise. Since Parallel ave. has been made a one-way treet I have watched it being used as a playground, and waited for long periods of time to enter hwy. 14. To me, the shopping in Palatine is just not worth the frustration.

Being a Palatine resident for the past 20 years I feel your merchants are entitled to be called wonderful, and sadly I bid them "goodbye."

Helen Philippe
Paltine.

Assessment Books Open For Inspection

New assessments on all real estate in Elk Grove, Palatine, Hanover and Northfield townships will be out today for public inspection after a delay of over four months.

The books of these townships will be open for inspection purposes in the county assessor's office on the third floor of the County building today, Friday and Saturday.

The four townships are the first to be completed in the current quadrennial assessment. The assessor's office, by law, reviews all property every four years. Books of the other townships will follow, but how soon is anyone's guess.

FOR THOSE who believe new assessments on their property are too high, the law provides recourse to an appeal procedure under which a complaint is filed with the Board of Tax Appeals.

Bernard T. Hogan, board secretary, said his office expects to receive the first four completed township books on Monday, Nov. 9.

A legal notice that the board is accepting filing of complaints then will be published immediately in Chicago daily newspapers. The filing period will last 10 days—or until November 18.

Shortly after this, the board will hold hearings on the complaints filed. No complaint is possible if the taxpayer waits until his tax bill is issued the following year.

The board, in 1955, the last quadrennial assessment year, handled 65,000 complaints. This year, estimates of the number of expected complaints runs as high as 100,000, Hogan said.

THIS WILL be due in part to the recent revision of the assessor's manual. It sets up a new formula for assessing property. Complaints will be spurred by the fact that the assessor's office is increasing valuations on homes by 6 to 13 per cent.

This year's delay in compiling the new quadrennial assessments has been attributed by P. J. Cullerton, county assessor, to the time-consuming task of giving suburban real estate parcels a new serial number in place of the old legal descriptions.

The board of tax appeals, under normal conditions, would get the first assessment books in late June and start hearings on complaints by July. Now, however, the board will not begin hearings until about November 23.

Assessment Books Open For Inspection

New assessments on all real estate in Elk Grove, field townships will be out today for public inspection Palatine, Hanover and Northfield townships will be out today for public inspection after a delay of over four months.

The books of these townships will be open for inspection purposes in the county assessor's office on the third floor of the County building today, Friday and Saturday.

The four townships are the first to be completed in the current quadrennial assessment. The assessor's office, by law, reviews all property every four years. Books of the other townships will follow, but how soon is anyone's guess.

FOR THOSE who believe new assessments on their property are too high, the law provides recourse to an appeal procedure under which a complaint is filed with the Board of Tax Appeals.

Bernard T. Hogan, board secretary, said his office expects to receive the first four completed township books on Monday, Nov. 9.

A legal notice that the board is accepting filing of complaints then will be published immediately in Chicago daily newspapers. The filing period will last 10 days—or until November 18.

Shortly after this, the board will hold hearings on the complaints filed. No complaint is possible if the taxpayer waits until his tax bill is issued the following year.

The board, in 1955, the last quadrennial assessment year, handled 65,000 complaints. This year, estimates of the number of expected complaints runs as high as 100,000, Hogan said.

THIS WILL be due in part to the recent revision of the assessor's manual. It sets up a new formula for assessing property. Complaints will be spurred by the fact that the assessor's office is increasing valuations on homes by 6 to 13 per cent.

This year's delay in compiling the new quadrennial assessments has been attributed by P. J. Cullerton, county assessor, to the time-consuming task of giving suburban real estate parcels a new serial number in place of the old legal descriptions.

The board of tax appeals, under normal conditions, would get the first assessment books in late June and start hearings on complaints by July. Now, however, the board will not begin hearings until about November 23.

Spectorsky Gives Thanks

"A brilliant day, the first snow, a gentle and misty rain, . . . there is much that I am missing," says the author of The Exurbanites and the blistering "Destination Sickness," who, till now, has been one of suburbia's most bitter critics. As Thanksgiving approaches, he contrasts for us several aspects of city vs. suburban life, and tells about some of the blessings that suburbanites should be particularly grateful for.

For Sale

It's hard to part with a house that you and your family have lived in for any length of time—even though you may be going on to an even better one. But if you have to sell, here are some suggestions that will help you do it quickly, with a minimum of effort and anguish, and that will insure you the best price possible for your property.

Sashaying Suburbia

Lately, on some nights, almost any town can be mistaken for the Old West, what with men in boots and fancy shirts, and women in petticoated, ruffled dresses, all headed for the local "dance hall" (the school gym, or the Community Center, most likely). Here, on page 4, is a reminder of early Americana—the booming revival of square dancing.

Paradise Regained

The week of November 1-7 marks Children's Book Week, whose theme this year is "Go Exploring in Books." We present a beautiful word picture drawn for us by that venerable schoolmaster T. Morris Longstreth, in which he tells what it was like between boys and books when he was twelve years old—and what he thinks books can do for all the twelve-year-olds yet to come.

Sam Ciccone

Our cover artist has always lived in the heart of the city, but tells us that he's soon moving out to the suburbs, ". . . the best place for the children while they're growing up." Once they're settled, he adds, he also plans to take up square dancing.

around the square." For the beginner, this usually means hopping, instead of shuffling, and running around the square trying to keep pace with the caller. He begins to wonder if he'll ever learn.

But the newcomer rarely stays discouraged. By the end of the first session, he is footsore but certain—certain that he's coming back next week because, well, if all these other people can learn what "box a gnat" is, so can he.

By the end of the third session, the new recruit is probably bragging about what a good dancer he is.

He has a few surprises left, however. Just as he begins to consider himself a full-fledged promenader, some caller invariably dreams up a new way to tangle and untangle dancers in a square. In Grandmother's day, square dancing could be mastered in a few hours. Today it takes weeks of practice to learn even the basics of the modern version, with its emphasis on styling and smoothness.

As he glides from beginner to intermediary to advance status, the tempo is stepped up. Not only to the tune of the music, but most likely to the number of nights he wants to devote to dancing. As enthusiasm grows, he is likely to start wanting to bring his children around or try to get his parents interested in learning to dance, since age is no barrier in a square dance, or try to get the boys from the car-pool and their wives to go to the next dance with him. Here, truly, the seeds of friendship fall on fertile ground.

When the eighth annual square dance convention converged on Denver last May, ten thousand dancers from all over the world whirled into the city. All agreed that the future of square dancing was secure as long as this feeling of friendship kept their hearts in tune. The bank of friendship cannot exist without deposits, and square dancers throughout the world have growing accounts, all labeled "do-si-do."

Perhaps the best summary of reasons why so many people are suddenly square dancing was contained in a recent sermon by a minister, who is a square dancer and caller in some of his spare moments. He said that square dancing answered the need for play, one of the essentials of successful living. Beyond that, he said, it satisfies the basic needs for rhythm and expression that all people have. It overcomes self-consciousness and helps bring people together. Final reason for promenading, a "call" which will be echoed loudly by all concerned, is simply, "... because I like it."

THREE MILLION AMERICANS are square dancing. In every part of the country, from Dedham, Massachusetts, to Parkrose, Oregon, callers, who from nine to five are missile technicians, milkmen, teachers, or clerks, trade their blue or white collars for Western clothes in the evening to instruct sashaying couples. Calling to a combo—usually a fiddle, banjo, and piano —or to recorded music, these nimble-throated instructors sing their hearts out to such tunes as "Bully of the Town," "Black Mountain Rag," "Honey Bee," or any of the other hundreds of bright, light, foot-tapping numbers.

And who are these three million Americans? Young marrieds, single adults, teen-agers, and young-at-heart senior citizens, they are drawn from all age levels and from every walk of life. Looking like pictures out of the Old West, the men in their high-heeled boots, slim trousers and bright shirts and the women in full-skirted dresses puffed out with billowing petticoats, the dancers all have a common goal—to "swing your partner." It's all teamwork. Each dancer is dependent upon the other seven members of the unit to form a pattern, obey the calls, and execute a good dance. And it's all part of the fun.

The first time a person goes to a square dance, his head is likely to spin faster than his feet, when he is introduced to the strange new language. For example, "Allemande left, allemande thar, go right and left and form a star," can be rather upsetting news the first time he hears it—especially when he is expected to act upon the information, and in a hurry! Square dance jargon demands alertness, above all. Patiently, the caller explains each new step, demonstrates, and repeats. By the end of the first "tip" (two dances before a short intermission), the novice's head is buzzing. Beginners usually just look on during the first tip. But when the caller sings out, "take eight and recuperate," the newcomer is ready to join a group and start dancing.

Everyone performs better when he is at ease. One of the ways that some square dance groups have found to relax a newcomer and make him feel at home is by the use of name tags. When everyone is wearing a name tag, no one is a stranger. The caller tactfully eases the doubtful male and his partner into a square with three other couples. The music starts and the call to "square 'em up" rings out.

"Bow to your partner, corner there, and introduce yourself

Looking like pictures out of the Old West, the men in their high-heeled boots, slim trousers and bright shirts and the women in full-skirted dresses puffed out with billowing petticoats, the dancers all have a common goal—to "swing your partner." It's all teamwork. Each dancer is dependent upon the other seven members of the unit to form a pattern, obey the calls, and execute a good dance. And it's all part of the fun.

The first time a person goes to a square dance, his head is likely to spin faster than his feet, when he is introduced to the strange new language. For example, "Allemande left, allemande thar, go right and left and form a star," can be rather upsetting news the first time he hears it—especially when he is expected to act upon the information, and in a hurry! Square dance jargon demands alertness, above all. Patiently, the caller explains each new step, demonstrates, and repeats. By the end of the first "tip" (two dances before a short intermission), the novice's head is buzzing. Beginners usually just look on during the first tip. But when the caller sings out, "take eight and recuperate," the newcomer is ready to join a group and start dancing.

Everyone performs better when he is at ease. One of the ways that some square dance groups have found to relax a newcomer and make him feel at home is by the use of name tags. When everyone is wearing a name tag, no one is a stranger. The caller tactfully eases the doubtful male and his partner into a square with three other couples. The music starts and the call to "square 'em up" rings out.

"Bow to your partner, corner there, and introduce yourself

GREENBERG FROM FPG

First among these blessings I would put the home itself. Be it boxy bungalow or junior estate, it is a home. At this time of year it's apt to be at its homiest, a snug haven that is a permanent part of the personality of its occupants, a warming reflection of themselves which nurtures and contents the ego and makes one, therefore, more outgoing and, in the best and broadest sense, a more human, human being.

By contrast, the majority of urbanites are living in warrens of stone and steel in which they have no equity, but for the use of which they pay mightily indeed.

The functional impersonality of this way of life seems to require an armouring of the soul. The proximity of hundreds of strangers generates social insulation bordering on furtive or hostile suspicion and seclusiveness. I'm not speaking now of the often-noted loneliness so many people feel in cities. I refer to something much more stultifying: the belief, voiced by the majority of urbanites, that this isolation, this encapsulating of one's self in a shell dubbed privacy, is just peachy-dandy, and that anonymity in the faceless crowd is preferable to human community.

SECOND, I would put the unbought pleasures, everything from the view of bare black trees against a blue sky to the sparkle of first frost at dawn. Everything from the smell of wood smoke to the almost animally gratifying, symbolic act of hanging the storm door. Everything from Orion at night to the midday sound of a boy's bicycle bell.

I love the expectant excitement of a big city at this holiday time, with the spirit of Christmas in full swing. Let me tell you, though, some of the things I don't like about it.

I don't like competing with hundreds of hurrying strangers for sidewalk space, for a cab, for a seat on a bus, for standing room in a subway. I don't like the continuous, surly squawk and roar of bumper-to-bumper traffic. I don't like the way the first fine snow quickly turns to black slush, against which city footwear offers all the protection of a piece of cleansing tissue. I don't like standing in line—for everything: transportation, lunch, dinner out, theater, movies, the morning paper, the office elevator, everything.

And how did I get to this point when I started out talking about the unbought pleasures? Like this: by contrast with the city, the unbought pleasures abound out of town and may usually be relished at home or close to it, with or without friends or neighbors. Whereas the city dweller feels almost a compulsion to buy something in his leisure hours—perhaps as proof to himself that he's having fun—whether it's dining out, going to the theater, going to a night club, sitting around a cocktail lounge, or going to the movies (in which case, it's supposed to be more fun to go to the big, first-run movie houses downtown). The point I want to make is that this city chap, so pleased with his urban independence, may be a little less the free spirit than he deems—as is quickly evidenced by the fact that wherever in the big, glamourous city his impulse may take him (and as he puts on his hat

Three Thoughts For Thanksgiving

BY A. C. SPECTORSKY

Author of "The Exurbanites"

Out of bitter experience and fond recall, suburbia's sharpest critic counts suburbia's blessings

As a man who has done his fair share of putting down the suburban way of life, I've been accused of just about everything from malicious mischief to malevolent mayhem. This hurts me because, among other things, I yield to no man in my love for the country. The fact that I once wrote a critique of commuter life has been interpreted as my seeing nothing good about it and everything good about urban living.

So I'm glad for this opportunity to clear the air about me, figuratively speaking. (Literally speaking, that's impossible, since I'm somewhere near the heart of a city which recognizes few peers in the amount it has in its atmosphere of smog, pollen, dust, coal smoke—and those little bits of black grit for which the human eye seems to have a magnetic attraction.) I will tell you—out of bitter experience and fond recall—some of the things for which I think the suburbanite may fervently offer his gratitude to a kind providence on Thanksgiving Day.

Be it bungalow or estate, it's a snug haven which nurtures and contents the ego — and makes one a more human human being.

THANKSGIVING

to go out, he pauses to pity the poor suburbanite denied ready access to all the city's goodies), the same impulse, oddly enough, will have motivated thousands of his fellow urbanites at exactly the same time, wherefor the waiting in crowds and the standing in line. The commuting suburbanite may experience this misery thrice daily: morning and evening on the train platform or the parkway, if he drives, and at lunch hour. It is the city man's constant environment.

Third among suburban blessings for which I would offer thanks is inefficiency. It is among man's great gifts and has fallen sadly into disrepute. I like wasted room in a house. I like a place to keep things for which I have no use. I like to rummage. I want every member of my family to be able to engage in a different pursuit at the same time—without collisions of body or temperament—and it takes a pretty inefficient house to accommodate that. I like to ramble aimlessly, to sit in a slightly busted chair with a vacant look on my face for an hour or more, to nibble at odd hours on week ends, to have a garage in which impossible projects of carpentry or home mechanics are started but never quite finished, while the car sits outside in the driveway.

I like to dabble. I like, now and then, to look like a slob. I like to tinker and fuss, to waste time and motion, to daydream about adding a room and not get around to changing a light bulb. I like, in the middle of the night, to put on a sou'wester over my PJs and put my bare feet into rubber boots and walk around under dripping trees, while I look at the lighted windows of the room I should have stayed in bed in. These things—this wonderful life-renewing inefficiency—are there for the suburbanite. I stress the word "there" because I mean it as a potential, a constant and unobtrusive invitation. For the city man it does not exist: most of the trivia I've just named are simply unavailable to him; others he indulges with a built-in degree of difficulty and inconvenience to himself and to others—which puts on him the burden of pursuing inefficiency efficiently, an unnatural posture which robs the random act of its restfulness, since it's no longer random.

Speaking of the unnatural, I would like to put forth this proposition which, if you can accept it, should assure you that fervent thanks are due from all who have escaped the urban life: Man, the city builder, the tamer of nature and creator of metropolises (Or is it metropoli?) has not adapted himself to the city. It is not his, he is its. To the degree that the suburbanite has escaped this adaptation, he should offer up his gratitude as he inefficiently samples the unbought pleasures of his own home on Thanksgiving.

a description of your house—lot, size, age, style, number of rooms, location, and any especially attractive features. If you don't say two baths, for instance, it will be assumed you have only one bath. Schools, shopping, transportation nearby are good selling points. Always state the price. A phrase like "asking price" is as silly as "owner transferred" or "sickness in family." It is an invitation to bargain-seekers who have no intention of approaching your price.

3. Attractive packaging. Manufacturers spend millions to make their products look appealing. Don't hesitate to invest some time and money to see that your house puts its best face forward. An exterior paint job—if it's needed—a lawn coiffure and elimination of all clutter will make a big difference to buyers. A man I know put up his house for twenty thousand dollars "as is." No prospect was able to visualize the possibilities of that shabby, cluttered house. Few went beyond the front door. A speculator finally bought it for sixteen thousand, made a few surface repairs, polished it up and sold it for twenty-one.

Some homeowners redecorate to boost their price. I advise this measure only if the house is in terrible shape. Even neutral colors may not appeal to future owners, who, in most cases, include redecorating costs in their budgets and want to do it their own way. Naturally, such eyesores as cracked plaster, broken bannisters and loose moldings ought to be fixed before a house is shown.

Be Friendly and Make a Few Repairs

4. Offer a sound product. An old gentleman once told me, "Never lie to the man who buys your house unless you're going to move a thousand miles away." I'd modify that. Never in any case misrepresent. We needn't go into a discussion of honesty. But we will say that few buyers will fail to check up on the workings of your house. Once you've said your boiler is perfect, you may be embarrassed to have a professional look in and find that it is not.

A buyer expects to make minor repairs. But if your house needs a new roof, basement waterproofing, or major plumbing repairs, it is best to have those jobs done beforehand. The amount you'd have to cut your price would be more than repair costs. A buyer tends to overestimate these costs and will either be scared off or want a disproportionate compensation.

5. Label accurately. The label on your suit states the fabric content and instructions for upkeep. Have your house facts just as clearly at your fingertips. Upkeep is one of the buyer's major concerns. Be prepared to answer all his questions on maintenance—taxes, insurance, water, and heating costs. While he may not ask how many electrical circuits you have, he will certainly want to know if he can run his washing machine and air conditioner at the same time. Often, it is an inducement for the newcomer to take over your mortgage at a lower rate of interest than he would have to pay on a new mortgage, and at a saving of the cost of taking out a new mortgage. Though this transfer can reduce his maintenance and push your sale, check first whether your bank will arrange a clean substitution that discharges you from any liability in case the new owner fails on payments.

6. Salesmanship. Your friendliness, good judgment, courtesy, and persuasiveness are your sales techniques. Aggressive selling might suggest that if you are so eager to get rid of your house it cannot be a good buy. Indifference might just as easily discourage prospects. Yet, you are selling and it is to your advantage to point up the strong features of your home, so keep your "showroom" as attractive as possible and set hours to customer convenience.

7. Keep files. Take names and telephone numbers of interested customers. If you get an offer below your minimum, keep a record of it in case your price has to go down. If an offer comes within a few hundred dollars of the price you want, take it. The convenience of a quick sale—particularly if you have another home waiting for you—is worth the difference.

See a Lawyer

8. Lean on your legal department. A man selling his first house should talk to his lawyer before he puts the house on the market. The lawyer would be able to advise him on getting his papers in order and working out the mortgage transfer I mentioned before, and could help him, too, in figuring out his house's assets and the accessories to include in the sale. But the time an attorney must be consulted is as soon as an offer has been made and accepted—before any papers are signed, before any money is accepted. A seller must be protected from being evicted before he is ready to leave, from continuing liabilities after he has left, from liens on properties he takes with him, from unfair commission claims, and from contractual fine print that works to his disadvantage. I would not advise a seller to use the buyer's lawyer in an offered arrangement to save closing costs.

It's a seller's market these days. Take advantage of it—make your offer as attractive as you can.

HOW TO SELL YOUR HOUSE

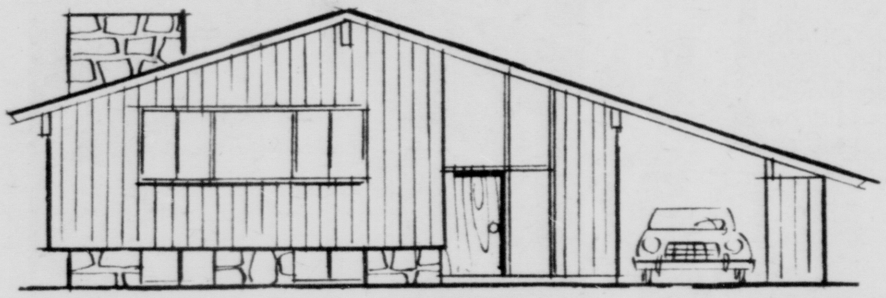
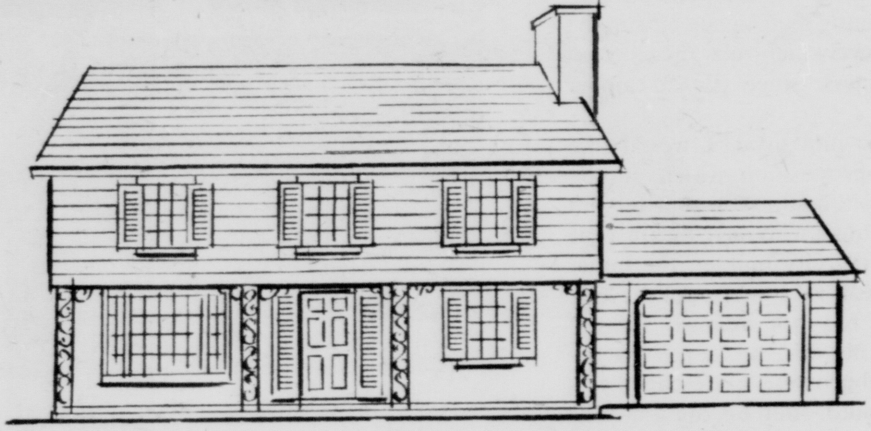
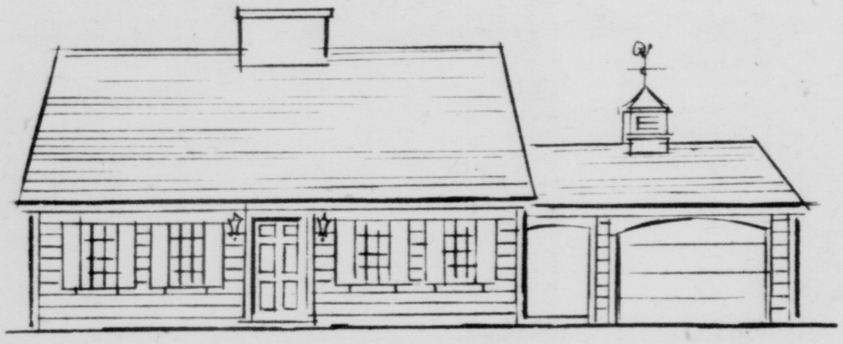
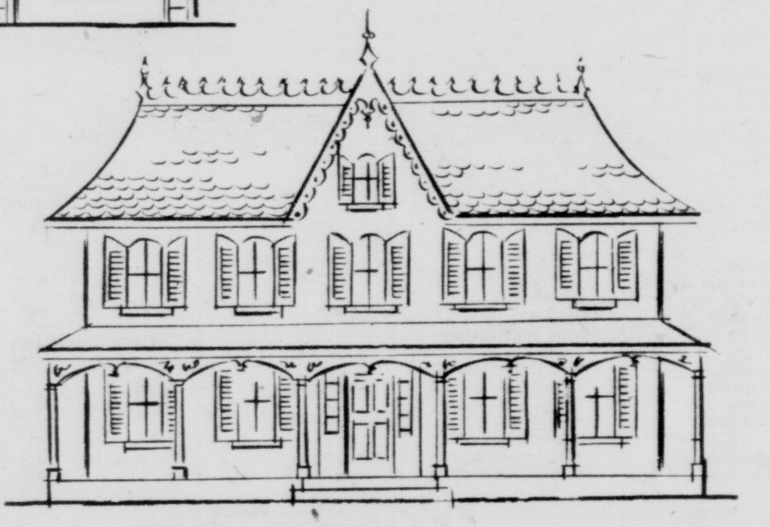
DRAWING BY SIGMUND WARD









BY FREDERICK J. ADLER, attorney, as told to Rollie Hochstein

You are off to a good start if you have a house outside the city to sell, but even in today's market it still pays to apply a little commercial know-how SELLING A HOUSE is big business. I'm always surprised at the people who go into this venture in a catch-as-catch-can manner, contrary to all business principles.

These are house-buying days. In the past five years values have gone up generally from ten to twenty percent. In some areas, new developments, shopping centers, highways, bus routes have more than doubled prices. Rising population, rising incomes, rising communities are all on the seller's side, and few people need take a loss on a house sale. Yet I know of men—men who don't miss a trick in business—who have sold themselves thousands of dollars short by failing to apply commercial know-how to the sale of their homes.

Selling a product for the highest price possible is a business problem. I'm going to list eight business procedures that a person would do well to adopt if he wants to sell his house.

Brokers Can Save Time and Trouble

The first decision is whether or not to employ a real-estate agent. A broker, of course, will bring more people to see your house than you can interest on your own. Ordinarily, he will screen viewers and bring in only those who can afford your price and are interested in your type of house. He will take over details of showing the house and answering questions. Just as a product benefits from the good reputation of a store that displays it, so will your house benefit from a client's trust in his broker.

Familiar with your location, the broker is in a position to advise you on a price to ask and features to emphasize. In short, you have professional help.

A broker takes his commission from you—generally about five percent of the money you get for your house. In some areas, the commission may be slightly higher or lower, or may be scaled according to selling price. You can choose between exclusive or multiple listing. An agent who thinks your house is "hot" may request an "exclusive," for which privilege he will concentrate on selling your house fast. He will run special newspaper ads, go through his files for good prospects, give your house priority over properties that he is competing with other agents to sell.

It's not a bad idea to let just one leading broker handle your house for a while. But as soon as activity slows, toss it out to as many others as you can. The wider your exposure, the better your chance to sell at top price.

Do It Big and Do It Right

If you decide to "do-it-yourself" and save the commission, then do it big and do it right.

1. Sensible pricing. It's easy to price your house right off the market. Don't ask for much above the price you expect to get. Expect to sell for about the price a neighbor has recently been paid for a similar house—adding on for improvements you've made or major appliances you're leaving behind. Naturally, you can base your price on a recent appraisal that's been made; but hiring a good appraiser just to find a selling price is expensive and unnecessary.

2. Judicious advertising. The businessman pinpoints his market and proclaims his product. Effective advertising is your best way to find a buyer. Pass the word around through everyone you know. Put up a sign. And advertise in newspapers. Advertise in your local newspaper to let the whole town know—its contacts are wide. And don't forget the city people who want to move out. A week-end ad in a nearby city newspaper makes sense. Word it so you arouse interest, but don't exaggerate. There is no sense in bringing people out to be disappointed. You'll need

Dinner at Eight

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

CANDLELIGHT AND FLOWERS . . . good conversation and the joy of a superbly prepared meal . . .
are the magic ingredients of "dinner at eight."
After your guests have gone, you'll bask in the glow of a successful party.
But perhaps more important to you, the hostess, will be the pride of your husband and the enthusiasm of your guests.

SHRIMP WITH PEPPY COCKTAIL SAUCE

To Prepare: 25 min.

1½ lbs. fresh shrimp with shells, cooked, peeled, deveined, and chilled
Lettuce or curly endive, chilled
1 cup catsup
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon prepared horse-radish
1 teaspoon onion juice
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Few drops Tabasco
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate

1. Mix together thoroughly in a small bowl the catsup and remaining ingredients. Chill.

6 servings

Note: Serving the shrimp as an appetizer with cocktail sauce and wooden picks in the living room is a pleasant change from service at the table and is more informal.

POTATOES ANNA

To Prepare: 20 min. To Bake: 40-60 min.

Wash, pare, and cut into thin crosswise slices 6 to 8 medium-sized potatoes (about 6 cups, sliced). Dry thoroughly with absorbent paper. Arrange even layers of potatoes in a 2-qt. buttered casserole, overlapping slices about ¼ in. Sprinkle each layer with a mixture of salt and pepper. Dot layers generously with ½ cup butter or margarine. Bake at 425°F 40 to 60 min., or until potatoes are tender and golden brown. To remove from casserole for serving, run spatula around edge to loosen. Invert onto warm serving plate.

Place rolled rib roast of beef, fat side up, on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Season with salt and pepper. Roast uncovered at 300° F, allowing 28 to 32 min. per pound for rare, 34 to 38 min. per pound for medium and 40 to 45 min. per pound for well-done meat. Let roast stand 20 to 30 min. before serving; this allows meat to absorb its juices and become easier to carve.

PRESERVED ORANGES MAJESTIC

To Prepare: 35 min.

Water (about 5 to 6 cups)
6 small navel oranges (1½ lbs.), washed
2 cups sugar
1½ cups water
½ cup white vinegar
½ cup light corn sirup
10 whole cloves
2 3-in. pieces stick cinnamon

1. Bring water to boiling in a saucepan. Add oranges and simmer, uncovered, about 15 min., or until tender. Drain oranges. Cut each into quarters.

2. Meanwhile, combine in a 3-qt. saucepan the sugar, 1½ cups water, vinegar, and corn sirup. Stir over low heat until sugar is completely dissolved. Add the cloves and cinnamon and bring mixture to boiling. Boil vigorously, uncovered, without stirring, 15 to 18 min., or until sirup thickens slightly and begins to turn to a light golden color.

3. Immediately remove saucepan from heat and add the orange quarters; coat pieces evenly to glaze. Turn mixture into a bowl. Cool completely, turning pieces occasionally. Chill thoroughly. Serve glazed orange quarters as an accompaniment to meat. This recipe may be prepared in advance and will keep in the refrigerator for weeks.

About 12 servings

CELERY ROOT RELISH

To Prepare: 25 min.

1–1½-lb. celery root
1 lemon, sliced
French dressing
1 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon paprika
7 teaspoons sherry

1. Wash, cut off ends and pare celery root. Cut into crosswise slices ½ in. thick. Put into a saucepan with lemon slices. Pour in enough boiling water to cover slices. Cover; bring to boiling. Cook 5 to 7 min., or until just tender. Drain; cool slightly.

2. Cut slices into sticks about ⅜ in. thick and 2½ in. long. Put sticks into a shallow dish. Add enough French dressing to coat evenly. Chill about 2 hrs., turning occasionally.

3. Meanwhile, blend remaining ingredients together. Chill.

4. Just before serving, drain celery root sticks and toss lightly with mayonnaise mixture.

YORKSHIRE PUDDING

To Prepare: 10 min. To Bake: 30 min.

¼ cup hot drippings from roast beef
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup milk
1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt

1. Pour hot drippings into an 11x7x1½-in. baking pan and keep hot.

2. Add the milk, flour, and salt to the beaten eggs and beat with a rotary beater until smooth. Pour into baking pan over hot meat drippings.

3. Bake at 400°F 30 to 40 min., or until puffed and golden brown. Cut into squares and serve immediately with roast beef.

1 cup (about 6 oz.) dried apricots
2 cups water
1½ cups (about 7 oz.) golden raisins
2¼ cups (about 1 lb.) candied cherries
⅓ cup (about 2 oz.) diced candied citron
⅓ cup (about 2 oz.) diced candied lemon peel
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1 cup orange juice
3 tablespoons ruby red port wine
1½ cups (about 6 oz.) walnuts, coarsely chopped
3 tablespoons (3 env.) unflavored gelatin
3 cups chilled whipping cream
⅓ cup chopped walnuts

1. Bring 3 cups water to boiling in a saucepan. Add the prunes and apricots. Bring to boiling; cover and simmer about 45 min., or until fruit is tender.

7. Using chilled bowl and beater, beat 1 cup of the whipping cream until it is of medium consistency (piles softly). Turn onto fruit-gelatin mixture. Beat remaining whipping cream, 1 cup at a time, as above, and turn onto previously whipped cream. Gently fold together, blending thoroughly.

8. Sprinkle the ⅓ cup nuts over bottom of pan. Using the 12 reserved candied cherries, arrange in clusters of three, moving nuts to allow cherries to touch bottom of pan. Pat nuts in place to cover entire bottom surface. Carefully spoon mixture over nuts. Chill until firm, 3 to 4 hrs. Unmold onto chilled serving plate.

CANDLELIGHT AND FLOWERS . . . good conversation and the joy of a superbly prepared meal . . . are the magic ingredients of "dinner at eight." 1 teaspoon onion juice
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Few drops Tabasco
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate

2. To prepare cocktail, line 6 chilled sherbet glasses with lettuce. Arrange about 5 shrimp in each glass and top with cocktail sauce.

6 servings

POTATOES ANNA

To Prepare: 20 min. To Bake: 40-60 min.

Wash, pare, and cut into thin crosswise slices 6 to 8 medium-sized potatoes (about 6 cups, sliced). Dry thoroughly with absorbent paper. Arrange even layers of potatoes in a 2-qt. buttered casserole, overlapping slices about ¼ in. Sprinkle each layer with a mixture of salt and pepper. Dot layers generously with ½ cup butter or margarine. Bake at 425°F 40 to 60 min., or until potatoes are tender and golden brown. To remove from casserole for serving, run spatula around edge to loosen. Invert onto warm serving plate.

6 to 8 servings

PRESERVED ORANGES MAJESTIC

To Prepare: 35 min.

Water (about 5 to 6 cups)
6 small navel oranges (1½ lbs.), washed
2 cups sugar
1½ cups water
½ cup white vinegar
½ cup light corn sirup
10 whole cloves
2 3-in. pieces stick cinnamon

1. Bring water to boiling in a saucepan. Add oranges and simmer, uncovered, about 15 min., or until tender. Drain oranges. Cut each into quarters.

2. Meanwhile, combine in a 3-qt. saucepan the sugar, 1½ cups water, vinegar, and corn sirup. Stir over low heat until sugar is completely dissolved. Add the cloves and cinnamon and bring mixture to boiling. Boil vigorously, uncovered, without stirring, 15 to 18 min., or until sirup thickens slightly and begins to turn to a light golden color.

3. Immediately remove saucepan from heat and add the orange quarters; coat pieces evenly to glaze. Turn mixture into a bowl. Cool completely, turning pieces occasionally. Chill thoroughly. Serve glazed orange quarters as an accompaniment to meat. This recipe may be prepared in advance and will keep in the refrigerator for weeks.

About 12 servings

Place rolled rib roast of beef, fat side up, on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Season with salt and pepper. Roast uncovered at 300° F, allowing 28 to 32 min. per pound for rare, 34 to 38 min. per pound for medium and 40 to 45 min. per pound for well-done meat. Let roast stand 20 to 30 min. before serving; this allows meat to absorb its juices and become easier to carve.

CELERY ROOT RELISH

1 lemon, sliced
French dressing
1 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon prepared mustard

2. Cut slices into sticks about ⅜ in. thick and 2½ in. long. Put sticks into a shallow dish. Add enough French dressing to coat evenly. Chill about 2 hrs., turning occasionally.

3. Meanwhile, blend remaining ingredients together. Chill.

4. Just before serving, drain celery root sticks and toss lightly with mayonnaise mixture.

The Andrew Ferendinos' Veranda House

Pleasing, hospitable, easy to run—the owners say this house outside Miami proved itself in the first three months

When the Ferendinos built, they had three special aims: 1) to get a feeling of spaciousness and freedom with a minimum of square footage, 2) to make the most of the oaks and pines and the view of Finger Lake on their acre-and-a-half lot, 3) to have a house that would "work" willingly for all four members of a gay and busy family, Mr. and Mrs. Ferendino, daughter Claire, who is a senior at Coral Gables High School, and son John, aged 10.

Andrew Ferendino is an architect. While building his own house, he worked closely, from the beginning, with Frederic Stresau, landscape architect, and George Schwartz, decorator. You see the results photographed here. The rooms, which are not large, do seem spacious because they all open wide on verandas planted with palmettos and aralias and glossy ficus, with views of the lake beyond. In fair weather, big doors slide back to let the breeze off the lake blow freely through the house. At all times, an eight-foot overhang—and this is a fine point—gives protection from the glare of the Florida sun. The outdoor effect is increased by the use of natural, untreated materials – natural redwood, masonry blocks of Chattahoochee river-bottom gravel, and large expanses of floor paved with brick which continues onto the terraces and walks.

Special features make the house easy to run with the help of a once-a-week cleaning woman. Fabrics are rugged and washable. Venezuelan glass tile that never needs polishing is used for the kitchen floor. Throughout the house, storage areas are built in, as they are on shipboard, and big pieces are designed to come straight down to the floor, so there is no problem of cleaning underneath.

"It would be unusual," says Mr. Ferendino, "for an architect not to find some things he would do differently, if he were building again."

But, so far, he would make only one change—he would like to install more sliding screens to open his house even wider to the four winds of heaven.

Above: Spreading philodendrons and a slender aralia are the first things you would see from this bedroom when you woke in the morning. When the door is closed, redwood jalousies regulate temperature and ventilation.

What's New In Books,

Here's Eloise, back from her Moscow trip.

BOOKS

RECENT ARRIVALS from all over the world include adventure, humor, biography, and suspense.

FORESTS OF THE NIGHT—A vivid personal adventure by Jack Denton Scott, famous hunter and journalist. The author and his wife were guests of the Indian government for a big-game hunt, and he gives a thrilling account of the expedition, the dangerous game they hunted, and the friends they found among the Indian villagers. (Rinehart, $3.95)

BY ROCKING-CHAIR ACROSS AMERICA—Exuberant rocking-chair views of America from New York to Hollywood, the Maine woods to New Orleans—by an Englishman who's never been here. Alex Atkinson's sharp observations and wry humor combine with Ronald Searle's bizarre drawings for a nice fresh view of ourselves. (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.95)

ELOISE IN MOSCOW—Kay Thompson and Hilary Knight report on the activities of our No. 1 diplomat. To Eloise, this has been the most important mission of her life. She is just as imaginative and precocious as ever, and curious about everything. (Simon & Schuster, $3.75)

THE WAR LOVER—In this sensitive novel about a Flying Fortress crew on a dangerous mission, John Hersey rips off the mask of outward confidence and reveals the fliers' unspoken fears. Between the lines are deep compassion and understanding of weakness. Interesting and probing book by a mature writer. (Knopf, $5.00)

THE FIRESIDE BOOK OF HUMOROUS POETRY—An anthology of well-known writers—Lewis Carroll, Ogden Nash, Ring Lardner, Peter De Vries, and Edward Lear—to name a few. Cleverly edited by William Cole. Delectable illustrations. (Simon & Schuster, $6.50)

HOWELLS: HIS LIFE AND WORLD—Here is a fascinating biography of a towering literary figure, who is regarded as the representative American writer of his day. According to author Van Wyck Brooks, William Dean Howells, as a poet, novelist, critic, and editor, saw American literature grow into a national expression. His career deeply influenced other writers, from the 1860's to the 1920's. (Dutton, $5.75)

THE HAUNTING OF HILL HOUSE—Psychological thriller by Shirley Jackson about a doctor who invites two young men and a lonely girl to join him in a scientific experiment at an abandoned house. Mysterious noises, chilling drafts, scurrying footsteps, and writings on the walls convince the girl that the house is haunted. Eventually she is destroyed by the "ghosts." Terror and suspense. (Viking, $3.95)

Return of best sellers in paperbacks.

MASTERS OF DECEIT—J. Edgar Hoover's exposé of the workings of the Communist Party in America. (Pocket, 50¢)

BY LOVE POSSESSED—James Gould Cozzens' fat novel on the theme of love in many guises, issued by Crest. (75¢)

NAUTILUS 90 NORTH—An on-the-spot account of the daring navy men who crossed the top of the world, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, in the atomic submarine Nautilus. Written by the skipper, Commander William R. Anderson, U.S.N. (Signet 50¢)

THE IMAGE MAKERS—Dr. Bernard Dryer has written an exotic adventure-romance of a successful plastic surgeon and a fabulous Algerian heiress. From politics to plague, the scenes of violence and intrigue sweep across three continents. (Bantam, 50¢)

THE TITAN—Theodore Dreiser's famous novel about Frank Cooperwood, the "titan" who stopped at nothing until he made himself ruler of Chicago in the '90s. (Dell, 75¢)

MOVIES

CAREER—Taken from James Lee's off-Broadway play dealing with the hopes and frustrations of an actor's career. Anthony Franciosa, as the actor, is supported by Dean Martin as a struggling, opportunity-seeking director and Shirley MacLaine as a dipsomaniac wife.

A SUMMER PLACE—Deals with a millionaire who returns with his wife and daughter to an island off the coast of Maine, where he once worked as a life guard. There he resumes an old love affair begun 20 years before. The ensuing scandal causes problems for their respective children who manage to forget their dismay in a love affair of their own. Arthur Kennedy, Dorothy McGuire and two young stars, Sandra Dee and Troy Donahue, head the cast.

THIRD MAN ON THE MOUNTAIN—A brilliantly photographed Alpine adventure story about the first ascent of the Citadel, with James MacArthur as the Swiss boy who is irresistibly drawn to the mountain on which his father perished. Strong support from Janet Munro and Michael Rennie.

JOURNEY TO THE CENTER OF THE EARTH—Taken from Jules Verne's novel about a group of scientists and their trip to the center of the earth. Led by James Mason, the expedition lands on the sunken continent of Atlantis. Later an unexpected explosion shoots the hardy group back to the surface. Pat Boone and Arlene Dahl support Mason, and there is a duck – repeat, duck – that often steals the show.

AN EYE FOR AN EYE—French suspense drama about two men, suspicious of one another, trudging through the Sahara Desert in search of a destination they never reach. Curt Jurgens gives one of the best performances of his career.

Love blooms by the sea for Sandra Dee and Troy Donahue, young stars of A SUMMER PLACE.

The Andrew Ferendinos' Veranda House

Pleasing, hospitable, easy to run—the owners say this house outside Miami proved itself in the first three months

When the Ferendinos built, they had three special aims: 1) to get a feeling of spaciousness and freedom with a minimum of square footage, 2) to make the most of the oaks and pines and the view of Finger Lake on their acre-and-a-half lot, 3) to have a house that would "work" willingly for all four members of a gay and busy family, Mr. and Mrs. Ferendino, daughter Claire, who is a senior at Coral Gables High School, and son John, aged 10.

Andrew Ferendino is an architect. While building his own house, he worked closely, from the beginning, with Frederic Stresau, landscape architect, and George Schwartz, decorator. You see the results photographed here. The rooms, which are not large, do seem spacious because they all open wide on verandas planted with palmettos and aralias and glossy ficus, with views of the lake beyond. In fair weather, big doors slide back to let the breeze off the lake blow freely through the house. At all times, an eight-foot overhang–and this is a fine point–gives protection from the glare of the Florida sun. The outdoor effect is increased by the use of natural, untreated materials – natural redwood, masonry blocks of Chattahoochee river-bottom gravel, and large expanses of floor paved with brick which continues onto the terraces and walks.

Special features make the house easy to run with the help of a once-a-week cleaning woman. Fabrics are rugged and washable. Venezuelan glass tile that never needs polishing is used for the kitchen floor. Throughout the house, storage areas are built in, as they are on shipboard, and big pieces are designed to come straight down to the floor, so there is no problem of cleaning underneath.

"It would be unusual," says Mr. Ferendino, "for an architect not to find some things he would do differently, if he were building again."

But, so far, he would make only one change–he would like to install more sliding screens to open his house even wider to the four winds of heaven.

Fire—flood—choking child—and the rescue truck of the local fire department in Santa Monica, Cal., roars into action

MANNED by specialists trained in the arts of saving life, the rescue truck goes out with the hook-and-ladder companies on every fire, and also races off unaccompanied, red lights flashing and sirens screaming, on sudden-illness and accident calls. When Red Skelton, the comedian, was stricken with a coughing spasm, for instance, it was the fire department's rescue truck which got him from his home outside Los Angeles to the big city hospital—in time. On one call a crew may have to deal with a boy, cold and unconscious, who has nearly drowned—another time they will be cutting a driver out of his smashed car with acetylene torches. No one, of course, knows what's going to happen next—but day and night in local fire departments all around the country, the rescue trucks and their crews stand by, ready to go.

Regained

BY T. MORRIS LONGSTRETH

The libraries I lost myself in still retained a quiet now gathered with an unrecoverable past. Shelves of books rose from floor to ceiling. They offered vast reaches of comfortable exploration, from the Arctic to the Amazon, yet only two minutes from the dinner table. Our climate abetted the use of this cavern of delight. In the Sahara-like summer, the library was cool, and our winters, compounded of slush and gales, made the library a warm, beckoning retreat. People chose chairs for comfort rather than decor, lighted a room softly, knew how to be quiet.

When we took our civilization away from the humanists and the poets and handed it over to militarists and inventors, we had to abandon the library in the home. Wars cost too much to dedicate a whole room to learning. The living room was given the privilege of cherishing culture—and chose fashion instead.

Then attics succumbed to costs. We had more wars, more inventions, larger debts, and less time. It took time to read, and bookcases dwindled to shelves and shelves were sacrificed to interior decoration. After all, a table could hold the magazines and did, until television superseded everything, including reverie and silence.

j huehnergarth

Yet the book, like the dandelion, the sparrow, and the rabbit, is hardy and adaptable, and I had a pleasant surprise the other day in the dormitory at my old boarding school. I was visiting an up-country boy and noticed a row of paperbacks. There were a score or more best sellers, a few Westerns and mysteries, but mainly longtimers—Dostoevski, Faulkner, Stendhal, plays by Shaw, criticism by Eliot and Trilling. My surprise was doubled when I learned that my host was headed for M.I.T., and read these books for pleasure. It was like finding an oasis complete with palms and the Pierian spring in the great American desert. When I commented on this exhibit of common sense, I was told that most of the boys in the dorm had similar collections.

Only a superficial civilization thinks it can do without the riches of the world's thought and experience, permanently available. Pictures whisked before the eye are not enough. A masterpiece of fiction, history, biography, drama, poetry, must be held in the hand, pondered, reread. Only by love, which refuses to be hurried, do we get outside ourselves and discover what our fellow beings have made of the mysteries of daily living.

In the labyrinth of the last hundred years, the world has taken the wrong turning time and again, until now the consequences are nightmare plain. Yet guides have been plentiful. There are the wiser boys and girls, with the paperbacks of greatness in their rooms, who may lead us out of the labyrinth yet. They may not be content with our comfortable, sterile, bookless habitats and may build their own sanctuaries, with libraries for the books cherished as they grew. It might even be they whose example could induce us to keep at hand the great, the wise, the humorous, the helpful writers to cheer and divert and point the way.

Some underprivileged savant has said that the true paradise is always the paradise we have lost. And Edens never are regained. But the still possible paradise is the environment of timeless moments when, busy in congenial action, we are lifted into our true being. This I know, for I was once a root-beer-drinking boy behind a lawn mower, who knew the way there and have never forgotten it.

A Paradise

A BOY OF TWELVE behind a lawn mower can turn from Sir Lancelot into cowboy into moon-spacer into flying-saucer immigrant, broken by intervals of plain root-beer-drinking boy.

He knows a lot—where the spring-announcing peepers really live, why Atlas didn't get tired holding up the globe, what Huck Finn thought about when he wasn't talking. He is sorry for Charlemagne who couldn't read. Another hour of sweat and he'll have earned enough for that paperback. Permanence in a paperback is paradise regained.

As I remember it, my boyhood was pretty well divided between times, good or bad, and the timeless, which was perfect. I approved of mealtime and disapproved of bedtime. There was schooltime, an uneven adventure, my father's coming-home-from-business time, and the great stated times that cast their brightness before—the Fourth of July, Thanksgiving, Christmas. Best of all was the liberation from city school into country summer and wonderful weeks by the sea.

Father and a storytelling aunt watered my sprouting imagination, but it was through books that I installed myself in life. Henty and Hans Christian Andersen and Cooper and, above all, Dickens were my private tutors. No schoolteacher is as wise as a library, nor half so attractive. I gathered up myself while in company with the Count of Monte Cristo, Pickwick, the Virginian, and while tracing the route of Bunyan's hero. What school board is rich enough to provide teachers of their humane caliber? One third of my reading was new knowledge, one third wonder, and the remainder, the kindling of emulation in an air of joy.

Both my grandmothers had libraries and so did most of the houses I was taken to on visits. I loathed visits, those starched-up affairs. Older people were not wholly tedious, one at a time, but together, smotheration threatened until I ventured to excuse myself and find the library —and bliss.

Twelve-year-olds of today cannot imagine the family stronghold, called home, of the 1890's. The telephone's impudence had not yet interrupted whatever one was enjoying, nor had car life scattered home life to the winds. Movie, radio, television, airplane, and other extensions of our reconstructed Babel were not even mentioned in madhouses. The centrifugal force of today's living had not begun to tear families apart. The home brooded over us with its great warmhearted kitchen, and the library was dependable there to nourish every dream.

Regained

BY T. MORRIS LONGSTRETH

The libraries I lost myself in still retained a quiet now gathered with an unrecoverable past. Shelves of books rose from floor to ceiling. They offered vast reaches of comfortable exploration, from the Arctic to the Amazon, yet only two minutes from the dinner table. Our climate abetted the use of this cavern of delight. In the Sahara-like summer, the library was cool, and our winters, compounded of slush and gales, made the library a warm, beckoning retreat. People chose chairs for comfort rather than decor, lighted a room softly, knew how to be quiet.

When we took our civilization away from the humanists and the poets and handed it over to militarists and inventors, we had to abandon the library in the home. Wars cost too much to dedicate a whole room to learning. The living room was given the privilege of cherishing culture—and chose fashion instead.

Then attics succumbed to costs. We had more wars, more inventions, larger debts, and less time. It took time to read, and bookcases dwindled to shelves and shelves were sacrificed to interior decoration. After all, a table could hold the magazines and did, until television superseded everything, including reverie and silence.

Yet the book, like the dandelion, the sparrow, and the rabbit, is hardy and adaptable, and I had a pleasant surprise the other day in the dormitory at my old boarding school. I was visiting an up-country boy and noticed a row of paperbacks. There were a score or more best sellers, a few Westerns and mysteries, but mainly longtimers—Dostoevski, Faulkner, Stendhal, plays by Shaw, criticism by Eliot and Trilling. My surprise was doubled when I learned that my host was headed for M.I.T., and read these books for pleasure. It was like finding an oasis complete with palms and the Pierian spring in the great American desert. When I commented on this exhibit of common sense, I was told that most of the boys in the dorm had similar collections.

Only a superficial civilization thinks it can do without the riches of the world's thought and experience, permanently available. Pictures whisked before the eye are not enough. A masterpiece of fiction, history, biography, drama, poetry, must be held in the hand, pondered, reread. Only by love, which refuses to be hurried, do we get outside ourselves and discover what our fellow beings have made of the mysteries of daily living.

In the labyrinth of the last hundred years, the world has taken the wrong turning time and again, until now the consequences are nightmare plain. Yet guides have been plentiful. There are the wiser boys and girls, with the paperbacks of greatness in their rooms, who may lead us out of the labyrinth yet. They may not be content with our comfortable, sterile, bookless habitats and may build their own sanctuaries, with libraries for the books cherished as they grew. It might even be they whose example could induce us to keep at hand the great, the wise, the humorous, the helpful writers to cheer and divert and point the way.

Some underprivileged savant has said that the true paradise is always the paradise we have lost. And Edens never are regained. But the still possible paradise is the environment of timeless moments when, busy in congenial action, we are lifted into our true being. This I know, for I was once a root-beer-drinking boy behind a lawn mower, who knew the way there and have never forgotten it.
